India's mfg sector growth hits 16-yr high in Mar as new orders jump amid buoyant demand

NEW DELHI, April 2: India's manufacturing sector growth climbed to a 16-year high in March on the back of the strongest increase in output and new orders since October 2020, amid reports of buoyant demand conditions, a monthly survey said on Tuesday.

The seasonally adjusted HSBC India Manufacturing Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) surged to a 16-year high of 59.1 in March, from 56.9 in February, reflecting stronger growth of new orders, output and input stocks as well as renewed job creation.

In Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) parlance, a print above 50 means expansion while a score below 50 denotes contraction.

"India's March manufacturing PMI rose to its highest level since 2008. Manufacturing companies expanded hiring in response to strong production and new orders. On the back of strong demand and a slight tightening in capacity, input cost inflation picked up in March," Ines Lam, Economist at HSBC, said. Manufacturing output rose for the 33rd month running in March, and to the greatest extent since October 2020. Growth quickened across the consumer, intermediate and investment goods sectors.

Inflows of new work strengthened from both domestic and export markets. New export orders increased at the fastest pace since May 2022, the survey said.

Quantities of purchase increased at the quickest rate since mid-2023, and one that was among the strongest in nearly 13 years, as companies sought to build up stocks in advance of expected improvements in sales.

On the job front, after leaving payroll numbers broadly unchanged in the previous two months, manufacturers in India took on additional workers in March. The pace of job creation was mild, but the best since September 2023, the survey said. On the price front, despite remaining modest by historical standards, cost pressures were at their highest in five months. Companies reported having paid more for cotton, iron, machinery tools, plastics and steel.

However, customer retention remained a priority for goods producers who raised their charges to the least extent in over a year.

On the outlook for the Indian manufacturing sector, companies remained confident on an average, with 28 per cent forecasting output growth in the year ahead and 1 per cent expecting a contraction.

The overall level of sentiment remained elevated, but slipped to a four-month low as inflation concerns weighed on confidence. The HSBC India Manufacturing PMI is compiled by S&P Global from responses to questionnaires sent to purchasing managers in a panel of around 400 manufacturers. (PTI)

Rupee falls 4 paise to close at 83.43 against US dollar

MUMBAI, April 2: The rupee on Tuesday consolidated in a narrow range and settled 4 paise lower at 83.43 against the US dollar, weighed down by a strong dollar and elevated crude oil prices.

Forex traders said a weak trend in domestic equities also dented investor sentiments. At the interbank foreign exchange, the local unit opened at 83.37, then touched an intraday high of 83.34 and a low of 83.44 against the greenback. The rupee finally settled at 83.43, a fall of 4 paise over its previous close. On Thursday last week, the rupee depreciated 6 paise to settle at 83.39 against the US dollar. Forex market was closed on Friday and Monday on account of 'Good Friday' and the annual account closing of banks, respectively.

"We expect the rupee to trade with a slight negative bias on strong US dollar and weak tone in domestic markets. Rising crude oil prices may also weigh on the domestic currency," said Anuj Choudhary Research Analyst, Sharekhan by BNP Paribas. Traders may take cues from Job Openings and Labor Turnover Survey (JOLTS) and speeches by various US Federal Reserve officials. USD/INR spot price is expected to trade in the range of ₹ 83.20 to ₹ 83.60, Choudhary added. (PTI)

Stock markets end 3-day winning run as IT, private bank shares drop on profit-taking MUMBAI, April 2: Stock markets snapped the three-day winning run on Tuesday with benchmark Sensex falling by 110 points due to profit-taking in select IT, private bank and auto shares amid weak trends from the US markets and foreign fund outflows.

The 30-share BSE Sensex declined by 110.64 points or 0.15 per cent to settle at 73,903.91 with 16 of its components ending lower and 14 settling higher. During the day, the index dropped by 270.78 points or 0.36 per cent to a low of 73,743.77 points.

The broader NSE Nifty closed lower by 8.70 points or 0.04 per cent at 22,453.30 despite recovery at the day-end. Both Sensex and Nifty scaled lifetime high levels in intra-day trade on Monday before settling around 0.5% higher.

"The domestic market took a breather today after achieving a fresh record high yesterday. Factors such as a rising dollar, increasing US bond yields, and a notable uptick in crude oil prices collectively dampened investor sentiment," Vinod Nair, Head of Research, Geojit Financial Services said.

Better-than-expected US manufacturing data raised worries about a potential delay in interest rate cuts by the US Fed, Nair added. "Nifty snapped its three-day rally despite a sharp recovery in the last half an hour. Global stocks were mixed on Tuesday after Wall Street fell as surprisingly strong US manufacturing data created doubts over how soon the US Federal Reserve might cut interest rates," said Deepak Jasani, Head of Retail Research, HDFC Securities. From the Sensex basket, Kotak Mahindra Bank fell the most by 1.84 per cent. ICICI Bank dropped 1.63 per cent, HCL Technologies by 1.82 per cent, and Infosys by 0.84 per cent. Tata Consultancy Services, Wipro, Tech Mahindra and Larsen & Toubro were the major laggards.

Mahindra & Mahindra, Nestle, Tata Motors and IndusInd Bank were among the gainers. In the broader market, the BSE smallcap gauge jumped 1.28 per cent and the midcap index climbed 1.14 per cent.

"Like wise Amarsing Tisso should win with more than 3 lakhs," he declared. Promising continued development in both Karbi Anglong and NC Hills districts, Sarma announced substantial funds allocated for infrastructural development across the hill districts. Tipra Motha-BJP tacit

The concept of 'Greater Tripaland' state, which used to be a key demand of the Tipra Motha, has not been specified, though it is supposed to include parts of several other northeastern states and Bangladesh, besides Tripura.

Chowdhury claimed the BJP would not have secured majority in the assembly had Tipra Motha not fielded candidates in unreserved seats. In the February 2023 assembly elections, the BJP won 32 seats while its ally, the Indigenous People's Front of Tripura (IPFT), bagged one. The Tipra Motha secured 13 constituencies. The CPI(M) and Congress had fought the election jointly and won 11 and 3 seats respectively.

"The man (Debarma), who used to brand the former chief minister Bilab Kumar Deb as a Bangladeshi during the anti-CAA movement, has now described him as his dearest friend," the CPI(M) leader said. He appealed to the electors to vote for INDIA bloc candidates in the election of two Lok Sabha seats - Tripura West and Tripura East - and by-election to Rannagar assembly constituency to save the democracy.

the collaborative proposals involving India, Japan, Germany, and Egypt which have been submitted to the UN, signalling progress.

"But now, there is a feeling across the world that this should change, and India should get a permanent seat. I see this feeling increasing every year," he said, adding "we will definitely get it. But nothing big is ever achieved without hard work...we will have to work hard, and this time we will have to work even harder".

He stressed the importance of mounting pressure, citing recent stalemates over conflicts like the Ukraine war and Gaza. Jaishankar linked the UN's perceived weakening to increased opportunities for India's bid for permanent membership saying, "...there is a feeling in the world that the UN has weakened."

"There was a deadlock in the UN on the Ukraine war and no consensus was reached in the UN regarding Gaza. I think as this feeling increases, our chances of getting a permanent seat will increase," he added. Earlier in his address, the minister highlighted India's democratic achievements and economic resilience amidst the pandemic. He underscored India's potential as a global growth engine. Jaishankar said India has proved in the last 10 years that democracy can deliver. The world is amazed at India moving towards 7 per cent growth despite the COVID-19 pandemic hampering growth, he said.

Recognising India's progress in various sectors, he emphasised the nation's role as a talented and capable contributor to global problem-solving efforts. "The world believes that India as the fastest growing large economy can become the engine of global growth," he said, adding technological talent of the country has been recognised globally. World agencies such as the UN understand India's achievements in social sectors like access to water, electricity, roads, health, schooling, etc. the external affairs minister further said.

As India continues its journey towards further economic growth and social development, Jaishankar reiterated the importance of recognising the country's potential and the world's expectations of its significant contributions on the global stage.

"We should understand that being the fifth largest economy, on the way to becoming the third largest and with the biggest population, the world believes us to be talented people and expects us to contribute to resolve challenges," he added. Responding to a sensitive case of baby girl Ariha Shah, whose custody situation in Germany has garnered attention, the minister said "at my level I have raised the issue with my counterpart. Our effort is to find some solutions".

Assuring ongoing efforts to address the matter, he expressed dissatisfaction with the current arrangements and affirmed India's commitment to ensuring the child's welfare and cultural upbringing. (PTI)

SC slams Ramdev and Balkrishna,

Ramdev and Balkrishna have to appear again.

Giving them a last one week opportunity to file affidavits, it took strong note of their "absolute defiance" in not adhering to the undertaking given before it in the case filed by the Indian Medical Association (IMA).

"You have to abide by undertaking given to court and you have broken every barrier," the bench said. Sternly reprimanding Ramdev and his number two Balkrishna, Justice Kohli said the court was taking their apology with a "sack full of salt". The bench also warned Patanjali, Ramdev and Balkrishna that it would take note of "perjury" as certain documents, which were said to be attached with other papers, were created later on.

"This is a clear case of perjury. We are not closing the doors on you but we are telling all that we have noted," the bench said. Patanjali Ayurved Ltd assured the top court on November 21 last year that it will not violate any law, especially those relating to advertising or branding of products manufactured and marketed by it. It also assured the bench that "no casual statements claiming medicinal efficacy or against any system of medicine will be released to the media in any form".

The top court had said Patanjali Ayurved Ltd is "bound down to such assurance". The non-observance of the specific undertaking and subsequent media statements irked the bench, which later issued the show cause notices.

On Tuesday, the court strongly disapproved of Balkrishna's statement that the Drugs and Cosmetics (Magic Remedies) Act is "archaic" and said Patanjali Ayurved's advertisements were in the "teeth of the Act" and violated with impunity the undertaking given to the court.

The bench warned Ramdev and Balkrishna to be ready to face the consequences.

"Your apology is not persuading this court really to accept it. We think it is more of a lip service," Justice Kohli told the counsel representing the Patanjali Ayurved MD.

Observing that some matters have to be taken to their logical conclusion, the bench said there cannot be "so much magnanimity".

"The purpose of contempt is to make a person realise that the majesty of the law is above all," Justice Kohli said. Senior advocate Vipin Sanghi, the counsel representing Patanjali, said the firm's media department was not aware of the fact that the top court had restrained it from continuing with advertisements or branding of products manufactured and marketed by it which are meant to cure diseases, disorders or conditions specified in the Act.

"Mr Sanghi, once it is a court proceeding and there are specific undertakings given by you to the court, whose duty is to convey it to entire chain down the line?" Justice Kohli asked.

The bench said the undertaking has to be abided by in letter and spirit.

"That did not happen. Just to say that now you are sorry, we can also say we are sorry and we are not willing to accept such an explanation... your media department is not a standalone island in your office..." Justice Kohli said.

Senior advocate Balbir Singh, appearing for Ramdev, said the yoga guru was tendering an unconditional apology and they will file a better affidavit. Keeping in mind the stature and the social respect of Ramdev and Balkrishna, there was an onerous responsibility on them to behave responsibly and they owe a better explanation not just to the public but to the court, Justice Kohli said.

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Centre, offered his assistance in the contempt proceedings and said he was willing to sit down with the counsel for the parties to resolve the issue.

"What has happened, should not have happened," he said.

Justice Kohli said 2020 and 2021 was a critical period for the whole world with Covid at its peak and there was a recommendation by the Centre's committee that Ayurvedic products were supplementary to main medicines.

"The contemptors were going to town saying that this is the answer and the cure and there is nothing available in the modern science which can address it. They were aware of the fact that they have been cautioned not to do that... You choose to keep your eyes shut," she said.

Mehta said they will place the relevant material before the court.

On March 19, the apex court directed Ramdev and Balkrishna to appear before it after taking exception to the company's failure to respond to the notice issued in the case relating to advertisements of the firm's products and their medicinal efficacy. The top court had said it deemed it appropriate to issue Ramdev a show cause notice as advertisements issued by Patanjali, which were in the teeth of the undertaking given to the court on November 21, 2023, reflect an endorsement by him. NAGAON, April 2: Edgar Faingor, a 47-year-old Israeli national, intellectual, and professor at the International Buddhist College, Thailand, initiated the Vaishnavite 'Ek Naam Dharma' founded by Mahapurush Srimanta Sankardeva centuries ago, at Balisatra in Kaliabor. Edgar's initiation to Vaishnavite 'Ek Naam Dharma' was ceremonially carried out by Hiru Prasad Mahanta, satradhikar of Baghargaoon Satra, after renaming Edgar Faingor as Krishna Charan Bhakat.

Edgar was born in Moscow, Russia, and has explored many countries across the globe. He studied almost all religions and later converted to Buddhism. During the initiation programme, Edgar Faingor promised to practice the Shankari arts and crafts in the next part of his life and also participated in the Nam-Sangha at Balisatra Satra. The Israeli national Edgar married from Nepal and also has a son.

Following vast studies of almost all religions and exploring various disciplines and countries for over twenty years across the globe, Edgar Faingor came into contact with professor, columnist, litterateur, and noted scholar of Vaishnavite Guru Srimanta Sankardeva - Dr Sanjib Borkakoti and studied Dr Borkakoti's all English versions on Mahapurush Srimanta Sankardeva. Edgar Faingor recently expressed his willingness to take initiation to Vaishnavite Guru Srimanta Sankardeva's Ek Charan Naam Dharma to Dr Sanjib Borkakoti, and Dr Borkakoti ensured his initiation ceremony at Batadroba Than entertaining by Satradhikar Debananda Dev Goswami on Tuesday. But amidst the arrangements, Satradhikar Goswami suddenly died due to cardiac arrest, for which the programme of his initiation to 'Ek Charan Naam Dharma' finally shifted to Balisatra in Kaliabor.

Edgar was awarded a satra certificate during the ceremonial initiation, which was attended by author, researcher, and professor Dr Sanjib Kr Borkakoti, Deka Satriya Monimadhav Mahanta of Balisatra, and other satradhikars of several satras of greater Kaliabor areas.

Central Committee, along with other activists of AYM and local residents, protested on Tuesday on Hari Pora Road. During the protest, a fishing net was used and placed in the potholes filled with water. They shouted slogans against the PWD Department, stating that it is unclear whether the roads are for vehicles or ponds. Moreover, pedestrians face serious problems while traveling on both roads, especially after heavy showers when the potholes fill with water. Hari Pora Road is home to schools, colleges, offices, and a police station. The protestors demanded that the potholes on both roads be repaired at the earliest.

Sub-standard meals served to election workers

HT Correspondent
MORIGAOON, April 2: The employees engaged in different cells for the smooth conduct of the Lok Sabha 2024 election, scheduled for April 26 in the district, are dissatisfied with the refreshment cells for serving them sub-standard meals during lunchtime. The employees, involved in various election-related tasks, have expressed serious concerns about being served only 'puri & sabji' instead of rice. It is alleged that the packets of 'puri & sabji' have caused several employees to encounter issues related to freshness, taste, and overall cleanliness of the food. These observations cast serious doubts on the adherence to proper hygiene standards in the preparation and handling of the meals. The employees have urged the authorities to thoroughly investigate this matter and implement necessary measures to ensure that the meals provided meet the expected standards of quality and hygiene.

Garbage accumulation raises concerns

JAGIROAD, April 2: The newly constructed flyover at the railway crossing on the Jagiroad-Morigaon road has largely alleviated the traffic problems in Jagiroad, but some pedestrians and businessmen have complained that the beautiful flyover has been given an ugly appearance by some unsocial elements. It is alleged that there is a lot of garbage on the sidewalks of the flyover, which is causing difficulties for pedestrians to travel on the two sidewalks. Concerned citizens feel that it is necessary to take measures to prevent the dropping of garbage and thereby prevent the spread of diseases. There are also complaints that the road is causing inconvenience to people due to the foundation plate erected amidst the footpath of the flyover. The residents hope that the departmental authorities will take necessary measures to address these issues soon.

NCT faces governance crisis

The recent incarceration of Delhi chief minister Arvind Kejriwal has plunged the National Capital Territory (NCT) into a governance crisis, exacerbating the suffering of its residents. With administrative processes grinding to a halt and bureaucratic inertia impeding the directives of AAP ministers, the city finds itself at a standstill. This stalemate, fueled by political rivalry between the AAP and BJP, underscores a deeper issue of governance and democratic principles. The root of this crisis lies in the power struggle between the elected government and the central authorities, particularly highlighted by the Government of NCT Delhi (Amendment) Act, 2021. Under this act, bureaucratic control shifted decisively towards the Lieutenant Governor, undermining the autonomy of the elected administration. Despite repeated interventions by the Supreme Court urging cooperation and condemning bureaucratic obstructionism, the situation persists. A recent instance of this bureaucratic impasse emerged in the withholding of crucial funds earmarked for the Delhi Jal Board, impacting essential services like water supply. This brazen disregard for administrative necessities directly affects the lives of Delhi's residents and underscores the urgency of resolving the governance deadlock.

The incarceration of chief minister Kejriwal, ostensibly on charges perceived by many as politically motivated, has further compounded the crisis. Despite legal clarity affirming his eligibility to govern from jail, questions loom over the efficacy of such a setup in ensuring smooth governance. The AAP government must navigate this challenging terrain while upholding its commitment to serve the people of Delhi. The political ramifications of this crisis extend beyond mere governance. With the looming specter of impending elections, the BJP's aggressive stance against the AAP-Congress alliance underscores the high stakes involved. The arrest of prominent AAP leaders, including the Chief Minister, underscores the lengths to which political adversaries are willing to go in pursuit of power. In the face of such adversity, the AAP must chart a new course to safeguard democracy and ensure effective governance. Relying on a succession plan within the party's leadership ranks becomes imperative to maintain continuity and resilience in the face of mounting challenges. The AAP's unwavering commitment to its principles must guide its actions as it confronts this existential threat to democratic norms.

As the political landscape of Delhi continues to evolve, it is crucial to remain vigilant against any attempts to undermine democratic institutions. The AAP's struggle for autonomy and effective governance resonates far beyond the confines of the National Capital Territory, serving as a litmus test for the resilience of democratic principles in the face of authoritarian tendencies. The ongoing governance crisis in Delhi underscores the urgent need for a concerted effort to uphold democratic values and ensure effective governance. The AAP's resolve in the face of adversity serves as a beacon of hope for those committed to preserving the integrity of democratic institutions. As the nation watches, the fate of Delhi's governance hangs in the balance, with far-reaching implications for the future of Indian democracy. As the political turmoil in Delhi intensifies, the AAP finds itself at a critical juncture, grappling with unprecedented challenges to its authority and legitimacy. With the BJP's aggressive posturing and the looming specter of further arrests, the party must rally its ranks and forge a path forward that prioritizes the welfare of Delhi's residents above all else.

Rahul Gandhi's Yatra made big impact in tribal districts of Maha

By: Harihar Swarup

On the day Rahul Gandhi's Bharat Jodo Yatra entered the tribal district of Nandurbar on March 12, it was greeted with much fanfare. The mood of Congress leaders was upbeat, as Rahul Gandhi addressed huge rallies in Nandurbar and Dondaichain Maharashtra. The jolt, however, came the next day—former minister Padmakar Valvi quit the party and joined the BJP.

Though hardly a heavy weight, Valvi certainly has some influence in the tribal belt of Nandurbar and DhuleLok Sabha constituencies. The three-time legislator can damage the Congress's chances in the Nandurbar constituencies for sure.

Once a Congress bastion, Nandurbar constituency and its tribal had a special place in Indira Gandhi's heart. Rajiv and Sonia Gandhi carried forward the special bond. The UPA government chose Nandurbar district for the launch of its prestigious Aadhaar card scheme during its tenure. The constituency, however, slipped away from the hands of the Congress in the Modi wave in 2014. Heena Gavit, a young BJP leader, has been representing the constituency since then. The Congress is keen on wresting it back.

The party has to play its cards deftly, though. It has to make sure that Prakash Ambekar's Vanchit Bahujan Aghadi (VBA) does not spoil the game. The efforts for an understanding with the VBA have not yielded any result as it refused to accept the two seats offered by the Maha Vikas Aghadi during the seat sharing talks.

A tacit understanding with powerful local leaders like Chandra Kant Raghuvanshi would work well for the Congress. Originally a congressman, Raghuvanshi shifted his loyalty to the Shiv Sena after the saffron alliance came to power in Maharashtra in 2014.

After Shinde rebelled to form his own government and took control of Shiv Sena, Raghuvanshi shifted camp. He is, however, not happy there.

The BJP has been winning Dhule, Nandurbar's neighbouring constituency, since 2009, and the margins have been getting bigger. In 2019, the BJP's Subhash Bhamre trounced the Congress's Kunal Patil by 2.29 lakh votes. While Bhamre will contest again in 2024, the Congress has not yet decided its candidate.

Rahul's first stop in Dhule was the residence of Rohidas 'Dajisahib' Patil. A Congress veteran, he was minister many times. The popular leader has passed on the mantle to his son Kunal, who many in Dhule say, is not as popular as his father. Rahul met the senior Patil and made a phone call to Sonia Gandhi so that she could speak to him.

Rahul addressed two meetings in Dhule—one in the city and other on the outskirts. Both were well attended. Like he did in Nandurbar, he announced five guarantees for women if the Congress came to power. Each of his announcements was greeted with thunderous applause from women.

"The response to Rahul's yatra has phenomenal", said Sachin Sawant, general secretary, Maharashtra Congress. "People are coming on their own to listen to him on. People are tired of this politics of money and hatred. Now even the surveys for Maharashtra are saying that this election is not a cake walk for the BJP.

Sharad Power joined Rahul's yatra when it entered Nashik district at Malegaon. His NCP will contest Dindori and Nashik, the two Lok Sabha constituencies in the district.

Huge crowds received the Yatra in Malegaon, a Muslim majority town of handloom and power-loom owners.

The Congress had long been the first choice of Muslims in the region. In the last election, however, Malegaon Assembly seat was won by Asaduddin Owaisi's AIMIM. (IPA Service)

Aid is at the core of Israel, Palestine struggle to control post-war Gaza

Israel's refusal to lift restrictions on the unfettered entry into Gaza of food, medical supplies, and other desperately needed humanitarian goods, has less to do with a stand-alone starvation policy and more with who controls distribution in the Strip. Both Israel and Hamas see control of aid distribution as a building block of who comes out on top once the guns fall silent.

The struggle for control explains the latest Israeli assault on Al-Shifa hospital in Gaza City and highlights the willingness of Israel and Hamas to sacrifice innocent Palestinian lives in the pursuit of their political goals. The struggle also frames the battle over the future of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA), the foremost humanitarian organisation in Gaza, with the United States seemingly backing Israeli efforts to shut it down and Gulf states walking a tightrope.

Hamas makes no bones about Al-Shifa having served as base for a commander of Gaza's internal security force, Brigadier General, Faiq al-Mabhouh, in the full knowledge that his presence risked an Israeli assault. Al-Mabhouh was killed during the attack on the hospital. The Israeli military asserted that Al-Mabhouh had been "hiding in a compound at the Al-Shifa hospital from which he operated and advanced terrorist activity," while Hamas claimed he had been in charge of coordinating aid deliveries to northern Gaza with local clans, UNRWA and other international organisations.

Israel said Al-Mabhouh was among 170 "terrorists" it killed in hospital and its immediate surroundings. Israel said it had captured a further 358 Palestinian fighters. Al Jazeera journalist Ismail al-Ghoul was among the captives. He was later released but said he had been beaten by Israeli forces. Israel has targeted other senior police officials since Al-Mabhouh's killing.

Earlier this week, Israeli forces struck the home of the police's northern Gaza investigations director, Major Raed al-Banna, killing him, his wife and children. Al-Banna, like Al-Mabhouh, focused on facilitating the entry into Gaza and distribution of aid.

In contrast to Hamas military and political officials, who function from the group's underground tunnels, Al-Mabhouh operated openly in uniform and spoke publicly about maintaining law and order in northern Gaza. Israel killed Al-Mabhouh and Al-Banna despite a US request that it stop targeting the police force that escorts aid trucks on the Gaza side of the border. US officials warned that a "total breakdown of law and order" was exacerbating the humanitarian crisis in the enclave.

At the heart of the diverging US and Israeli perceptions of the police force are lessons learnt from the 2003 US invasion of Iraq. The United States came to regret its decision to ban Saddam Hussein's Baath Party and remove all senior Baathists from the government and security forces. As a result,

David Satterfield, the Biden administration's envoy for humanitarian affairs, conceded that the Gazan police "certainly include(s) Hamas elements" but they "also include individuals who don't have a direct affiliation with Hamas who are there as part of the Palestinian Authority's remnant presence and security."

It's a distinction Israel refuses to make, driven by its determination to create a compliant post-war Palestinian Gaza administration. Israel sees the Strip's clan and tribe-based gangs as the skeleton of a future subservient Gazan administration that could replace Hamas and create an alternative to Palestine President Mahmoud Abbas' internationally-backed Palestine Authority.

In February, Israeli Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu unveiled a post-war plan, entitled 'Plan for the day after Hamas,' that envisioned Israeli security control and a Palestinian administration that "will be based on professionals with managerial experience."

These local officials must not be identified with states or organizations that support terror and must not receive salaries from them." Israel's targeting of the police has forced officers to venture out in plainclothes and unarmed, creating an opportunity for unidentified gunmen, believed to be clansmen, to take control of aid trucks.

The struggle between Israel, Hamas, and the clans burst into the open earlier this month with reports of the death of Haj Saleh Ashur, a leader of the powerful Doghmush clan in northern Gaza suspected of looting aid convoys, and two of his associates. Israeli sources suggested that Hamas killed the three men, noting that the clan had clashed with the Islamist group in the past. The clan said Ashur died in an Israeli strike last November.

In a statement after the leaking of Ashur's death, several clans said they would only cooperate with institutions authorized by the Palestine Authority's backbone, the Palestine Liberation Organisation or PLO, which they described as "the only representative of the Palestinian people." The clans demanded that "Hamas stops accusing us of treason and apostasy. Our nation can no longer bear the foreign concepts Hamas is trying to disseminate through its toxic media."

Israel has recently sought to reinforce its preference for the clans by saying it would boycott UNRWA and bar its aid supplies from entering northern Gaza, the hardest hit part of the Strip. In January, Israel, on the warpath against UNRWA long before the organisation's 13,000 Gaza employees had participated in Hamas' October 7 attack on Israel. Israel has yet to substantiate the claim, according to UN officials and officials of donor countries that initially suspended funding in response to the Israeli allegations.

Gulf states, reluctant to be sucked into Gaza unless there is a credible pathway to a resolution of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, walk a tightrope. Rather than rushing to UNRWA's aid, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, and Qatar, together with the United States, the chief Israel-Hamas ceasefire mediators, have offered minimal assistance.

Earlier this month, Saudi Arabia pledged US$40 million. The UAE disbursed US$20 million it had promised UNRWA last year but hadn't delivered, while Qatar said it would donate US$25 million for 2024.

At the core of Israel's camaign against UNRWA is the assertion that the organisation perpetuates the status as refugees of millions of Palestinians, most of whom were born after the 1948 expulsion of Palestinians and many after Israel's conquest of Gaza and the West Bank in the 1967 Middle East war. In effect, Israel opposes UNRWA because it contributes to Palestinians' national identity.

A recent report on UNRWA schools in the northern Gazan city of Beit Hanoun by IMPACT-se, a Ramat Gan and London-based textbook watchdog, sought to demonstrate Israeli assertions that UNRWA promotes hatred and violence. The report found that the schools' books contain anti-Israeli incitement, the systematic erasure of Israel's existence, and the glorification of jihad and martyrdom.

The report cited a geography book that features Palestine instead of Israel on maps. Other textbooks glorified explosive belts worn by Palestinian fighters battling the Israeli military, and praised the "image of a burnt Zionist soldier."

The IMPACT-se report contrasts starkly with a 2018 State Department-funded report on UNRWA that found based on a UNRWA review, an anti-Israeli bias in only 3.1 per cent of Palestinian textbooks. The US report noted that UNRWA developed alternate materials that were rejected by Palestinian teachers. An earlier 2022 Impact-se review of Israeli textbooks reported that they taught peace and tolerance, the "Palestinian experience and perspective," challenges Israeli Palestinians face in integrating into Israeli society, and that they included maps of Palestinian territories. After Delhi Chief Minister, ED sets sights on Kerala

By: P. Sreekumaran

The Enforcement Directorate, flush from what it perceives to be a "successful" campaign against Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal, has set its sights now on Kerala. But the central investigating agency must know that Kerala is a different cup of tea. The tactics it has successfully used in North Indian state won't do in states like Kerala and Tamil Nadu and West Bengal.

The latest step the agency has taken in its campaign against Kerala is to register an Enforcement Case Investigation Report (ECIR) in connection with an alleged monthly pay-off controversy involving the company of Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan's daughter T. Veena. The ECIR has been filed by the Kochi unit of the agency under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA), 2002.

The action follows a report by the Income Tax Interim Settlement Board (ITISB) in August 2003 on the ground that her company, Exalogic Solutions Private Ltd. had received Rs 1.72 crore as monthly payments from the Kochi-based Cochin Minerals and Rutile Ltd. (CMRL) although there was no evidence of any services given in return. The investigation by the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO) under the Ministry of Corporate Affairs into the monthly pay-off case is underway.

Besides Veena, the role of CMRL and the Kerala State Industrial Development Corporation (KSIDC) which holds 13.4 per cent shares in CMRL, is also being investigated. It may be mentioned that the High Court in Karnataka had, in February, rejected a petition filed by Exalogic challenging the action of the Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA) in ordering a probe by the SFIO into the affairs of the company.

The latest ED move has come against the backdrop of the dismal failure of its previous attempts, at the behest of the Union Government, to destabilize the LDF Government. Not only did such misadventures come a cropper, the people gave a befitting reply to the BJP and the Congress-led United Democratic Front (UDF)'s campaign against the LDF Government, by returning the CPI(M)-led LDF back to power with a bigger majority in 2021 state assembly elections. The campaign of calumny had obviously failed to have any impact at all on the voting pattern.

The timing of the latest ED move against the Chief Minister's daughter and CPI(M) central committee member Thomas Isaac is significant coming as it does just before the Lok Sabha elections. It is nothing but a desperate move by a panicky Modi Government, which is reeling under the adverse impact the revelations in the electoral bonds case have made.

It is to divert the people's attention from the issue that the arrests of Jharkhand Chief Minister Hemant Soren and Delhi CM Arvind Kejriwal have been made. The saffron camp obviously thinks that such moves will fetch it rich electoral dividends. But it will be lulling itself into a false sense of complacency if it thinks so. If anything, the misadventure is set to boomerang badly on the Sangh Parivar and the Modi Government. The signs are already there.

Why is the BJP-RSS combine so scared? The reasons are obvious. The campaign undertaken by the Left parties against Citizens Amendment Act (CAA) and the electoral bonds issue are creating a big impact in the minds of the people. The left parties are undoubtedly in an advantageous position as they are the only ones who have not bought the electoral bonds. And it was the CPI(M) which moved the apex court against the electoral bonds and won a favourable verdict, which has dealt a devastating blow to the credibility of the Modi Government.

That explains the aggressive campaign against the left parties in particular. And Veena has been targeted as she is the daughter of Pinarayi Vijayan who is spearheading the campaign against the Union Government and the BJP-RSS duo. The Kerala CM is using the CAA issue and the electoral bonds case with telling effect in his election rallies which are attracting massive crowds to the dismay of the saffron camp.

Thomas Isaac is being targeted because he has been successfully resisting the ED's attempts to 'fix' him in connection with an investigation into the issue of masala bonds by the Kerala Infrastructure Investment Board (KIIFB) Fund. The ED is busy issuing summons after summons to Isaac and the latter has shrugged them off repeatedly. The former finance minister of Kerala had opposed the ED move by terming the summons as illegal and arbitrary.

On his part, the Kerala Chief Minister has come down heavily on the Union Government accusing it of misusing central agencies to intimidate opposition parties. He also referred to the arrest of his Delhi counterpart Arvind Kejriwal saying that it could not be considered as either the first or the last. Democracy is in danger and the need of the hour was to defend it with all our might. CPI(M) leaders have extended solid support to the Kerala CM.

In his strong reaction, CPI(M) state secretary M V Govindan said the ED move was to help the leader of the opposition in Kerala VD Satheesan, who has been seeking action against Pinarayi. The ED, Govindan said, is filing cases against opposition leaders to further the BJP's political agenda. The Union Government had used ED and other investigating agencies in the last assembly elections, too. Govindan blasted the Congress's position on ED raids against non-BJP leaders. He said the party reacts only when ED goes after Congress leaders, he pointed out.

One thing can be predicted with certainty. Any misadventure on the part of ED against the LDF Government is bound to boomerang badly against the saffron camp and the Union Government. The growing support for the LDF in Kerala has clearly unnerved the BJP-RSS combine.

Hence its attempts to destabilize the Pinarayi government by hook or crook. But the enlightened people of Kerala are solidly behind the LDF Government and the Chief Minister as they have realised that he is leading from the front the battle to save democracy and see that the idea of a democratic, secular and socialist India remains intact. Taliban regime goes back to archaic practices affecting women's lives

By: Arun Kumar Shrivastava

Despite assurances of a more lenient rule following their ascent to power, the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan, which is also known as Taliban (Pashto for "students") have intensified restrictions on various aspects of women's lives. Women in Afghanistan face a multitude of constraints, including exclusion from leadership roles, limitations on education and employment opportunities, and restrictions on travel and access to public spaces, such as bathhouses, gyms, and parks, without male accompaniment. They have been barred from accessing restaurants with garden spaces in Herat province.

In the latest, Mullah Hibatullah Akhundzada, the leader of the Taliban, has reportedly announced his intentions to impose public floggings and stoning to death as punishments for adultery in Afghanistan. Akhundzada's statement, conveyed through a voice message broadcast on state television, has reignited fears of a regression in women's rights, reminding the Taliban's previous rule from 1996 to 2001.

In his message, Akhundzada was quoted by The Guardian as stating, "We will flog the women... we will stone them to death in public... you may call it a violation of women's rights when we publicly stone or flog them for committing adultery because they conflict with your democratic principles... (But) I represent Allah, and you represent Satan."

The Taliban leader justified these draconian measures as a continuation of the group's resistance against Western influences. "The Taliban's work did not end with the takeover of Kabul, it has only just begun," he emphasized, as reported by The Guardian.

During Taliban's rule, Afghanistan has emerged as the sole nation globally where girls are prohibited from attending school beyond the age of 11. Additionally, the group has instituted a policy characterized as "gender apartheid," effectively excluding women from the majority of employment opportunities and public spheres. In a recent report on Afghanistan's healthcare crisis, UN Human Rights Watch reveals how women are particularly more affected by the country's collapsing healthcare system. "Women and girls have been disproportionately affected by the healthcare crisis, particularly because of Taliban abuses. The Taliban's restrictions on women's freedom of movement and employment with humanitarian and other organizations have gravely impeded women and girls' access to health services, while bans on education for women and girls have blocked almost all training of future female healthcare workers in the country," HRW's report A Disaster for the Foreseeable Future says.

Another report by International Rescue Committee (IRC) on the prevailing poverty in Pakistan says the dire situation in Afghanistan is disproportionately impacting women and children, who constitute nearly 80% of those in need. This crisis stems primarily from economic instability compounded by severe limitations imposed on women within society. With women-headed households bearing the brunt of increasing food insecurity, mothers are compelled to send their children to work in order to afford basic necessities, leading to a concerning rise in child labour rates. Moreover, the stringent restrictions on women's employment opportunities are exacerbating the economic downturn, resulting in an estimated economic loss of up to $1 billion, equivalent to approximately 5% of Afghanistan's GDP. To address these challenges and revitalize the economy, it is imperative that women are empowered to participate in the workforce and afforded equal opportunities to contribute to their local economies, thereby safeguarding the future of their nation.

In January 2022, Afghanistan's Taliban authorities declared a ban on women accessing hammams, communal bathhouses, in the northern regions of the country. According to Sardar Mohammad Heydari, an official from a local branch of the Ministry for the Propagation of Virtue and the Prevention of Vice, women in Balkh and Herat provinces will be prohibited from using these facilities, as reported by The Guardian.

Afghans rely on hammams, especially during the winter months, for access to warm water for bathing. Additionally, many Afghan women use these communal bathhouses for ritual ablutions mandated by Islamic law.

More recently, the Taliban implemented a ban prohibiting women from visiting Band-e-Amir National Park, one of Afghanistan's notable tourist destinations. Mohammed Khaled Hanafi, Afghanistan's acting minister of virtue and vice, cited women's alleged failure to adhere to proper hijab standards during park visits as justification for the ban, stating, "Going sightseeing is not a must for women." Hanafi urged security forces and religious leaders to enforce the ban until a resolution was reached.

The decision has sparked reactions from various quarters, with Sayed Nasrullah Waezi, head of the Bamiyan Shia Ulema Council, expressing concerns about visitors' attire, particularly hijab compliance. Established in April 2009, Band-e-Amir National Park holds significance as Afghanistan's inaugural national park and is recognized by UNESCO for its unique geological formations and natural beauty. Heather Barr, associate director of women's rights at Human Rights Watch, criticized the Taliban's increasingly restrictive measures, noting, "Not content with depriving girls and women of education, employment, and free movement, the Taliban also want to take from them parks and sport and now even nature, as we see from this latest ban on women visiting Band-e-Amir." She underscored the narrowing space for women's autonomy within Afghan society. (IPA Service)

Which foods to eat and avoid during pregnancy

By: Tim Newman

For a healthy pregnancy, a person's diet should include a balance of proteins, carbohydrates, and fats. However, some foods and drinks, such as alcohol and some cheeses, can have a detrimental effect on a pregnant person's health and the eventual health of their baby.

Rules and strategies

Medical professionals recommend having a balanced diet rich in nutrient-dense foods, including various animal and plant-based proteins, fruits, grains, and vegetables during pregnancy.

They recommend prioritizing the following foods:

Fruit and vegetables

Currently, around 90% of the United States population does not get the daily recommended intake of vegetables. To follow the national guidelines, aim for around 2.5 cups of vegetables and 2 cups of fruit per day.

A person can hit these targets by consuming a variety of fresh, frozen, or canned produce and 100% fruit juices. However, if possible, opt for whole, fresh or frozen fruit rather than juice.

Complex carbohydrates

Complex carbohydrates include starchy vegetables such as sweet potatoes and butternut squash, whole grains such as farro and buckwheat, and legumes, such as beans or chickpeas.

Opt for these rather than refined carbohydrates, which are in white breads, pastas, and rice whenever possible.

Also, pregnant people with high blood sugar may need to monitor their carbohydrate intake carefully. A person's medical team, including their obstetrician-gynecologist and a registered dietitian, can help develop an optimal carbohydrate target for each person.

Complex carbohydrates provide energy and are a good source of fiber, which is important during pregnancy.

Protein

Pregnancy is a period of rapid growth and development. As a result, getting the optimal amount of protein is critical.

During pregnancy, it is important to focus on a range of protein sources as part of a balanced diet.

The following are good plant-based sources of protein:

- plant-based protein powders, such as pea protein powders

- tofu and soy products
- beans, lentils, legumes, nuts, seeds, and nut butters

Animal-based protein, from chicken, fish, beef, or eggs, for example, can also be a part of a healthy pregnancy diet, and these contain all essential amino acids.

Fats

Fats are an integral part of any healthy diet and play a key role during pregnancy. However, the types of fat are important. For example, getting omega-3 polyunsaturated fatty acids is critical during pregnancy.

Additionally, high intakes of saturated fat can increase the risk of pregnancy complications.

A person can safely consume some saturated fats during pregnancy, but for optimal health, they should have unsaturated fats more often.

Learn about the differences between saturated and unsaturated fats.

Examples of foods rich in polyunsaturated fats include:

- fatty fish, such as salmon, herring, and trout

- flaxseeds and sunflower seeds
- walnuts

Fiber

Whole grain foods such as oats, brown rice, beans and lentils, fruit, and vegetables are rich in fiber. These foods contribute to overall gut health and can help people feel fuller for longer.

Having a diet high in fiber can also reduce the risk of developing complications associated with pregnancy, such as hemorrhoids and constipation.

Nutrient needs during pregnancy

A person needs more water- and fat-soluble vitamins during pregnancy and lactation. This includes folate, choline, and vitamins B12, A, and D, among others.

Doctors typically advise people to take prenatal supplements before, during, and after pregnancy in order to maintain healthy nutrient levels and support their bodies through postnatal recovery.

Iron and pregnancy

Iron makes up a significant part of hemoglobin. Hemoglobin is the oxygen-carrying pigment and main protein in red blood cells.

During pregnancy, the amount of blood in the body increases by almost 50%. Trusted Source. To make the additional hemoglobin in this blood, the body needs more iron.

If iron stores are inadequate, a pregnant person may develop anemia. This increases the risk of:

- tiredness, irritability, and depression
- preterm delivery
- a low weight for the baby
- stillbirth

Also, if anemia develops later in the pregnancy, there is a higher risk of the person losing blood when they give birth.

The following foods are rich sources of iron:

- lean meats
- poultry
- salmon
- legumes
- dark green vegetables

Foods to avoid

To help prevent illnesses and other complications during a pregnancy, avoid:

- Seafood that contains mercury: Avoid shark, swordfish, and marlin, or keep the intake to an absolute minimum.
- Uncooked or partially cooked meats: Opt for thoroughly cooked meats.

- Uncooked shellfish: This is due to a risk of bacterial or viral contamination, which can cause food poisoning.

- Raw eggs: Avoid these and any foods that contain them.

- Soft, mold-ripened cheese: Cheeses such as brie and camembert carry a risk of Listeria contamination. Listeria is a group of bacteria that can cause potentially fatal infections in pregnant people and their babies.

Should pregnant people completely stop drinking alcohol?

There is no known safe amount of alcohol during pregnancy. It is safest to drink none at all.

Alcohol in the blood passes to the fetus via the umbilical cord, and too much exposure to alcohol can seriously undermine fetal development.

Also, there is a risk that the baby will develop a fetal alcohol spectrum disorder. This can result in vision or hearing problems, issues with attention, and low body weight, among other complications.

Should pregnant people avoid caffeine?

Consuming too much caffeine during pregnancy is associated with an increased risk of miscarriage, fetal development issues, and a low birth weight.

A caffeine intake as low as 100–200 milligrams (mg) per day could have a negative effect on fetal development. The underlying reasons for this remain unclear.

Many foods and drinks other than coffee contain caffeine. Examples include some sodas, energy drinks, chocolate, and teas. Some cold and flu remedies also contain caffeine. A doctor, nurse, or pharmacist can provide more guidance about which medicines are safe.

Weight gain

Gaining the right amount of weight during pregnancy is important for the baby's health. The best amount depends on a person's body mass index (BMI). We give more information below.

However, these are only recommendations. A doctor can provide specific targets for each person based on their health.

BMI of less than 18.5	28–40 pounds (lb)	50–62 lb
BMI of 18.5–24.9	25–35 lb	37–54 lb
BMI of 25–29.9	15–25 lb	31–50 lb
BMI of more than 30	11–20 lb	25–42 lb

Supplements

A person needs more of almost all the water- and fat-soluble nutrients during pregnancy. As a result, medical professionals recommend taking prenatal supplements before, during, and after a pregnancy to support health and recovery.

A well-rounded prenatal supplement contains all the necessary nutrients. These include, but are not limited to:

- folate
- choline
- vitamin B12
- iron
- vitamin D
- vitamin A
- magnesium

Iron

A pregnant person should be consuming 27 mg of iron per day. Most people can get enough from a healthy diet. However, supplements can help.

Folate

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), a person should consume 400 mcg (micrograms) of folic acid per day up to the 12th week of pregnancy.

Vitamin D

Studies estimate that 18–84% Trusted Source of pregnant people worldwide have a vitamin D deficiency.

Current guidelines state that a person requires 15 mcg, or 600 international units (IU), of vitamin D daily during pregnancy. However, some health professionals believe this target to be too low.

Some researchers have found that pregnant people need closer to 4,000 IU per day in order to maintain optimal vitamin D levels. People who are breast- or chestfeeding need around 6,400 IU per day.

Zinc

Taking zinc supplements during pregnancy may slightly reduce the risk of preterm birth. Getting 11–12 mcg per day may be enough.

Choline

Choline is important for the health of the pregnant person and their baby. Studies show that most pregnant women in the U.S. do not get the recommended 450 mg of choline per day. Many prenatal vitamins do not contain it, so getting enough from the diet, such as from eggs and shitake mushrooms, is crucial.

Vitamin A

Vitamin A, or retinol, is essential for health during pregnancy, but too much can be harmful. During pregnancy, a person should consume 750–770 mcg of retinol or retinol activity equivalents (RAE).

Vitamin A occurs in various forms. RAE measures the relative amount of the vitamin in these various forms.

One RAE is typically equivalent to:

- 1 mcg of retinol
- 12 mcg of beta carotene from food
- 2 mcg of beta carotene from supplements
- 3.33 IU of vitamin A

Omega-3s

Omega-3s are critical for fetal development and a person's overall health during pregnancy.

Increasing the intake of omega-3 polyunsaturated fatty acids during pregnancy may reduce the incidence of preterm birth. A person can do this through their diet or through supplements.

Summary

Pregnancy increases the physical demands on the body. A person can tailor their diet to meet these demands and support fetal development.

A pregnancy nutrition plan should include:

- the optimal protein intake, from plant and animal sources, such as fish, chicken, eggs, and lentils
- fiber-rich carbohydrates, from sources such as oats, sweet potatoes, and fruit
- healthy fats, from sources such as avocados, nuts, seeds, olive oil, and yogurt

In addition, a prenatal supplement can help provide the necessary nutrients for pregnancy, breast- or chestfeeding, and postnatal recovery.

Healthcare professionals recommend limiting or completely avoiding caffeine, alcohol, and undercooked meat and eggs during pregnancy.

Also, a person's religious and ethical beliefs may shape what they eat during pregnancy. It is always a good idea to consult a doctor when planning a pregnancy diet. (Courtesy: Medical News Today)

A British woman fused Hindustani and Western music in the 18th century – with the help of courtesans

By: Malini Nair

Periwigged and powdered in the prescribed Georgian fashion, Sophia Plowden is an unlikely figure in the story of 18th-century Hindustani music. She was an amateur harpsichordist, the wife of an East India Company sahib and the mother of 10. But with the aid of her collaborators, the star courtesans of Lucknow and Varanasi, she turned into one of the earliest evangelists for Indo-Western fusion music.

It was an unusual partnership, defying both political and social inequities, but one that yielded a popular mishmash of genres – the Hindustani air. Alternately referred to as Indoostanie, Induostanie, Hindoostani and Hindu air, these were short musical compositions reworked in the western idiom as instrumental or sung pieces in English.

Taranas, Punjabi tappas, Persian or Urdu ghazals, small bandishes in Hindi dialects, raginis, small set gats for sitar, anything with a repetitive tune and regular meter became a part of the experiment. Khayals and dhrupads, with their meandering patterns, were however spared.

"Have you ever met with an Indostani Song the Chorus of which is 'Tazy bat Tazy No bat No'?" Plowden asked her friend Margaret Fowke in 1785. "It is a very common one but if you could get the words and music for me I shall be much indebted – all the Notch Girls know it." The Persian kalam of Hafiz, with its infectious refrain meaning forever fresh and new, was all the rage in the courtesan circuits of Calcutta of the 1780s.

Plowden's work in collecting, transcribing and performing these Hindustani airs has been the centerpiece of research by music historians such as Ian Woodfield and Katherine Schofield. And now she stars in City Symphonies, a new documentary by filmmaker Subha Das Mollick on the music of 18th-century Calcutta, the city where the first collection of 30 airs was first published in 1789 by Irish musician William Bird – The Oriental Miscellany: Being a collection of the most favourite airs of Hindoostan, compiled and adapted for the Harpsichord.

"I wanted to tell the story of a genre that took birth in Kolkata, and was performed and published first here as well," said Mollick, whose last film Calcutta Sonata was about how the piano became integral to Kolkata's cultural landscape. "The city has forgotten its place in this musical history, and I wanted to remind it of this phase of colonisation – when the Bengalis were sequestered in Black Town even as the British experimented in White Town with Indian music from the north."

City Symphonies opens with sahibs, memsahibs and families waiting to board their ships to Calcutta. By that time, the East India Company had entrenched itself well and truly as a military and economic power, and Calcutta, with its promise of burgeoning imperial opportunities, was a tempting destination.

The film, evocatively animated by Sudipto Shankar Roy, features musical interludes by Schofield and harpsichordist Jane Chapman and an array of talented Bengali musicians such as popular singer-pianist duo Sourendra-Soumyajit. Given the jumble of historical scenarios, there is a sutradhar in the film, the actor Shivnath Mukherjee, who pieces together the story across genres and timelines.

City Symphonies draws primarily from Schofield's 2018 work titled Sophia Plowden, Khanum Jan and Hindustani Aairs, a blogpost accompanied by a podcast. In the project, Schofield and Chapman attempted to trace the origins of Plowden's song collection, which is currently housed at the Fitzwilliam Museum in Cambridge.

To understand Plowden's contributions and the vivacious music scene in the colonial pockets of northern and eastern India, it is important to go back to what the film describes as the Calcutta where there were phaetons on the streets and a harpsichord in most homes of White Town.

Musical cultures

By the time Plowden arrived with her husband in 1777, the Battle of Plassey had given the East India Company a considerable inroad into Bengal.

Using animation and music, Mollick recreates the journey of families of traders and officers across choppy oceans, large harpsichords in tow. Schofield estimates that with every ship sailing for Calcutta came five to six "lyres of the empire". The large, unwieldy predecessor of the piano was at the time the most popular domestic keyboard instrument in Europe.

Ian Woodfield, in English Musicians In the Age of Exploration, points out that the explorers and settlers of 16th and 17th century "remained aloof from the musical cultures of the new lands". So, the Hindustani airs were among the first signs that this insularity would thaw.

What led to the shift in attitudes? Other than the musical curiosity of Plowden and Fowke memsahibs aroused at the nautch parties hosted by eager-to-please Indian nobility, there were some political factors too. The East India Company had expanded into central and northern provinces, opening up new cultural experiences, explains Woodfield in his paper Hindoostanie Air, English Attempt to Understand Indian Musicbook.

With the death of Mohammed Shah in 1748, the Mughal empire was in doldrums, and musicians were moving to the more welcoming and lucrative assignments at the Awadh court. Lucknow was fast becoming the cultural capital of the north. "There were further inluxes from Kashmir and from the Afghan inhabitants of Rohilkhand," says Woodfield. "As a direct result of their having set up inland residencies in Oudh, the English were thus introduced to a wide range of northern musical forms."

In Lucknow, one of her husband's postings, Plowden came upon the songs of the scintillating courtesan from Kashmir, Khanum Jan. Full of love and longing, delivered through languishing glances and the pervasive air of seduction, they were irresistible. What if these songs, even though they lacked the harmony so essential to western music, were adapted to western music?

"It was challenging work. "Women organized the collection of songs, hired the musicians and linguists to make the transcriptions and arrangements, and performed the airs at concert," Woodfield points out.

Using her musical skills, and help from munshis for translation, Plowden started transcribing these songs using harmonised arrangements. They went into Plowden's tunebook but along with these, she also commissioned a folio of loose leaves, with text in Urdu and Persian, and beautifully illustrated with the images of musicians.

It was while she was studying these illustrated leaves – earlier mistaken for miniature paintings – that Schofield found something interesting: the text in them were the lyrics of the airs Plowden collected. This allowed her and Chapman to try and recreate how the songs must have sounded in the voices of tawaifis such as Khanum Jan and Chanam.

Plowden's airs were informally collected but many of them appeared in Bird's Oriental Miscellany a few years later. Print was still something of a male prerogative, and women's work was still not considered worthy enough of precious resources.

It is rarely acknowledged, but in a way, Plowden and Fowke opened up doors for western interrogation of Indian music systems in the following decades. In 1799 William Jones's landmark work, On the Musical Modes of the Hindus, was published. Intriguingly enough, says Mollick, the Bengali population of Calcutta had no voice in the musical experimentation. "There was so much happening musically in the Black Town, by way of classical music, folk, devotional," she said. "Bengal was developing its own form of tappa for instance. But all this music did not fall under the radar of the memsahibs who were song hunting." Clearly, racial integration could only go so far and no further. (Courtesy: Scrollin)

Beauty benefits of lemon

By: Shahnaz Husain

If you are frustrated over high cost of beauty parlours and dermatologist in treating skin and hair beauty problems than all you need to do is to squeeze out some fresh lemon juice from your own kitchen and drink lemon water daily and also apply it on your skin also. The sunny yellow fruit will provide smooth, flawless and radiant skin by removing dead cells and act as a natural lightener for hair and skin by regulating acidity and eliminating fat. Lemon is rich in Vitamin B, Vitamin C, Carbohydrates, magnesium and Phosphorus that Rejuvenates skin, absorbs the oiliness, cleans the skin pores and improves texture and condition of skin and hair.

Lemon has astringent properties which help in preventing signs of premature aging like wrinkles and fine lines and restore skin elasticity to maintain youthful appearance.

Most of us know that Lemon is a rich source of Vitamin C and have taken it at some time or other. Added to a glass of cold water, it can be most refreshing during hot and humid weather. Taken regularly, it is a preventive against colds and actually strengthens the immune system. We also add it to salads, snacks and food, because its tanginess adds to their flavour. There are a number of ways that the common lemon can be used for beauty too.

Lemon is best taken diluted, adding it to water. You can start your day with the juice of a lemon in a glass of warm water. This combination helps to keep the system flushed and aid the removal of toxins and wastes. This will also reflect on the skin, keeping it clear and glowing. Weight watchers will also find this beneficial.

As a cosmetic ingredient, lemon can be used in various ways. The only thing to remember is not to use it undiluted, as it can be harsh on the skin. On areas where the skin is thicker, lemon can be used by itself. For example, for dark elbows, rub lemon halves and then wash off with water. Over a period of time, it will cleanse the skin and lighten its colour.

Lemon can also be used as a hand lotion. Mix it with rose water and rub it into the skin of the hands. For rough hands, rub granulated sugar and the juice of a lemon together with the hands, till the sugar dissolves. Then rinse off with water. Done regularly, it will help to improve the skin texture.

Oily skins can really benefit from a lemon treatment. Dilute the juice of half a lemon in a glass of water and use this to wash your face. If it seems harsh for your skin, add more water. Gently blot the face with tissue or a clean towel, instead of wiping it.

Lemon not only helps to restore the normal acid-alkaline balance, but also reduces surface oil. This treatment can be beneficial during summer, when the skin tends to seem oilier. Some people have sensitive skins. So, if your skin burns or itches with the application of lemon-water, you should not use it.

Heavy mixed with lemon juice can be applied on the face daily. While honey moisturizes the skin, lemon juice restores the normal balance and lightens skin colour over a period of time of regular use.

For oily skin use one part of honey with two parts lemon juice. For normal and dry skin, use honey and lemon juice in equal quantities.

Lemon can also be used as a hair rinse. You can add lemon juice to a mug of water and use it as a last rinse, after your shampoo. You can even add it to "tea water".

Boiled used tea leaves in enough water and cool the liquid. Add the juice of one lemon and use it as a last rinse. This helps to add shine to the hair.

Due to its many beneficial properties, lemon has been used as an ingredient to formulate creams and lotions for skin care. It has been used, along with aloe vera to formulate cleansing gels, helping to get rid of dirt and pollutants, without disturbing the normal acid-alkaline balance.

A lemon-turmeric cream has been used as a pre-bath cream and also a soap substitute, for people with dry, dehydrated and sensitive skins. Lemon is a powerful natural cleanser.

When nature has provided us with ideal cosmetic ingredients, why should we use chemicals and synthetic substances? In fact, the human body responds well to natural substances, while it has an in-built resistance to synthetic ones. 12-year-old student opens fire at a school in Finland, killing one and wounding 2 others

HELSINKI, April 2: A 12-year-old student opened fire at a secondary school in southern Finland on Tuesday morning, killing one and seriously wounding two other students, police said. The suspect was later arrested.

Heavily armed police cordoned off the lower secondary school, with some 800 students, in the city of Vantaa, just outside the capital, Helsinki, after receiving a call about a shooting incident at 09:08 a.m. Police said both the suspect and the victims were 12 years old. The suspect was arrested in the Helsinki area later Tuesday with a handgun in his possession, police said.

Police told a news conference that one of the wounded students had died. The other two were seriously wounded, said Chief of Police Ilka Koskimäki from the Eastern Uusima Police Department.

Finnish Prime Minister Petteri Orpo posted on X that he was "deeply shocked" over the shooting. In the past decades, Finland has witnessed two major deadly school shootings.

In November 2007, a 18-year-old student armed with a semi-automatic pistol opened fire at the premises of the Jokela high school in Tuusula, southern Finland, killing nine people. He was found dead with self-inflicted wounds.

Less than a year later, in September 2008, a 22-year-old student shot and killed 10 people with a semi-automatic pistol at a vocational college in Kaunajoki, southwestern Finland, before fatally shooting himself.

In the Nordic nation of 5.6 million, there are more than 1.5 million licensed firearms and about 430,000 license holders, according to the Finnish Interior Ministry. Hunting and gun-ownership have long traditions in the sparsely-populated northern European country.

Responsibility for granting permits for ordinary firearms rests with local police departments.

Following the school shootings in 2007 and 2008, Finland tightened its gun laws by raising the minimum age for firearms ownership and giving police greater powers to make background checks on individuals applying for a gun license. (AP)

NKorea fires an intermediate-range missile into its eastern waters: S Korea

SEOUL, April 2: North Korea test-fired a suspected intermediate-range ballistic missile toward waters off its eastern coast on Tuesday, South Korea's military said, as it pushes to advance its weapons aimed at remote U.S. targets in the Pacific.

South Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff said the missile was launched from an area near the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, and flew about 600 kilometers (372 miles) before landing in the sea between the Korean Peninsula and Japan.

Lee Sung Joon, spokesperson of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the launch likely followed up on a North Korean test in March of a solid-fuel engine built for a new intermediate-range hypersonic missile it has been developing. If perfected, such weapons could reach the U.S. Pacific military hub of Guam and beyond, experts say.

Lee didn't specify why the South Koreans were assessing the missile as an IRBM or whether it was flown at less than its capacity, but said the North Koreans were likely experimenting with new warhead technologies.

Japan's Defense Ministry gave more details in its assessment, saying the missile flew about 650 kilometers (403 miles) while reaching a maximum altitude of 100 kilometers (62 miles) before landing in waters outside of Japan's exclusive economic zone. The Japanese military didn't immediately say whether it assessed the missile as intermediate range or something else.

Hours after the launch, Seoul's Defense Ministry announced that South Korea, the United States and Japan conducted a combined aerial exercise above waters near Jeju island that involved at least one nuclear-capable U.S. B-52 bomber.

The United States in recent months has been increasing its deployment of strategic assets to the region, also including aircraft carriers and missile-firing submarines, in a show of force against North Korea. The South Korean ministry said Tuesday's training, which also involved the three countries' fighter jets, was aimed at enhancing their response capabilities against North Korean nuclear and missile threats.

It was the North's first known launch event since March 18, when North Korean leader Kim Jong Un supervised a live-fire drill of artillery systems designed to target South Korea's capital.

Japan's coast guard shared an assessment of the country's Defense Ministry that the missile has already landed but still urged caution for vessels passing the area.

Japanese Prime Minister Fumio Kishida told reporters that no damage related to the missile has been reported. He said North Korea's frequent missile launches "threaten the peace and safety of not only Japan but also the region and the international security."

Tensions in the region have risen since 2022 as Kim used Russia's invasion of Ukraine as a distraction to accelerate his testing of missiles and other weapons. The United States and South Korea have responded by expanding their combined training and trilateral drills involving Japan and sharpening their deterrence strategies built around strategic U.S. assets.

There are concerns that North Korea could further dial up pressure in an election year in the United States and South Korea.

Following the March 19 test of the solid-fuel IRBM engine, Kim said the strategic value of such weapons would be just as important as his intercontinental ballistic missiles targeting the U.S. mainland.

In recent years, North Korea has been focusing on developing more weapons with built-in solid propellants. Those weapons are easier to move and hide and can be made to launch quicker than liquid-propellant missiles, which need to be fueled before launch and cannot stay fueled for long periods of time. Those killed in the incident in central Gaza's Deir Al-Balah included Palestinians and a dual citizen of the United States and Canada

World Central Kitchen charity halts Gaza operations after apparent Israeli strike kills 7 workers

DEIR AL-BALAH (GAZA STRIP), April 2: An apparent Israeli airstrike killed six international aid workers with the World Central Kitchen and their Palestinian driver, the charity said on Tuesday, in a potentially major setback to efforts to deliver aid by sea to Gaza, where Israel's offensive against Hamas has pushed hundreds of thousands of Palestinians to the brink of starvation.

The food charity, founded by celebrity chef Jose Andres, said it was immediately suspending operations in the region.

The source of fire late Monday could not be independently confirmed. The Israeli military expressed "sincere sorrow" over the deaths while stopping short of accepting responsibility.

Rear Adm. Daniel Hagari, the top military spokesman, said that officials are reviewing the incident at the highest levels. He says an independent investigation will be launched that "will help us reduce the risk of such an event from occurring again."

Footage showed the bodies, several wearing protective gear with the charity's logo, at a hospital in the central Gaza town of Deir al-Balah. Those killed include three British nationals, an Australian, a Polish national and an American-Canadian dual citizen, according to hospital records. The charity said the team was travelling in a three-car convoy that included two armoured vehicles.

"Despite coordinating movements with the (Israeli army), the convoy was hit as it was leaving the Deir al-Balah warehouse, where the team had unloaded more than 100 tons of humanitarian food aid brought to Gaza on the maritime route."

Erin Gore, the CEO of the charity, said "this is not only an attack against WCK, this is an attack on humanitarian organizations showing up in the most dire of situations where food is being used as a weapon of war. This is unforgivable."

Three aid ships from the Mediterranean island nation of Cyprus arrived earlier Monday carrying some 400 tons of food and supplies organized by the charity and the United Arab Emirates, the group's second shipment after a pilot run last month. The Israeli military was involved in coordinating both deliveries.

The U.S., which has provided key military and diplomatic support for Israel's offensive, has touted the sea route as a new way to deliver desperately needed aid to northern Gaza and plans to build its own floating dock, with construction expected to take several weeks.

The U.N. has said much of the population is on the brink of starvation, largely cut off from the rest of the territory by Israeli forces. Israel has barred UNRWA, the main U.N. agency in Gaza, from making deliveries to the north, and other aid groups say sending truck convoys north has been too dangerous because of the military's failure to ensure safe passage.

The UNRWA said in its latest report that 173 of its workers have been killed in Gaza. The figure does not include workers for other aid organizations.

The bodies of the aid workers have been taken to a hospital in the southern city of Rafah on the Egyptian border, according to an Associated Press reporter at the hospital.

The foreigners' bodies will be evacuated out of Gaza and the Palestinian driver's body will be handed to his family in Rafah for burial.

Australian Prime Minister Anthony Albanese confirmed that Zomi Frankcom, 44, of Melbourne, was among those killed and said his government has requested an explanation from Israel.

"This is someone who was volunteering overseas to provide aid through this charity for people who are suffering tremendous deprivation in Gaza. And this is just completely unacceptable," Albanese told reporters.

"We want full accountability for this because this is a tragedy that should never have occurred."

Poland's Foreign Ministry posted "sincerest words of sympathy" to the family of a volunteer who had offered assistance to Palestinians in the Gaza Strip, without saying how he was killed. The Foreign Ministry said it is requesting an explanation from Israel.

Britain's Foreign Office said it was aware of reports of the death of a British national in Gaza and was "urgently seeking further information."

The war began when Hamas-led militants stormed into southern Israel on Oct. 7, killing some 1,200 people and abducting around 250 hostages. Israel responded with one of the deadliest and most destructive offensives in recent history.

At least 32,845 Palestinians have been killed, around two-thirds of them women and children, according to Gaza's Health Ministry, which does not distinguish between civilians and combatants in its count. Israel blames the civilian toll on Palestinian militants because they fight in dense residential areas.

Aid groups have repeatedly called for a humanitarian ceasefire, saying it's the only way to reach people in need. The United States, Qatar and Egypt have spent months trying to broker another cease-fire and hostage release but the indirect talks between Israel and Hamas remain bogged down.

Hamas is believed to be holding some 100 hostages and the remains of 30 others after freeing most of the rest during a cease-fire in November in exchange for the release of Palestinians imprisoned by Israel. (AP)

Iran vows revenge after Israeli strike demolishes consulate in Syria

TEHRAN, April 2: Iran and one of its key proxies vowed on Tuesday to respond to a strike widely attributed to Israel that demolished Iran's consulate in the Syrian capital of Damascus and killed seven, including two Iranian generals.

Iran's state TV reported on Tuesday that the country's Supreme National Security Council, a key decision-making body, met late Monday and decided on a "required" response to the strike. The report said the meeting was chaired by President Ebrahim Raisi, but provided no further details.

Israel has repeatedly targeted military officials from Iran, which supports militant groups fighting Israel in Gaza, and along its border with Lebanon. Monday's strike in Damascus signaled an escalation because it struck an Iranian diplomatic mission.

It was not clear if Iran would respond itself, risking a dangerous confrontation with Israel and its ally the United States, or if it would continue to rely on proxies, including Lebanon's Hezbollah militia and Yemen's Houthi rebels.

The airstrike in Syria killed Gen Mohammad Reza Zahedi, who led the elite Quds Force in Lebanon and Syria until 2016, according to Iran's Revolutionary Guard. It also killed Zahedi's deputy, Gen. Mohammad Hadi Hajriahmi, and five other officers.

Hezbollah said Tuesday that Zahedi played a crucial role in helping "develop and advance the work" of the group in Lebanon. "This crime will certainly not pass without the enemy receiving punishment and revenge," Hezbollah said in a statement. Since the outbreak of the war in Gaza nearly six months ago, those proxies have stepped up attacks, leading to near daily cross-border exchanges between Hezbollah and Israel, and frequent Houthi attacks on Red Sea shipping. Hamas, which rules Gaza and attacked Israel on October 7, is also backed by Iran.

Israel, which rarely acknowledges strikes against Iranian targets, said it had no comment on the latest attack in Syria, although a military spokesman blamed Iran for a drone attack early Monday against a naval base in southern Israel.

Israel has grown increasingly impatient with the daily exchanges of fire with Hezbollah, which have escalated in recent days, and warned of the possibility of a full-fledged war. Houthi rebels have also been launching long-range missiles toward Israel, including on Monday.

Iran's official news agency IRNA said Tuesday that Iran relayed an important message to the United States late Monday and that it called for a meeting of the UN Security Council. The message to Washington was delivered through a Swiss envoy in Tehran; Switzerland looks after US interests in Iran.

IRNA said Iran holds the United States, Israel's closest ally, responsible for the strike. (AP)

Sri Lankan Cabinet did not discuss Katchatheevu issue: Cabinet spokesman

COLOMBO, April 2: Sri Lanka's Cabinet has not discussed the Katchatheevu issue so far as it was never raised, a government spokesman said here on Tuesday, after India's ruling BJP blamed the Congress Party for ceding the tiny island to Colombo in 1974.

"The Cabinet did not discuss it as it was never raised," Bandula Gunawardena, the Cabinet spokesman and minister of information told reporters here today.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday cited a media report to assert that new facts reveal that the Congress Party "callously" gave away Katchatheevu island to Sri Lanka.

External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar also slammed the Congress Party and ruling Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK) over the Katchatheevu island issue. On Monday, Jaishankar claimed that prime ministers from the Congress displayed indifference about Katchatheevu island as if they did not care and gave away Indian fishermen's rights despite legal views to the contrary.

Citing details of the agreements between India and Sri Lanka first in 1974 and then in 1976, he said a recurring theme is the indifference shown by the central government and prime ministers of the day about the territory of India.

Meanwhile, senior Congress leader P Chidambaram has said that Katchatheevu was ceded to Sri Lanka to maintain good relations and to save the lives of lakhs of Tamils.

Chidambaram, a former Union Home Minister, wondered why the Prime Minister was raking up an issue that was settled in 1974.

That year, the Indira Gandhi government, to maintain good relations with Sri Lanka and to help lakhs and lakhs of Tamils there, negotiated with the island nation's government.

Following negotiations, a settlement was made on Katchatheevu, a very small island of about 1.9 sq km, and India acknowledged Katchatheevu as belonging to Sri Lanka, he said.

In return, six lakh Tamils were allowed to come to India. "They have come here, their families are here, they have got full freedom, they are breathing free air. Their children and grandchildren are here. The issue was closed 50 years ago," Chidambaram said. (PTI)

Senegal prepares to swear in former opposition figure, recently freed from prison, as new president

DAKAR, April 2: Senegal prepared to inaugurate Bassirou Diomaye Faye as its new president on Tuesday, completing the previously little-known opposition figure's dramatic ascent from prison to the palace in recent weeks.

Faye was released from prison less than two weeks before the March 24 election, along with popular opposition figure Ousmane Sonko, who backed him, following a political amnesty announced by the outgoing president. It will be the former tax inspector's first time in elected office.

Presidents from across West Africa and representatives from the U.S. and Europe are attending Tuesday's ceremony.

Faye, 44, campaigned on promises to clean up corruption and better manage the country's natural resources. His victory was seen as reflecting the will of young people frustrated with widespread unemployment and former colonial ruler France, seen by critics to be using its relationship with Senegal to enrich itself. In his first speech as president-elect, Faye promised to fight corruption and reform the economy. Sonko, who is expected to have a prominent role in the new administration, named Faye to run in his place after being barred from the election for a prior conviction.

"I think the first challenge is the formation of his government," said Alioune Tine, founder of the Senegalese think tank Afrikajom Center. "This will be the first concrete message he sends to the Senegalese people. The size, diversity and profiles will be analyzed with a fine-tooth comb, to see if they meet the demand for a break with the past."

The election tested Senegal's reputation as a stable democracy in a region that has experienced coups and attempted coups.

It followed months of unrest ignited by the arrests last year of Sonko and Faye, and concerns that the president would seek a third term in office despite constitutional term limits. Rights groups said dozens were killed in the protests and about 1,000 people were jailed.

Faye was arrested for alleged defamation last year, while Sonko faced a number of charges, including a prolonged legal battle that started when he was accused of rape in 2021. He was acquitted of the rape charges but was convicted of corrupting youth and sentenced to two years in prison last summer. He was later disqualified from the ballot over a six-month suspended sentence following a different conviction on defamation charges.

Sonko's supporters say his legal troubles were part of a government effort to derail his candidacy. While Sall eventually ruled out running for a third term, he then abruptly postponed the election in February with only weeks to go, triggering another wave of protests. That move was blocked by the country's constitutional court and the election was eventually held weeks later in March. (AP)

Polling underway for 30 vacant Senate seats in Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, April 2: Polling was underway on Tuesday in Pakistan to elect 30 senators after their seats in the upper house of Parliament became vacant last month.

At least 52 members of the Senate fell vacant in March after the incumbents retired after a six-year term. The Senate comprises 96 members, including 23 each from four provinces and four from the federal capital region of Islamabad. Those from provinces are elected by the respective provincial assemblies while the National Assembly elects one Senator from the Islamabad region.

The Senate is a continuous body as half of its members retire after three years and new ones are elected.

The Election Commission of Pakistan (ECP) had announced plans to hold polls on 48 seats as four seats of senators who were elected from tribal regions were abolished after the region was merged with the Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa province of the country.

Before the merger, eight senators were elected from the federally administered tribal areas called Fata.

Already 18 senators were elected unopposed, including all 11 senators from the Balochistan province and the rest from Punjab and Sindh.

Polling began at 9 am and will continue till 4 pm without any break.

Polling was being held at the National Assembly hall for the election of two senators.

Ishaq Dar of the Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N), part of the ruling coalition, and Raja Ansar Kayani of Sunni Ittehad Council (SIC), a major opposition party, are vying for the technocrat seat while for the general seat, the competition is between Rana Mahmood ul Hassan of Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP), supporting the ruling coalition, and Farzand Hussain Shah of Sunni Ittehad Council (SIC).

In Punjab, voting was being held on two women and technocrats seats each and one minority seats of women in the province.

In Sindh, polling was going on for 12 seats including seven general seats, two women, two technocrats/Ulema and one non-Muslim seat in the province.

Meanwhile, in KP province polling for elections on 11 senate seats could not be started due to controversy over the oath-taking of members elected on reserved seats.

Stakes are high as the ruling alliance of PML-N and PPP is expected to gain two-thirds majority in the upper house, which will play a crucial role in case of any amendment in the constitution as a two-thirds majority is needed in both houses for the same. (PTI)

SDF banking on Bhaichung Bhutia's popularity, young candidates to win Sikkim assembly polls

SDF garners votes highlighting anti-incumbency factor, apprehension on dilution of Sikkim's special status under Article 371 (F) of Constitution

GANGTOK, April 2: The opposition Sikkim Democratic Front (SDF) led by five-time former chief minister Pawan Kumar Chamling is banking on former Indian footballer Bhaichung Bhutia's popularity and young candidates in most assembly constituencies to return to power in the Himalayan state.

The SDF also wants to utilise the anti-incumbency factor against the ruling Sikkim Krantikari Morcha (SKM) and fear among local people that the special status of Sikkim under Article 371 (F) of the Constitution and its old laws will be diluted if either the SKM or BJP come to power in the northeastern state, to win votes.

Elections to the 32-member Sikkim assembly and the lone Lok Sabha seat in the state will be held on April 19.

The SDF, which ruled the Himalayan state for 25 years from 1994 to 2019, lost to Prem Singh Tamang-led SKM in the last assembly elections. To give the SKM a tough fight in the assembly polls, Chamling roped in former India football captain Bhaichung Bhutia, a popular person in the Himalayan state to chart a new course in state politics.

45-year-old Bhutia buried all his differences with the SDF supremo and merged his party, Hamro Sikkim with the SDF.

A grateful Chamling immediately rewarded the former footballer with the post of the SDF vice-president and party ticket to contest the assembly elections.

Bhutia has started canvassing for the SDF supremo and requesting the people of the state to give Chamling one more term as chief minister. "Chamling has leadership skills and vision to take Sikkim on the path of development and prosperity," Bhutia said. "With Sikkim being a strategically important state, it needs to maintain peace and tranquility and for that it must have a leader who can maintain the fragile social order and protect the rights and socio-economic and cultural ethos of the indigenous people comprising Lepcha, Bhutia and Nepalis," the former India footballer said.

Both Chamling and Bhutia have been stoking the fear among the local people that the special status of Sikkim and its old laws will be diluted if either the SKM or BJP come to power alone or through a post-alliance. Under Article 371F, Sikkim has been granted several benefits such as Sikkimese people has the right to own land and get state government jobs. They are also exempted from paying income tax.

Exuding confidence that the electorate of Sikkim with repose faith in it at the hustings, the SDF is contesting all 32 assembly seats as well as the lone Lok Sabha seat in Sikkim in a bid for a sixth term in power.

Chamling is contesting from two assembly constituencies, Poklok-Kamrang in native Namchi district and Namcheybung in Pakyong district, while Bhutia has been given ticket to contest from Barfung (BL-Reserved) assembly constituency.

The SDF has put up young candidates in most of the assembly constituencies. It has given ticket for the lone Lok Sabha seat to the two-term MP P D Rai, a close aide of Chamling. (PTI)

TSR personnel engaged outside Tripura granted service voters' status

AGARTALA, April 2: Tripura State Rifles (TSR) personnel, who have been deployed in Delhi and Chhattisgarh, are eligible to exercise their franchise as 'service voters' for the first time in the elections to two Lok Sabha constituencies and a by-poll to an assembly segment in the northeastern state, a poll official said on Tuesday.

Around 1,500 TSR personnel, including officers will be treated as service voters and this tag will enable them to cast their votes in the upcoming polls, he said.

TSR personnel, who were deployed outside the state, could not exercise their franchise in last year's assembly elections as they were not treated as service voters then, the official said.

Additional chief electoral officer, S Bhandopadhyay said the Election Commission of India (ECI) has approved the enrolment of TSR personnel, engaged in duties in Delhi and Chhattisgarh, as 'service voters' and advised the office of the CEO of Tripura to take initiatives to make a list of these security persons.

CPI(M) state secretary Jitendra Chaudhury has recently written to the EC, requesting the poll panel to consider Tripura State Rifles jawans working outside the state as service voters.

"All TSR personnel, now engaged in Delhi and Chhattisgarh, are being facilitated to be enrolled as service voters. A report indicating the action taken in this regard was received from the police authority," the additional CEO told PTI.

Members of the armed and paramilitary forces of the Centre are normally granted service voters status so that they can cast their votes. They exercise their franchise through electronically transmitted postal ballots.

Polls to the Tripura West Lok Sabha constituency and by-election to the Rammagar assembly will be held on April 19 while the Tripura East parliamentary seat will go to poll on April 26.

The CPI(M) state secretary has thanked the EC and the state election authority for their prompt action to ensure the democratic rights of those TSR personnel. (PTI)

Arunachal Cong releases manifesto with focus on healthcare, education, jobs

ITANAGAR, April 2: Opposition Congress in Arunachal Pradesh on Tuesday released its manifesto ahead of the simultaneous Lok Sabha and assembly polls in the state, focusing on the health and education sectors, besides promising jobs for youths.

Releasing the manifesto, Pradesh Congress Committee president Nabam Tuki said it was drafted after due consideration of the views, opinions and grievances of the people.

The northeastern state will go to simultaneous polls for two Lok Sabha and 50 assembly constituencies in the first phase on April 19.

The ruling BJP has already won 10 seats in the 60-member assembly, unopposed. Though the Congress had fielded 34 candidates for the assembly polls this year, only 19 candidates remain in the fray after several nominees refrained from filing nominations and others withdrew their papers.

Tuki, who is contesting against Union earth sciences minister Kiren Rijiju from the Arunachal West Parliamentary seat, asserted that the Congress stands for "giving power to people".

"The Congress has played an important role in the political evolution of Arunachal Pradesh and has been sensitive to its tribal culture and ethos. The people of the state have always placed their confidence in the party," he said.

According to the manifesto, the party will upgrade all government primary and middle schools to residential schools with hostel facility, and construct model schools in every district in line with the Jawahar Novodaya Vidyalaya and Kendriya Vidyalaya.

"We will provide compulsory stipend to APST students from preparatory to Class 12 level in all government and private schools in the state, besides enhancement in students' stipends, regulation of fees in private institutions and regularisation of SSA teachers," Tuki said.

In the health sector, the Congress said it would fill vacancies of staff and doctors in all government hospitals if the party returns to power in the state. The manifesto also talks about regularising contractual nursing staff within a year, establishment of super speciality hospitals in every district headquarters and enhancement in the chief minister's health insurance scheme.

Other promises include regularisation of contractual and contingency employees, job guarantee for youths after obtaining skill development training, a new law to curb paper leaks in competitive examinations, enhancement of minimum wages for labourers and cash incentives for registered farmers.

The grand old party also assured people about minimum support price for agriculture and allied products, and implementation of the Forest Rights Act (FRA) 2006 in the "right earnest". (PTI)

Govt showing 'weak-kneed' approach towards China: Cong on Arunachal row

ITANAGAR, April 2: The Congress on Tuesday criticised the BJP government for its "weak" response to China "renaming" 30 places in Arunachal Pradesh, saying those espousing "misplaced muscularity" on the Katchatheevu issue are "scared" of even mentioning China over its aggression.

India on Tuesday outrightly rejected as "senseless" China's actions and asserted that assigning "invented" names does not alter the reality that Arunachal Pradesh "is, has been, and will always be" an integral part of India.

Union external affairs minister S Jaishankar had on Monday said nothing will be gained by changing the names. "If I change the name of your house, will it become mine? Arunachal Pradesh was an Indian state, is an Indian state and will remain so in the future," he had said.

Congress senior spokesperson Manish Tewari said the "strange" statement of Jaishankar only shows the weakness of the government. "It has been such a weak and inflexible response to China's cartographic aggression in Arunachal Pradesh, that it has changed the names of 30 places. Such a weak response does not suit the Government of India and especially does not suit the foreign minister of India," he said. Tewari asked how much land is in control of China after May 2020. He also questioned why the government "did not get it vacated" and was instead resorting to "deflections and deceptions" on the issue.

He also asked the ruling party not to bring the issue of national security, including Katchatheevu, within the realm of its partisan politics. "Those who have been espousing muscularity about Katchatheevu, it is unfortunate and regrettable that they are scared of even uttering the word, 'China,'" he told reporters at a press conference.

The Congress leader condemned what he called the "disinformation campaign" launched by the government against former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on the issue of Katchatheevu island. "Nothing can be more ridiculous than even to think that a Prime Minister who divided Pakistan into two parts and did not care about the threats from the United States and other Western powers would concede any territory to any other country," he said.

Tewari said the Government of India has consistently and continuously shown a "weak-kneed" approach towards China, pointing out that even after about four years of the intrusion in the Galwan Valley, the government is yet to come out with any response and clarification.

He said that the then SSP Leh had in January 2023 presented a research paper at the annual conference DGPs/IGPs and given in writing that India did not have access to 26 patrolling points out of 65 joint patrolling posts, which were under Chinese occupation.

"One and a half years have passed and the government has not reacted about what a senior officer of the government revealed," he claimed and said, "Why such silence when it comes to China?" He said that despite the opposition parties raising the matter on several occasions in both houses of parliament, "neither the Prime Minister nor the foreign minister uttered a single word about Chinese intrusion".

"What bigger proof can be there that this government is not sensitive about India's unity and integrity?" he said. (PTI)

ENPO writes to EC, conveys its decision not to take part in LS poll process

KOHIMA, April 2: The Eastern Nagaland Peoples' Organisation (ENPO), which has been demanding a separate state carved out of Nagaland, has written to the Election Commission of India (ECI), stating that it will abstain from the upcoming Lok Sabha poll process.

In a letter to the ECI through the chief electoral officer of the northeastern state, the (ENPO), the apex body of seven Naga tribes of the region, said its members have collectively decided not to take part in the ensuing parliamentary polls.

"The people of eastern Nagaland under the aegis of ENPO had on March 19 reaffirmed its commitment to the 'Chenmoho Resolution', wherein it was further reaffirmed and resolved not to participate in any central and state elections against the failure to settle the creation of frontier Nagaland territory (FNT) as offered and assured by the Union ministry of home affairs on December 7, 2023 to be settled before the announcement of the model code of conduct ahead of the Lok Sabha elections by the ECI," the ENPO letter said.

Emphasising that the decision is "not intended as an act of defiance against the electoral machinery or the principles of democracy", the ENPO said it is "rather a principled stance taken within the framework of the Constitution of India" and is aimed at drawing attention to the legitimate grievances and aspirations of the people of eastern Nagaland.

The ENPO has been demanding a separate state since 2010, claiming that the six districts in the eastern part of Nagaland have been neglected for years.

"We remain hopeful that the Government of India will heed our concerns and take concrete steps towards addressing the longstanding issue of the frontier Nagaland territory," the organisation said on Monday.

Polls to the lone Lok Sabha seat in Nagaland will be held on April 19. The Nagaland cabinet and legislators of the eastern region of the state have recently appealed to the ENPO to take part in the ensuing Lok Sabha elections. (PTI)

Women vendors declare non-participation in ensuing LS polls

IMPHAL, April 2: Women vendors of Khairamband Keithel, the iconic all-women-run markets, in Imphal on Tuesday declared non-participation in the ensuing Lok Sabha elections as voices of denouncement against holding of the elections without resolving the 11-month old crisis in Manipur get louder.

Local women organizations, particularly in the violence affected fringe areas of the valley districts, have been voicing against the holding of elections before resolving the crisis rocking the state since May 3 last year.

While condemning the holding of the elections, the women bodies declared to boycott any election related activities.

Women vendors of Khwarimband Keithel under the aegis of Manipur Keithel Phambi Apunba Lup declared that they will stay away from participating in all the activities related to the ensuing Lok Sabha elections.

Addressing a press conference held at Khwarimband women market on Tuesday, general secretary of the body Yunnam Ibeiyaima decried the holding of the elections amid the ongoing crisis. She demanded that the prevailing 11-month old crisis that has been rocking the state should be resolved first before holding the elections. (NNN)

Cong to be extinct, communists will find place in museums: Tripura CM

AGARTALA, April 2: Tripura chief minister Manik Saha on Tuesday claimed that the communists will be found in museums in the days to come, while the Congress will become extinct.

The Communist Party of India (Marxist)-led Left Front had governed the northeastern state between 1978 and 1988 and again from 1993 to 2018. In between, the Congress was in power for five years.

"Since the BJP came to power in Tripura (in 2018), the communists are losing their ground and grabbed the hand of the Congress, another party whose misuse affected the people," Saha said.

The Congress will soon become extinct, the chief minister said at an election rally at Chakmaghat in Khowai district.

Attacking the Left party, he said, "We may not be there but it is for sure that they (CPI(M)) will find a place in museums and the people will have to visit museums to know about them".

Saha also slammed the INDIA bloc for criticising the Tipra Motha for joining the BJP-led alliance before the Lok Sabha elections.

"The CPI(M) and Congress had tried to rope in Tipra Motha before the elections but they could not succeed. I used to talk to Tipra Motha chief Pradyot Kishore Debbarma and exhorted him not to fall into the trap of the opposition and finally, he chose the right path," he said.

The tribal-based Tipra Motha bagged 13 seats in the 60-member assembly in last year's election and became the main opposition party. It, however, joined the Manik Saha government last month and two of its MLAs became ministers.

Laying emphasis on amity between tribals and non-tribals, Saha urged the BJP's two allies - Tipra Motha and IPFT - to continue with the electoral understanding with the saffron camp for the next 50 years to make Tripura a developed state. (PTI)

USTM signs MoU with MBSI

MBSI confers 'Life Time Devotion Award' on USTM vice-chancellor GD Sharma

HT Bureau GUWAHATI, April 2: The Microbiologists Society, India (MBSI) on Tuesday signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the University of Science and Technology Meghalaya (USTM).

The MoU was signed during the two-day national conference on 'Bio-resource and Sustainability: Current Trends and Future Prospects' that began at the university campus in Khanapara on Tuesday. The conference was organised by the department of applied biology of the university in association with MBSI.

The MBSI also conferred the 'Life Time Devotion Award' on GD Sharma, vice chancellor of the USTM during the national conference. A few topics of the plenary sessions of the national conference included 'Role of ICMR-Regional Medical Research Centre North East for NER Regions', 'Drug development in the Current Scenario and How to Apply for Investigational New Drug (IND) Applications' and 'Understanding Emerging Contaminants in Soil and Water: Modern Strategies for Effective Cleanup, Targeted Delivery of Pharmaceutically Active Components through Ethosomal Formulations'. Two books were also released during the inaugural session of the event.

Receiving the award, GD Sharma said, "This prestigious award is dedicated to the students of microbiology in Northeast India, who have immensely contributed to the field. Learning is a continuous process; there is a lot of opportunity in the field of microbiology in India".

Addressing the gathering, president of MBSI, AM Deshmukh said, "Although Meghalaya, Nagaland, Arunachal Pradesh and Mizoram are parts of the Northeast, in terms of bio-resources and bio-diversity the area is central to India as much of biodiversity is seen in this region." "The topic of the conference on 'sustainability' is very significant and we have to see whether our development is sustainable and our tools are eco-friendly," he further said. Director of ICMR-Regional Medical Research Centre, NE, Dibrugarh, Kalimathusamy Natarajaseenivasan said that the founder of USTM suffered a lot during his young age, which has prompted him to provide education to the poor communities. Meanwhile, professor of the department of pharmacology of PGIMER, Chandigarh, Bikash Medhi said that India contributes less than four per cent of research publications of the world despite the considerable number of higher educational institutions. He said that collaboration and exchange of ideas need to happen extensively. The welcome address was delivered by Deboja Sharma, associate professor and head of the department of applied biology of USTM. The vote of thanks was extended by Yugal Kishore Mahanta, assistant professor and convener of the conference.

Arunachal inalienable integral part of India, asserts CM Khandu

ITANAGAR, April 2: Chief minister Pema Khandu on Tuesday asserted that Arunachal Pradesh is an inalienable integral part of India and termed Beijing announcing Chinese names for 30 more places in the state as "another gimmick".

Khandu also said proud citizens and patriots of Arunachal Pradesh are rejecting such antics from China.

"Another gimmick from China. Being a proud citizen of Bharat and a native of Arunachal Pradesh, I strongly condemn this act of naming of places within Arunachal Pradesh, which has been an inalienable integral part of India," he said in a statement.

The Union government on Tuesday outrightly rejected as "senseless" China renaming some places in Arunachal Pradesh, and asserted that assigning "invented" names does not alter the reality that the state "is, has been, and will always be" an integral part of India. India's reaction came in response to Beijing announcing Chinese names for 30 more places in Arunachal Pradesh, which China claims as the southern part of Tibet.

The Chinese Ministry of Civil Affairs released the fourth list of standardised geographical names for Zangnan, the Chinese name for Arunachal Pradesh, the state-run Global Times reported on Sunday.

In April last year, India reacted sharply after Beijing had released the third list of standardised names for 11 places in Arunachal Pradesh.

The first batch of standardised names for six places in Arunachal Pradesh was released in 2017 while the second batch of 15 places was issued in 2021. (PTI)

Congress will revitalise Railways as growth engine for India: Kharge

'Railways (is) ravaged under the Modi Government'

NEW DELHI, April 2: Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge on Tuesday attacked the BJP government on the state of the Railways, alleging that it has "ravaged" the Railways by efficiency its finance, safety, and affordability.

Kharge claimed that his party will revitalise the national carrier as a growth engine for India. In a post on X, he said, "the Railways (is) ravaged under the Modi Government! Trains, getting 'trained' only for Self Promotion."

"Behind the 3D Selfie Points of Modi ji and the event-driven green flags for Vande Bharat, lies the story of absolute apathy, complete neglect and deliberate emaciation of the Railways by the BJP," he said.

Kharge claimed the Railways is still the lifeline for crores of Indians, but the Modi government "has destroyed its finances, safety, efficiency and affordability".

"No wonder, the number of mail and express trains that were punctual declined from 79 percent in 2012-13 to 69.23 percent in 2018-19 ! (CAG 2023). The Congress party will revitalise the Railways as a growth engine for India," the Congress chief said.

Posing seven questions, he asked why the BJP government not filled more than three lakh vacancies in the Railways.

"Is the BJP against SC, ST, OBC, EWS people who may avail reservation in India's largest public sector employer," he asked.

"Why has the average price per passenger per kilometre doubled from 0.32 paise per passenger-km in 2013-14 (UPA) to 0.66 paise per passenger-km in 2023? Is it not true that more than 100,000 train-related deaths were reported between 2017 and 2021? (NCRB). This does not include the deadly Balasore accident (2023) which took the precious lives of almost 300 people," Kharge said.

"Is it not true that the Kavach Railway Safety anti-collision technology only covers 2.13% of the network? Why did the Modi Government withdraw the concessions for senior citizens, women and children, in an apathetic manner during the Covid pandemic? Due to this revocation, the Modi Government looted ₹ 2242 crores in a single year," the Congress president asked.

According to the CAG, he claimed that only 0.7 percent funds out of ₹ 58,459 crore were spent on track renewal and asked why it was so.

This is the reason, Kharge claimed, why the much-hyped Vande Bharat high speed trains have an average speed of just 83 kmph instead of 180 kmph claimed by the Modi government.

"Is it not true that the move to merge the Railway Budget was a way to cut its funds through the back door? Is it not true that Modi Government has unveiled a grand plan of Privatisation of the Indian Railways and incremental privatisation has already begun," he also asked. According to the National Railway Plan (2021) of the Modi government, the Leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha claimed "all freight trains will be privatised by 2031, along with 30 percent of the 750 railway stations".

"All profit-making AC coaches will also be privatised. Only loss-making second class passenger trains will be left with the railways," he said. (PTI)

Modi accuses Cong of instigating people against electoral mandate, asks them to wipe out oppn party

'Corrupt threatening and abusing me; but they can't deter me; action against each one of the corrupt will continue'

RUDRAPUR (U'KHAND), April 2: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday launched a blistering attack on Rahul Gandhi for his remark suggesting that there will be a "conflagration" in the country if he gets a third term and asked the people to wipe out the Congress from everywhere.

Addressing his first election rally in Uttarakhand, Modi said he was being threatened and abused by the corrupt but there will be even bigger action against corruption after his re-election.

"The Congress and INDI Alliance have made their intentions clear. Congress's royal family 'shehzada' (prince) has threatened there will be fire if Modi gets another term in office.

"Staying out of power has made them so desperate that they are now talking about setting the country afire. Would you let them do it? Is this the kind of language used in a democracy? Wouldn't you punish them?" Modi said.

At an INDIA bloc rally in Delhi's Ramlila Maidan on Sunday, Rahul Gandhi had said that if the BJP wins the election through "match-fixing" and changes the Constitution, then the country would be on "fire" and would not survive.

"The Congress, with its Emergency-mindset, no longer has faith in democracy. Therefore, it is busy instigating people against the electoral mandate," the prime minister alleged.

He accused the Congress of pushing the country towards instability and anarchy and asked the people to wipe it out from everywhere.

He said a big Congress leader in Karnataka recently spoke of separating south India from the country and dividing it.

But instead of punishing him, the party has given him a ticket to contest the polls, he said, apparently referring to Congress leader D K Suresh.

The prime minister also accused the Congress of insulting the country's first Chief of Defence Staff Bipin Rawat, who hailed from the hill state.

He alleged that the Congress which encouraged infiltrators was troubled the most when the BJP brought CAA to give citizenship to persecuted religious minorities from Afghanistan, Bangladesh and Pakistan.

"The Congress is sunk so deep in the morass of appeasement that it cannot think of national interest," he alleged.

He also talked about how the "weakness" of Congress governments had led to the "country's division" and the "ceding" of Kartarpur Sahib Gurudwara from Indian Sikhs.

Modi also raised the Katchatheevu island issue, holding the opposition party responsible for giving the island to Sri Lanka during its rule.

"Talking about patriotism does not suit a party like the Congress," he said.

In the 2024 general election, there are two distinct camps "of those in favour of honesty and transparency on the one side and the corrupt and dynasts (parivarwadis) on the other", Modi said.

"We are saying eliminate corruption and they are saying save the corrupt," he said referring to the Congress and other constituents of the opposition INDIA bloc.

Modi said he is being threatened and abused by the corrupt but the action against them will go on as he hears the voice of the country against corruption.

"I want to guarantee you that at the start of the third term... even bigger blow will be dealt to corruption," he said.

"Don't you think the corrupt should go to jail? The corrupt are threatening and abusing me. But they can't deter me. Action against each one of the corrupt will continue," Modi said.

He said more development work has been done in Uttarakhand over the last 10 years than in 60-65 years before that.

"In the third, your son will do one more big work. To ensure you get 24-hour electricity, zero electricity bill and also earn money from electricity, Modi has started Pradhan Mantri Surya Ghar Muft Bijli Yojana," Modi said.

He said the government is providing assistance to people to set up solar power panels on their roofs under the scheme.

Middle-class households consuming about 300 units of power on an average will not only get it free but can also earn by selling surplus solar power to the government, Modi said and asked the people to start applying for the scheme.

In Uttarakhand, Modi said, 85000 pucca houses have been given to people, water connections have been given to 12 lakh households, 5.5 lakh toilets have been built and free LPG connections have been given to more than five lakh women under the Ujjwala Yojana.

He said 35 lakh people who did not have bank accounts have their accounts now, Rs 2200 crore have been credited directly into the accounts of small farmers.

"One could wonder how so much work is being done by the Modi government. Development happens when the intentions are right. Right intentions lead to good results," he said.

Asking people to further strengthen him, Modi said India will be the third biggest economy in the world in his third term which means an increase in people's income and better employment opportunities. (PTI)

Enough, won't contest elections anymore, says CM Siddaramaiah, cites advancing age

MYSURU, April 2: Karnataka chief minister Siddaramaiah on Tuesday said he has decided not to contest in elections anymore, as he won't have the health and enthusiasm needed to work after four years with advancing age.

During the 2023 assembly polls itself, he had declared that it will be his last election, but he will continue to remain in politics.

"People in Varuna want me to contest once again for Assembly polls from there, but I have decided not to contest in elections anymore. Now I'm 77 year old, still I have four years time (assembly tenure), I will be 81-82 year-old by then. I won't have health, and I will not be able to work happily. Can I work with enthusiasm? Enough," Siddaramaiah said.

Speaking to reporters here, he said, "By 2028 (when Assembly elections are due in Karnataka), I will be 82-year-old, and I will complete 50 years in politics. In 1978, I became the taluk board member." When told he doesn't look old, he said, "I may not look old, but who can experience aging, you or me?"

Siddaramaiah during May assembly polls last year had emerged victorious in Varuna constituency, entering the Assembly for the ninth time.

Siddaramaiah, the then sitting chief minister, had lost in Chamundeshwari in 2018. He, however, won in Badami, the other constituency from where he had contested, and went on to serve as Leader of Opposition.

Making his debut in the Assembly in 1983, Siddaramaiah had got elected from Chamundeshwari on a Lok Dal Party ticket. He has won five times from this constituency and tasted defeat thrice.

After neighbouring Varuna became a constituency in 2008 following delimitation, Siddaramaiah represented it till he vacated the seat for his son Dr Yatindra in the 2018 assembly polls and went back to his old constituency of Chamundeshwari. In 2023 Yatindra returned the favour to his father by vacating the seat.

Ahead of the May 2018 Assembly polls, Siddaramaiah had said it would "most likely" be his last election.

Earlier, during the 2013 Assembly polls too, he had said that it was his last election and went on to become Chief Minister after the polls.

Amid speculations about leadership change, Siddaramaiah on Monday asked the people of his Varuna assembly segment to give the Congress candidate a lead of at least 60,000 votes in the upcoming Lok Sabha polls, to ensure that he remains in the post. (PTI)

Cong complains to EC against BJP's ad campaign

NEW DELHI, April 2: The Congress on Tuesday complained to the Election Commission against BJP's advertisement campaign, alleging it was maligning the opposition party through the use of cropped and distorted videos, and urged the poll body to take immediate action against the authors and issue instructions for recall.

The Congress also filed a complaint against what it called the BJP's "malicious attempts" to link the Congress campaign to billionaire financier George Soros.

AICC General Secretary (Communications) Jairam Ramesh said, "The party lodged a complaint against the BJP's repeated and malicious use of cropped and distorted videos to malign the INC. The ECI was requested to take immediate action against the authors of this low-level campaign, as well as issue instructions for its recall."

A delegation of party leaders comprising Salman Khurshid, Pawan Khera and Gurdeep Sap-pal on Tuesday met the Election Commission and handed over a memorandum of their complaints to them.

"The Congress Party lodged a complaint against the BJP's malicious attempts to link the Congress campaign to George Soros," Ramesh said.

"This complaint covers other examples of false propaganda that target the INC as well. Not only are these materials patently false, they are also mala fide and knowingly defamatory. The ECI was requested to take immediate action against the authors of this low-level campaign, as well as issue instructions for its recall," he said in a post on X.

The opposition party has also complained against the alleged violation of the model code of conduct for elections in Andhra Pradesh, where assembly and Lok Sabha polls are held together. It claimed posters and advertisements of state schemes were still bearing the photos of the state chief minister. (PTI)

BJP wants to replicate Russia, China-like rule, says Farooq Abdullah

JAMMU, April 2: The BJP wants to replicate Russia- and China-like rule in the country, National Conference chief Farooq Abdullah claimed on Tuesday and said the INDIA bloc has come forward to safeguard the Constitution, even at the cost of "our lives". He also targeted the Centre over the issue of the Katchatheevu island, handed over to Sri Lanka in the 1970s, and asked why the BJP-led Centre is silent on the "continuous incursion" by China in Ladakh and its claims over land in Arunachal Pradesh.

"The INDIA bloc has been formed to safeguard the Constitution because there is apprehension that the Constitution will be finished (by the BJP) ... The same thing will happen here (in India) as (Russian President Vladimir) Putin and China President (Xi Jinping) are sitting there. They (the BJP) are making attempts as they want to rule the country for life (without any opposition)," Abdullah told reporters. "INDIA will not allow this to happen and protect the Constitution given by (BR) Ambedkar, even at the cost of our lives. We will not allow this Constitution to get buried," he said. The National Conference leader was in Jammu to accompany Raman Bhalla, the Congress candidate who filed his nomination from the Jammu Lok Sabha constituency. The constituency will go to the polls in its second phase on April 26.

Bhalla - accompanied by Bharat Singh Solanki, the AICC's Jammu and Kashmir in-charge, and Pradesh Congress Committee chief Vikar Rasool Wani - took part in a roadshow before filing the papers.

The Congress and the National Conference are both constituents of the opposition INDIA bloc.

Asked to comment on Prime Minister Narendra Modi's criticism of the Congress over its decision to hand over the strategic Katchatheevu island to Sri Lanka in the 1970s, Abdullah pointed to China's alleged incursions into Ladakh and its claims over land in Arunachal Pradesh.

"How much land is with China, why are they (central government) not talking about it? China has grabbed thousands of kilometres of our land and we raised the issue in the Parliament but they did not answer. Let them reply on this first," the Srinagar MP said.

There have been "18 or 19 rounds of talks" between India and China but "what is the outcome of these talks as they (China) are continuously moving forward and even started renaming various places, which they are claiming to be their part. Why are they (BJP) not raising their voice against this?", Abdullah said. (PTI)

Bhaichung Bhutia joins Mothers Against Vaping cause to combat promotion of new-age tobacco devices

NEW DELHI, April 2: Mothers Against Vaping on Tuesday announced that former footballer Bhaichung Bhutia will support their cause of combatting the promotion of new-age tobacco devices among Indian children and youngsters.

Bhutia's endorsement adds substantial weight to the cause of Mothers Against Vaping, it said.

The group is a united front of concerned mothers that aims to combat the promotion of e-cigarettes, vapes, electronic nicotine delivery systems and heat-not-burn products among Indian youngsters.

The group said, "His (Bhutia) involvement is anticipated to amplify the impact of the cause, shedding more light on the escalating problem of new-age tobacco device usage among the country's youth."

This collaboration aims to raise awareness, garner support and foster a collective effort to protect the wellbeing of the younger generation from the hazards of these devices, they said.

Bhutia said, "I have been working with children to nurture future football talents and it is a great feeling to see their spirit on the field. So, for me, it is very disheartening that children and youngsters are falling prey to these harmful habits."

"At an age where our children should be immersed in an environment that nurtures their dreams and aspirations, it is sad to witness the havoc that these new-age tobacco devices are wrecking on their health and ultimately their lives," the former Indian football team captain said.

He also praised the efforts of Mothers Against Vaping in raising awareness, calling it "truly commendable".

"I wholeheartedly extend my support to them, so that the well-being and future of our younger generations are secured," Bhutia said.

According to Mothers Against Vaping, rising addiction among children to new-age tobacco devices is fuelled by the aggressive efforts of big tobacco companies to establish a new market and cultivate future consumers.

"These companies employ various tactics, including social media advertising, designing electronic devices with sleek technology and eye-catching aesthetics and introducing enticing flavours like strawberry or bubble gum, to appeal to children," the group said.

"This alarming trend poses a significant risk of addiction as e-cigarettes and other such devices can serve as gateway devices, potentially leading users to more harmful substances such as cocaine and heroine," it added.

Despite the comprehensive ban imposed by the Prohibition of Electronic Cigarette Act, 2019, e-cigarettes and similar new-age devices continue to proliferate, according to Mothers Against Vaping.

The use of vaping and e-cigarette devices has been linked to various harmful effects, ranging from extensive lung damage to environmental harm through improper disposal, the group said.

In response to the urgent concern posed by the proliferation of new-age tobacco devices, the group is seeking support and action from influential figures, parents, educators, influencers and policymakers. (PTI)

'Big day for democracy, Satyameva Jayate', says AAP on Sanjay Singh's bail

NEW DELHI, April 2: The Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) on Tuesday welcomed the Supreme Court's decision to grant bail to the party's Rajya Sabha MP Sanjay Singh in a money-laundering case linked to the excise policy case, calling it "big day for democracy in the country and a moment of hope".

In a joint press conference, AAP leaders claimed that the court order "exposed" that the entire liquor scam case was based on statements "extracted" from witnesses and approvers.

Singh was brought to a hospital on Tuesday morning and he is likely to be discharged on Wednesday, an official source told PTI. Singh was arrested by the Enforcement Directorate (ED) in a money laundering case linked to the now-scrapped excise policy on October 4.

"This is a big day for democracy in the country and a moment of happiness and hope," Delhi minister Saurabh Bhardwaj said in the press conference.

Atishi, also a cabinet minister in the Delhi government, said that for two years AAP leaders have been targeted in fake cases and arrested.

"In the court proceedings, two important things have come before the people -- ED had no response when the Supreme Court asked where is the money trail; and that the entire case of the ED is based on approvers' statements who were pressured to give statements against Kejriwal," she said.

Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal, who was arrested by the ED in the excise policy case, was on Monday sent to judicial custody till April 15.

Atishi earlier shared the news of Singh's bail in a post on X and said in Hindi, "Satyameva Jayate." (PTI)

9 Naxalites killed in Chhattisgarh's Bijapur; arms seized

RAIPUR, April 2: In a major anti-insurgency operation, nine Naxalites were killed in an encounter with security personnel in Bijapur district of Chhattisgarh on Tuesday, police said.

Bijapur district comes under the Bastar Lok Sabha constituency, which will go to polls in the first phase of general elections on April 19.

The gunfight took place at around 6 am in a forest near Lendra village under Gangaloor police station area, when a joint team of security personnel was out on an anti-Naxal operation, Inspector General of Police (Bastar Range) Sundarraj P told PTI.

After the exchange of fire stopped, bodies of four Naxalites were recovered from the spot along with a light machine gun, barrel grenade launchers and other arms and ammunitions, he said.

Later, five more bodies were found at the encounter site, the IG said, adding that search operation was still underway in the area.

Personnel belonging to the District Reserve Guard, Special Task Force, Central Reserve Police Force and its elite unit Commando Battalion for Resolute Action (CoBRA) were involved in the operation, he said.

Notably, Naxalites carry out the Tactical Counter Offensive Campaign (TCOC) in the summer season between March and June every year and step up their activities. A large number of attacks on security forces have taken place in the Bastar region during this period.

On March 27, six Naxalites were killed in an encounter with security forces in Basaguda area of Bijapur, police earlier said.

With the latest incident, 42 Naxalites have been killed so far this year in separate encounters with security forces in Bastar region, comprising seven districts including Bijapur, according to police. (PTI)

Disengagement, de-escalation way forward: Rajnath on eastern Ladakh

'Unconventional and asymmetric warfare, including hybrid war, will be part of the future conventional wars'

NEW DELHI, April 2: With the India-China military face-off continuing in eastern Ladakh, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Tuesday said the Indian troops are standing "firm" and the ongoing talks between the two sides for a peaceful resolution of the matter will continue as disengagement and de-escalation is the way forward.

In an address to the top commanders of the Army, Singh reaffirmed the faith of the billion-plus citizens in the force as one of the "most-trusted and inspiring" organisations in the country.

The Army commanders deliberated extensively on national security challenges along the borders with China and Pakistan and ways to boost the force's overall combat capability. The defence minister, complimenting the Army leadership for successfully taking ahead the country's "defence and security" vision to new heights, said the role of the force is very important in nation building.

In his remarks, Singh also lauded the Border Roads Organisation (BRO), saying its efforts have led to the "quantum improvement" in road communication along the western and northern frontiers.

On the current situation along the northern borders, Singh expressed full confidence that while the troops are standing firm, the ongoing talks for peaceful resolution will continue and disengagement and de-escalation is the way forward, the defence ministry said in a statement.

The Indian and Chinese troops are locked in a standoff in certain friction points in eastern Ladakh for nearly four years even as the two sides have completed disengagement from several areas following extensive diplomatic and military talks. Referring to the situation along the borders with Pakistan, Singh complimented the Army's response to cross-border terrorism, adding that the proxy war by the "adversary" continues.

The defence minister complimented the "excellent synergy" between the Central Armed Police Forces, local police and Army in tackling the menace of terrorism in Jammu and Kashmir.

"The synergised operations in the Union Territory of Jammu and Kashmir are contributing to increased stability in the region and the same should continue," he said.

Singh lauded the forces for the high standard of operational preparedness and capabilities, which he said he has always experienced firsthand during his visits to forward areas.

Delving into the complex world situation, Singh said it affects everyone globally.

"Unconventional and asymmetric warfare, including hybrid war, will be part of the future conventional wars. Cyber, information, communication, trade and finance have all become an inseparable part of future conflicts," he added.

"This necessitates that the armed forces will have to keep all these facets in consideration while planning and formulating strategies," the defence minister said. He highlighted the stellar role played by the Army in guarding the country's borders and fighting terrorism, apart from providing assistance to the civil administration in every need of the hour.

"The Army is present in every domain, from security, HADR (humanitarian assistance and disaster relief), medical assistance to maintaining the stable internal situation in the country," he said.

"The role of the Indian Army is very important in nation building as also in the overall national development," he noted.

The defence minister complimented the leadership of the Army for successfully taking ahead the country's "defence and security" vision to new heights.

He also hailed the Army's approach on the infusion and absorption of cutting-edge technology.

Singh paid tributes to all the bravehearts for making the ultimate sacrifice in the defence of the motherland. The Army Commanders' Conference is an apex-level biannual event that is held in April and October every year. The conference is an institutional platform for conceptual-level deliberations, culminating in making important policy decisions for the Army.

The commanders comprehensively deliberated upon all aspects of the existing security scenarios, the situation along the borders and the hinterland and the challenges for the present security apparatus. (PTI)

All pleas challenging Centre's ban on 23 dog breeds to be heard together: Delhi HC

NEW DELHI, April 2: Delhi High Court on Tuesday transferred to itself several petitions challenging the Centre's ban on the sale and breeding of 23 breeds of ferocious dogs.

A division bench of Acting Chief Justice Manmohan and Justice Manmeet PS Arora observed that these are "very ferocious dogs" and they are "hounding upon children".

The court said once the division bench is seized of the matter, all other similar petitions pending before single judges shall also come to it and heard together.

"Once the division bench is seized of the matter, all such cases should come here. In fact, all single judges must send their related matters here. We will summon the case files here. You file an impleadment application in the other pending PIL and we will hear you. We can't have so many PILs on this," the bench said and added that "multiple petitions on the same issue would only create complications and delay the disposal of the matter".

The Pet Lovers' Association challenged the Centre's March 12 notification on the ground that the ban has been imposed on 23 dog breeds without consulting or inviting objections and suggestions from stakeholders.

To this, the bench said, "Every dog lover or dog owner or association cannot be made a party and heard, that is impossible."

"This has happened on our directions. It can't be that we direct the central government to examine and then we say the central government can't pass such an order. We will see and examine it," it further said.

The division bench said it has already issued notice on a similar PIL and disposed of the current petition, granting liberty to the petitioner organisation to file an impleadment or intervention application in that matter.

The bench also transferred to itself the petitions pending before single judges on the same issue and listed the matter for hearing on April 9.

On March 12, the Centre directed states to ban the sale and breeding of 23 breeds of ferocious dogs, including Pitbull Terriers, American Bulldog, Rottweilers and Mastiffs, amid rising instances of pet dog attacks.

The directive issued to states and Union Territories bars people from keeping these 23 breeds of dogs as pets.

In a letter to chief secretaries of all states and Union Territories dated March 12, the Union government's Department of Animal Husbandry and Dairying also said these breeds of dogs already been kept as pets should be sterilised to prevent further breeding. (PTI)

Five IAF helicopters conduct trial landing, take-off on emergency landing strip in J&K

SRINAGAR, April 2: Five IAF helicopters, including the recently inducted US-manufactured Chinook, landed on a stretch of the Jammu-Srinagar National Highway as part of an Emergency Landing Facility drill, the first such exercise in Jammu and Kashmir, officials said on Tuesday.

With this, Jammu and Kashmir became the first Union territory to operationalise an Emergency Landing Facility (ELF). Andhra Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh and Rajasthan are the three states where these emergency landing strips are currently operational. According to the officials, two US-manufactured Chinook, one Russian-made Mi-17 and two Advance Light helicopters (ALH) of the Indian Air Force (IAF) landed on the Wanpoh-Sangam stretch of the national highway linking Kashmir with the rest of the country in the early hours of Tuesday.

The entire drill ended by 2.50 am, during which the helicopters landed at the stretch and carried an exercise of picking up troops lying on the ground, the officials said, adding the exercise was held without any problems, they said.

Work on the 3.5-km emergency landing strip was started in 2020 and completed late last year as part of a programme initiated by the IAF along with the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways for the creation of ELFs at different locations across the country. Chinook helicopters, which have a top speed of 310 kmph and a travel range of 741 km, are used for heavy lifting and the main cabin can hold over 33 fully-equipped troops. It can also be used for medical evacuation and has space for 24 stretchers. (PTI)

Farm unions to protest against decision to use corporate silos as procurement centres on April 7

CHANDIGARH, April 2: Two farmer bodies on Tuesday said they will hold demonstrations on Sunday against the decision to declare private silos as wheat procurement centres in Punjab.

The move will make grain markets redundant, the Samyukta Kisan Morcha (Non Political) and Kisan Mazdoor Morcha said, adding that they will burn effigies of both the central and Punjab government over the issue on April 7.

Apart from SKM (Non Political) and KMM, Samyukta Kisan Morcha (SKM), which spearheaded the 2020-21 farmers' agitation against the now-repealed farm laws, earlier announced that it will hold protests over the issue on April 9.

The state government, in its order on March 15, had declared 11 silos, being managed by private companies, as purchase centres in view of the Rabi marketing season that started on April 1.

A steel silo is a scientific way of storage of foodgrains and ensures better preservation in comparison to conventional storage warehouses. A silo also can act as a purchase centre where farmers can bring their crops for sale.

SKM (Non Political) and KMM are spearheading the 'Delhi Chalo' march by farmers to press the government to accept their demands which includes a legal guarantee of Minimum Support Price (MSP) for crops.

The protesting farmers who have been staying put at the Shambhu and Khanauri border points between Punjab and Haryana after their march was stopped by security forces on February 13, have also demanded the release of five arrested farmers by the Haryana police.

Addressing mediapersons here on Tuesday, SKM (Non Political) leader Jagjit Singh Dallewal condemned the decision to declare corporate silos in nine districts as procurement centres for wheat storage in Punjab.

He said the Punjab government has "acted at the behest of the Centre", claiming this was an attempt to make the 'mandis' (grain markets) redundant.

KMM leader Sarwan Singh Pandher accused the AAP government of trying to please corporations by allowing the sale, purchase and storage of wheat at private silos.

Pandher said he had "no doubt" that it was a central government policy but added that the state government could have stopped its implementation.

He urged farmers to not bring their crops to these silos for sale. Both the leaders also demanded the release of five farmers including Ravinder Singh Ravi, Amarjit Singh, both from Punjab, who were arrested during the ongoing protest.

Pandher said they will burn effigies of the Modi government and the Bhagwant Mann government on April 7 over the issue.

If their demands to rollback the decision on corporate silos and the release of the five farmers were not accepted by April 7, then they will hold a 'rail roko' agitation on April 9, Pandher said. (PTI)

Indian Coast Guard ship makes port call in Vietnam on overseas deployment to ASEAN countries

NEW DELHI, April 2: Indian Coast Guard ship Samudra Paheredar, a specialised Pollution Control Vessel, on Tuesday made a port call at Ho Chi Minh in Vietnam as part of its ongoing overseas deployment to the ASEAN countries, officials said.

This deployment is a testimony to the ICG's commitment to "bolster bilateral relationships" and "enhance international cooperation" with friendly countries, the Defence Ministry said in a statement.

"The deployment of Samudra Paheredar to the ASEAN region reflects India's shared concern and resolve towards marine pollution, promoting safety and security through maritime cooperation.

Prior to Ho Chi Minh, the vessel had visited Manila, Philippines, to demonstrate a seamless continuation of diplomatic maritime engagements in the ASEAN region," it said.

The ship is equipped with specialised marine pollution control equipment and a Chetak Helicopter in pollution response configuration, designed to contain and recover spilled oil and augment the operation.

The ICG ship is on an overseas deployment to the ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) countries -- the Philippines, Vietnam and Brunei -- from March 25 to April 12.

Samudra Paheredar, with an integral helicopter, made a port call at Ho Chi Minh as part of its ongoing overseas deployment to the ASEAN countries, the ministry said in a statement on Tuesday.

"During the three-day visit, the crew will engage in professional interactions focusing on marine pollution response, maritime search and rescue, and maritime law enforcement. The activities will also include cross-deck training, subject matter expert exchanges, sports events and passage exercise with the Vietnam Coast Guard (VCG)," it said.

The visit not only aims to strengthen ties between the ICG and VCG, but also showcases India's indigenous shipbuilding capabilities.

In addition, 25 National Cadet Corps (NCC) cadets aboard the vessel will participate in a walkathon and beach clean-up activities, officials said. Since 2015, the ICG and VCG have an existing Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) which institutionalised the cooperative engagements between the two maritime agencies, it said.

The visit of the ICG specialised vessel to these countries is in pursuance with India ASEAN initiative for marine pollution announced during the ASEAN Defence Ministers' Meeting Plus in Cambodia in 2022. (PTI)

DGCA seeks daily report from Vistara on flight cancellations

NEW DELHI/ MUMBAI, April 2: Aviation watchdog DGCA has asked Vistara to submit a daily report on flight cancellations and delays, and the situation is also being monitored by the civil aviation ministry, amid non-availability of pilots causing flight disruptions for the airline.

A day after the carrier announced reducing operations due to non-availability of crew and other operational reasons, sources on Tuesday said some commanders as well as first officers of its A320 fleet are also reporting sick to protest pay revisions due to signing of new contracts.

The Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) on Tuesday said in view of various flight disruptions of Vistara, it has asked the airline to submit daily information and details on the flights that are being cancelled and delayed.

The officials of the DGCA are also monitoring the situation to ensure compliance with requirements for providing facilities to passengers in case of flight cancellations and delays.

This is to minimise the inconvenience to passengers, the regulator said. On Tuesday, the civil aviation ministry said it is monitoring the situation of Vistara flight cancellations.

"However, flight operations are managed by Airlines themselves. Airlines have to comply with DGCA norms to ensure passenger facilitation in case of cancellation or delay of flights," the ministry said in a post on X.

Many passengers have taken to social media to complain about flight delays and cancellations.

In recent weeks, discontent has been simmering among pilots at Vistara, which is in the process of getting merged with Air India, following the new contracts wherein there are concerns that fixed pay component is getting reduced and there is more flying-linked incentive in the salary structure.

The new contracts that will bring parity between pilots of Vistara and Air India have been introduced as part of the ongoing merger process.

Vistara is a joint venture between Tata Group and Singapore Airlines.

Many first officers of Vistara's A320 fleet have been reporting sick in the past few weeks and on Monday alone, around 50 flights were cancelled and many were delayed as there were not enough pilots to operate flights.

The sources said that now some commanders of the A320 fleet are reporting sick. Vistara has a fleet of 70 planes comprising 63 aircraft from A320 family and 7 wide-body Boeing 787s. As per the summer schedule, which started from March 31, the airline is to operate little over 300 flights daily.

In a statement on Monday, Vistara said it had a significant number of flight cancellations and delays in the past few days due to various reasons, including crew unavailability.

"We have decided to temporarily reduce the number of flights we operate, to ensure adequate connectivity across our network," the airline had said and also apologised for the disruptions.

The airline has also decided to temporarily reduce the number of flights it operates, to ensure adequate connectivity across its network.

Further, the airline has deployed larger aircraft like B787-9 Dreamliner and A321neo on select domestic routes to combine flights or accommodate more customers, wherever possible.

In the ongoing summer schedule, Vistara will be operating 25.22 per cent more weekly flights at 2,324.

Sources had said, the number of flight cancellations are expected to go up and touch 70 on Tuesday. (PTI)

Benedict Cumberbatch, Olivia Colman to star in 'The War of the Roses' remake

LOS ANGELES, April 2: British stars Benedict Cumberbatch and Olivia Colman have teamed up for the upcoming remake of 1989 dark comedy "The War of the Roses".

The new take is titled "The Roses" and will be directed by Jay Roach of "Bombshell" fame, according to the entertainment news outlet Variety.

Cumberbatch and Oscar winner Colman will play a picture-perfect couple Theo and Ivy, who have successful careers, great kids and an enviable sex life.

However, when Theo suffers a professional setback, it all starts to crumble - and the downfall of the Roses is going to make Marriage Story seem like a conscious uncoupling. The script is set to be written by Tony McNamara, who penned the last two Yorgos Lanthimos films, The Favourite and Poor Things - the latter of which featured Colman in an Oscar-winning role.

Based on Warren Adler's 1981 novel of the same name, The War of the Roses was directed by Danny DeVito and produced by James L. Brooks. DeVito also starred in the film as lawyer Gavin d'Amato, who narrates the film as he relates the twisted tale of Oliver and Barbara Rose (Douglas and Turner, who DeVito starred with in Romancing the Stone). The two experience enormous financial and personal success over the course of their marriage, but their once-devoted love curdles into hatred and resentment, eventually resulting in a bitter, violent divorce that threatens to destroy both of them. The film also starred Marianne Sägebrecht, Dan Castellana, Sean Astin, and David Wohl. The film was an enormous success upon its release in 1989's holiday season, making $160 million USD worldwide on a $26 million budget, and garnered Golden Globe nominations for Best Picture and for Douglas and Turner's performances.

The War of the Roses remake has been in development since 2017. Cumberbatch will produce the film under his SunnyMarch banner, as will Leah Clarke and Adam Ackland, Colman, Ed Sinclair and Tom Carver for South of the River, Michelle Graham, and Austin Powers director Roach, who recently helmed the Apple comedy series High Desert. Jonathan R. Adler and Michael Adler, from Adler Entertainment Trust, will executive produce.

The War of the Roses remake has not yet set a release date. Stay tuned to Collider for future updates. (PTI)

Jennifer Garner's father William John Garner dies at 85

LOS ANGELES, April 2: Actor Jennifer Garner's father William John Garner has died. He was 85.

Jennifer shared the news of her father's passing in an Instagram post on Monday. No cause of death was disclosed.

William John Garner, who worked as a chemical engineer for Union Carbide, died over the Easter weekend.

My dad passed peacefully Saturday afternoon. We were with him, singing Amazing Grace as he left us (did we carry him across or scare him away valid question.)

While there is no tragedy in the death of an 85-year-old man who lived a healthy, wonderful life, I know grief is unavoidable, waiting around unexpected corners. Today is for gratitude, Jennifer wrote alongside a throwback photo of the father-daughter pair.

The 51-year-old actor said she and her family are grateful for her father's gentle demeanor and quiet strength.

For how he teased with a mischievous smile, and for the way he invented the role of all in, ever patient girl dad. We are grateful for his work ethic, leadership and faith, she added.

Garner also thanked West Virginia's Charleston Area Medical Center and City of Hope for their medical care of William John, which she noted extended Dad's life and gave him time to be in his favorite spots surrounded by daughters and grandchildren, cheering for his beloved Aggies, captaining a boat, and most of all next to his wife of 59 years, our Mom.

There is so much to say about my dad my sisters and I will never be done talking about how wonderful he was, so bear with us. But for today I share these memories with my appreciation for the kind and brilliant man, father, and grandfather he was, as well as the loving legacy he left behind, she said. (PTI)

Kriti Sanon on possibility of 'Crew' sequel: We would love to be back

NEW DELHI, April 2: Heist comedy 'Crew' is soaring high at the box office and actor Kriti Sanon says she along with co-stars Tabu and Kareena Kapoor Khan would love to reunite for a potential sequel.

'Crew' follows three air hostesses -- played by Tabu, Kareena and Kriti -- whose future seems uncertain as their airline Kohinoor is on the verge of bankruptcy, until they find a dead passenger smuggling gold biscuits.

Directed by Rajesh A Krishnan, the film has grossed Rs 70.73 crore worldwide within four days of its release. It is produced by Anil Kapoor Film & Communication Network and Balaji Motion Pictures.

Kriti said she is game for reprising the role of the nerdy dreamer Divya Rana from 'Crew', if writers Nidhi Mehra and Mehul Suri come up with a good script.

"People have been loving it. We would genuinely love to be back and do something fun. Obviously, it puts a lot of pressure on the writers... It's the audience that motivates the makers for a sequel. When they love something so much, you feel you can definitely do something next. So, hope so," the actor told PTI in an interview.

'Crew' was one of the most anticipated films of the year, courtesy its lead cast, and the success of the movie, also starring Diljit Dosanjh and Kapil Sharma, proves audiences come to the theatre to watch good content, gender no bar.

"It's nice to see the response to the content. Then, it doesn't matter if it's a man or a woman. It's just the content that was loved, something which the cinema should actually aim for... Where box office numbers don't depend on a male-centric film and it's about only content. It doesn't have to be led by a man to pull the audience to the theatre," the actor said.

'Crew', Kriti said, is a film that hasn't made in Indian cinema before as heist films in the country tend to revolve around male protagonists.

"...But we haven't seen a film with three women. Here, you have three women belonging to different generations, almost a decade apart with solid, unique roles. People also love chemistry and I am so happy about it. It's a trio that people had never imagined and that's what made it exciting," she said.

Asked about her future projects, the actor said she is yet to sign a new film because she is at a place where she doesn't want to do movies for the sake of it. She would rather bask in the success of her latest project.

"I am going to wait for something that makes me feel that I am taking it to the next level. I don't want to repeat myself. I want to do something that excites me to get out of my bed. I have been reading a lot of scripts and going for narrations and meetings. Nothing has sort of struck me enough," she added.

Kriti was last seen in 'Teri Baaton Mein Aisa Uljha Jiya' and her next release is 'Do Patti', which also marks her production debut. (PTI)

FIDE Candidates: Praggnanandhaa enters as India's best bet

TORONTO, April 2: Teen sensation R Praggnanandhaa will enter as the favourite among the three Indian participants in the Candidates chess tournament that will get underway here from Wednesday to decide the challenger for the next world championship match.

After nearly 35 years as many as three Indians – Praggnanandhaa, D Gukesh and Vidit Gujrathi – have qualified for the most prestigious event of the year that has just eight participants.

According to an expert, India is the new Russia of the chess world, as in the past such dominance was only shown by Russian players.

Praggnanandhaa, 18, starts as the rating favourite among Indians and also as the favourite of the chess buffs even though the top bracket of the world feels that all the three Indian youngsters still need time to settle among the world elite.

Fearless and psychologically sound, Praggnandhaa will likely have the assistance of eight-time Russian champion Peter Svidler for the event. One cannot help but recall that during one of the world championships Indian grandmaster P Harikrishna had assisted Svidler in his quest to be the world champion.

While Svidler could be a game-changer, it will largely depend on Praggnandhaa's form and how he adapts in this tough event, where the eight players will play each other twice.

At just 17 years, Gukesh is hailed as one of the finest talents around. The Indian is also the youngest participant in the fray and second youngest ever after Robert James Fischer – aka Bobby Fischer – to qualify for the elite event. Fischer was 16-year-old when he qualified in 1959.

That Fischer's record lasted a whopping 65 years, goes to prove what it takes to be one of the candidates and if Gukesh wins it, he will be the youngest ever to compete for the World Championship title.

Vidit Gujrathi will have his task cut out and much will depend on his form. In his last outing, probably training his sights for the candidates, the Nasik-based player did not do well at the Prague masters and slipped considerably on the rating list also. Praggnanandhaa was the first to qualify for the tournament by virtue of his silver medal performance in the last World Cup at Baku, Azerbaijan.

The Indian star went down to Magnus Carlsen in the final but since then has picked up a lot and has come around as a fierce.

Gujrathi made it thanks to a-remarkable performance in the Grand Swiss tournament at Isle of Man, UK, last year. The Indian had displayed top form in the final stages of the tournament.

For Gukesh it was touch and go but the teenager displayed steely nerves to win a spot through the rating process by winning a GM tournament in Chennai last December.

The field however is diverse with a great mix of youth and experience.

American Fabiano Caruana starts as the top seed ahead of his compatriot Hikaru Nakamura. The 20-year-old Alireza Firouzja of France is ranked third while twice challenger Ian Nepomniachtchi of Russia is the fourth seed.

Praggnanandhaa, Gukesh and Gujrathi follow these four in terms of FIDE ratings while Nijat Abasov of Azerbaijan is the last seed in the event.

The first round will commence on Thursday, at midnight IST. There will be four rest days in all. The winner not only gets to play the world championship match but will also become richer by 48000 Euros (roughly Rs. 45 lakh).

Road to the Candidates: Ian Nepomniachtchi (2758) – qualified as the previous World Championship match runner-up. R Praggnanandhaa (2747) – qualified as the 2023 World Cup runner-up.

Fabiano Caruana (USA, 2804) – qualified as the third-place finisher at the 2023 World Cup.

Nijat Abasov (AZE, 2632) – qualified as the fourth-place finisher at the 2023 World Cup after the winner, Magnus Carlsen, declined his right to participate.

Vidit Gujrathi (2747) – qualified as the 2023 Grand Swiss winner.

Hikaru Nakamura (USA, 2789) – qualified as the 2023 Grand Swiss runner-up.

Alireza Firouzja (FRA, 2760) – qualified as the best by rating on January 1, 2024.

D Gukesh (2747) – qualified as the 2023 FIDE Circuit winner. (PTI)

Indian junior girls' coach advocates for extended training camps with int'l boxers

ROHTAK, April 2: Month-long exposure camps with international pugilists will greatly benefit the development of boxing in India, especially at the age-group level, feels national junior girls' boxing coach Geeta Chanu.

Chanu noted that the reason countries like Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan are among the top boxing nations is the close cooperation between the respective boards of these Central Asian nations.

"Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan have good endurance they are also high on strength but where they really score over others is their confidence," Chanu told PTI. "Central Asian countries like Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan conduct combined training and competitions across various age groups, at least three such combined training or competitions in a year. Hence from a very young age they get a lot of international exposure."

"Our players face international boxers only in multi-national tournaments," she added.

The Boxing Federation of India (BFI) conducted a 15-day REC Combined Multinational Training Camp for junior boys and girls at the Sports Authority of India's National Boxing Academy here.

At the camp that ended on Tuesday, Indian boxers got to rub shoulders with pugilists from boxing powerhouses Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan besides Sri Lanka.

Chanu welcomed BFI's move to host a multinational camp for the age-group level Indian teams but insisted that the duration of such camps should be longer.

"We need even longer camps. A 30-day camp would yield more results. In 15 days not everything can be covered so we want that a longer camp should be there," she said.

Junior World Championship gold and silver medalists Payal and Amisha Kerketta echoed the same sentiment.

"This camp was very useful as our shortcomings were identified and a lot of work on rectifying them was done. It would have been great had it been a longer camp," Payal said.

"At the continental as well as World Championships we face a lot of Uzbek and Kazakh boxers so it was good to experience them close up and spar with them at this camp," Amisha added.

"We wish more such camps are conducted for longer durations like 45 days or a month so that we can learn much more."

The camp, which is a part of SAI's new Khelo India Rising Talent Identification (KRIT) initiative, saw participation of over 150 boxers including 75 from India, 37 from Kazakhstan, 18 from Uzbekistan and 35 from Sri Lanka.

"The vision behind this is to identify athletes at a grassroots level and to build the bench strength of the country," said Deputy Director SAI Sachin. K. (PTI)

Nazi symbolism: Germany withdraws soccer jerseys with number 44

HERZOGENAURACH, GERMANY, April 2: The German soccer federation and Adidas have stopped the sale of Germany jerseys with the number 44 because of a resemblance to the logo of the Nazi Party's notorious SS paramilitary units.

Adidas on Monday stopped offering the personalisation of jerseys with names and numbers, and the federation halted the delivery of jerseys with the number 44 from its own online shop. The federation said it was looking for an alternative design for the number 4 together with its partner, 11teamsports. "None of the parties involved saw any proximity to Nazi symbolism in the development process of the jersey design," the federation said on X, formerly Twitter.

The moves to withdraw jerseys with number 44 came after it was pointed out that the two fours together resembled the stylized SS used by the Nazi Party's Schutzstaffel group. Commonly known as the SS, it included police units, combat forces and others who ran the concentration camps that carried out the mass killings of civilians during World War II. The stylized SS symbol is banned in Germany today.

Adidas spokesman Oliver Bruggen told news agency dpa that the federation and 11teamsports were responsible for the design of the names and numbers on the shirts. "People from around 100 countries work at Adidas. Our company stands for the promotion of diversity and inclusion, and as a company, we actively campaign against xenophobia, antisemitism, violence and hatred in all forms," Bruggen said. "Any attempts to promote divisive or exclusionary views are not part of our values as a brand," he said.

Bruggen said Adidas strongly rejects any suggestions that this was our intention. Germany is hosting the European Championship from June 14 to July 14. (AP)

NEW DELHI, April 2: The Indian men's hockey team has left for Australia to compete in a five-match Test series beginning April 6, a crucial assignment ahead of the Paris Olympics in July-August.

The Harmanpreet Singh-led side left on Monday night.

The team has been in good form and recently won three out of its four matches during the FIH Pro League in Bhubaneswar.

After the opening game on April 6, the series features matches on April 7, 10, 12 and 13. It is essential for the Indian team to enhance their performance, build and check-through the improvement areas for the coming Paris Olympics, Hockey India stated in a press release.

"As we embark on this crucial tour to Australia, we are filled with determination and excitement. The series presents an excellent opportunity for us to assess our strengths and areas for improvement ahead of the Paris Olympics," Harmanpreet said before the side's departure.

"We are fully committed to giving our best on the field and making every moment count." Vice-captain Hardik Singh stated that this tour holds immense significance for the team.

"We have been working hard as a team to refine our skills and strategies, and we are confident in our abilities. We are focused on putting up a strong performance and making our country proud," he said.

The Indian Team: GOAL-KEEPERS: Krishan Bahadur Pathak, PR Sreejesh, Suraj Karkera DEFENDERS: Harmanpreet Singh (C), Jarnmanpreet Singh, Amit Rohidas, Jugraj Singh, Sanjay, Sumit, Amir Ali MIDFIELDERS: Manpreet Singh, Hardik Singh (VC), Vivek Sagar Prasad, Shamsher Singh, Nilakanta Sharma, Rajkumar Pal, Vishnukant Singh.

Rohit wouldn't have lost MI captaincy if he'd been named India's T20 WC skipper earlier: Sidhu

NEW DELHI, April 2: Former India cricketer Navjot Singh Sidhu believes that Rohit Sharma would not have been replaced by Hardik Pandya as Mumbai Indians captain had the BCCI named him skipper for the T20 World Cup last year itself.

Rohit was declared captain of India's yet-to-be-named T20 World Cup squad in February this year by BCCI secretary Jay Shah at an event in Ahmedabad, a good two months after he was replaced by Pandya as MI skipper.

"If the BCCI had named Rohit as captain for the T20 World Cup in October, the franchise wouldn't have chosen Hardik as captain. It's a matter of the franchise's respect. So, the actual issue here is timing," Sidhu said in 'Star Sports Press Room'.

Pandya has been facing hostility from fans in the ongoing IPL, booted in all three matches so far, including the one at MI's home turf of Wankhede, besides ending up on the losing side. Sidhu said the fans' reaction is quite understandable as Rohit is a much-loved cricketer.

"Nobody can digest the fact that India's hero, India's captain, is not the captain of our franchise. 'What wrong has he done?' is what fans of the franchise would be thinking. But what does he have to do?"

"There is nothing that succeeds like success. If he had won these two matches, there wouldn't have been any noise," he pointed out.

Talking about other teams in the IPL, Sidhu felt Royal Challengers Bengaluru have become predictable, especially in their spin bowling.

"The biggest thing needed in the winning of a team is that they are not dependent on just one individual to achieve victory. We do talk about Virat Kohli and Faf du Plessis, but you got to saddle the right horse.

"The chain is as strong as the weakest link, and their weakness lies in the spin department. Their spinners are just not there, so therefore they will have to replenish that area. Like, RCB had (Wanindu) Hasaranga, who was pretty good and even before him, there was Yuzvendra Chahal," he observed.

"But they let them go and that has created a void in their bowling line-up. RCB haven't been able to fill that void, which makes them predictable. Now look at (MS) Dhoni – when he comes, no one knows his plan," he said.

Sidhu reiterated that IPL performances will shape the T20 World Cup squads of all the teams.

"The entire world revolves around the IPL. Playing in the IPL just before the World Cup is like participating in a mini World Cup. Stellar performance here can make you an overnight sensation. Therefore, anyone who excels in the IPL becomes a strong contender," he said.

The T20 World Cup will begin on June 1 in the USA and the West Indies. (PTI)

India, Australia and England cricket boards in talks to revive Champions League T20

MUMBAI, April 2: About 10 years after its last edition was played, "active conversations" are taking place between cricket boards of India, Australia and England to revive the Champions League, a club-based international T20 competition.

The last edition of the CLT20 was held in India in 2014 with Chennai Super Kings winning the title after defeating Kolkata Knight Riders in the final at Bengaluru, with the edition involving three teams from India, two each from Australia and South Africa and one team from Pakistan, the West Indies and New Zealand.

As many as six editions of the CLT20 were played between 2009-10 to 2014-15, with four of these being organised in India and two in South Africa. The tournament was won twice each by Chennai Super Kings and Mumbai Indians, while Australia's New South Wales and Sydney Sixers won it one time each.

While the cricket calendar remains jam-packed, the biggest challenge would be to find a window for reviving such an event, said Cricket Victoria CEO Nick Cummins, who is aware of the conversations taking place between the three biggest boards in international cricket.

"I think (the earlier edition of) Champions League was ahead of its time. The T20 landscape wasn't matured enough at that point. I think it is now," Cummins told the media during the announcement of its partnership with KheloMore to launch the Melbourne Cricket Academy in India.

"I know that there's active conversations between Cricket Australia (CA), ECB (England and Wales Cricket Board) and the BCCI (Board of Control for Cricket in India) about (reviving) the Champions League," he said.

"It's just trying to find a window as to when you actually play that, because you've also got all the ICC tournaments as well. It maybe (the case) that the first iteration of the Champions League will be of the women... (it may involve) cricketers playing in (the) WPL, the Hundred and the WBBL," he added.

Cummins said he has been in regular talks with CA's CEO Nick Hockley for the revival of CLT20 but added that BCCI secretary Jay Shah could also shed some light on it.

"I'm constantly talking to Nick Hockley, Cricket Australia CEO, for a Champions League, because that's the next step in the evolution of cricket," he added.

Cummins drew comparison between the club-based international competition like Champions League in football, saying that cricket is in a similar phase of finding the balance between international and club-based competitions.

"We still haven't made out which league is the best. IPL, PSL or the Big Bash? The only way we can show that is by having the Melbourne Stars play Karachi Kings or the Mumbai Indians," Cummins said.

"Our great aspiration is to have the Indian players play in the Big Bash," he said.

"(The) Champions League is well overdue. Look at what Champions League does for football, the World Cup is fantastic and the Champions League is there (too) every time.

"The idea of the Mumbai Indians playing the Melbourne Stars at the MCG would be just as exciting as India playing Australia at the MCG," he added. (PTI)

Delhi Capitals ready for Kolkata Knight Riders challenge in IPL

VISAKHAPATNAM, April 2: Delhi Capitals would be keen to prove that their comfortable win against Chennai Super Kings was not a flash in the pan while Kolkata Knight Riders would be eyeing a hat-trick of victories when the two sides face off in the IPL here on Wednesday.

The Capitals would be buoyed by the 20-run victory here on Sunday, their first of the season, against defending champions CSK who were outsmarted by Rishabh Pant and Co. in all departments of the game.

And come Wednesday, the Capitals will have to put another such performance against KKR, whose batters pummeled Royal Challengers Bengaluru bowlers to notch their second win of the season on March 29.

For DC, the onus will be on Prithvi Shaw and veteran Australian David Warner to provide a solid start.

Meanwhile, Pant continues his inspirational journey. After two scrawny innings, the skipper gave a glimpse of his devastating best as he scored his maiden fifty (51 off 32 balls) of the season and seems to be slowly finding his groove.

The likes of South African Tristan Stubbs and Australian Mitchell Marsh, both capable of launching an assault on the opposition, need to be better towards the end as DC lack domestic power hitters.

While Stubbs showcased his prowess with the bat against Rajasthan Royals, a consistent show from him will do a world of good for DC.

On the other hand, Marsh is yet to produce a glimpse of his brute power with the willow which could prove to be DC's lethal weapon.

South African Anrich Nortje is yet to find his rhythm as he returned to action after a long injury layoff. The Capitals' Indian pace unit will thus have to punch above its weight against a formidable KKR side.

Khaleel Ahmed's performance against CSK was commendable, yet his long-standing fielding troubles remain a concern. He struggles particularly with aerial catches, dropping more than he successfully takes. He dropped a catch of MS Dhoni against CSK.

Mukesh Kumar lacks pace while veteran Ishant Sharma is more than capable of asking pertinent questions.

KKR, on the other hand, have looked good this season, registering two wins from as many games. Opener Phil Salt, all-rounder Andre Russell and Venkatesh Iyer have been in good nick in the first two games and would look to pose a challenge for the Delhi pacers.

Skipper Shreyas Iyer also got some runs under his belt in the win against Royal Challengers Bengaluru.

Rookie pacer Harshit Rana has impressed so far, picking five wickets in two outings, but Mitchell Starc, their record buy, and Varun Chakravarthy have gone for runs aplenty.

The Teams (From):

Delhi Capitals: Rishabh Pant (c), David Warner, Prithvi Shaw, Yash Dhull, Abhishek Porel, Axar Patel, Lalit Yadav, Mitchell Marsh, Pravin Dube, Vicky Ostwal, Anrich Nortje, Kuldeep Yadav, Jake Fraser-McGurk, Khaleel Ahmed, Ishant Sharma, Mukesh Kumar, Tristan Stubbs, Ricky Bhui, Kumar Kushagra, Rasikh Dar, Jhye Richardson, Sumit Kumar, Swastik Chikara and Shai Hope.

Kolkata Knight Riders: Shreyas Iyer (c), KS Bharat, Rahmannullah Gurbaz, Rinku Singh, Angkrish Raghuvanshi, Sherfane Rutherford, Manish Pandey, Andre Russell, Nitish Rana, Venkatesh Iyer, Anukul Roy, Ramandeep Singh, Varun Chakravarthy, Sunil Narine, Vaibhav Arora, Chetan Sakariya, Harshit Rana, Suyash Sharma, Mitchell Starc, Dushmantha Chameera, Sakib Hussain, Mujeeb Ur Rahman.

Match starts at 7.30pm IST. (PTI)

KKR-RR, GT-DC matches rescheduled: BCCI

NEW DELHI, April 2: Kolkata Knight Riders' home IPL game against Rajasthan Royals was on Tuesday advanced by a day to April 16, while Gujarat Titans-Delhi Capitals fixture in Ahmedabad was also rescheduled by the BCCI which did not give any reason for the move.

The PTI had on Monday reported that the KKR-RR tie was set to be rescheduled due to Ram Navami, but the Board did not specify any reason for the rescheduling of matches on these two dates.

"The fixture between Kolkata Knight Riders & Rajasthan Royals, which was earlier scheduled to take place on April 17, 2024 at Eden Gardens, Kolkata will now be played a day prior on April 16, 2024.

Matter of time before Starc returns to his elements: Bharat Arun

VISAKHAPATNAM, April 2: Mitchell Starc has not lived up to his astronomical price tag so far in the IPL but Kolkata Knight Riders bowling coach Bharat Arun on Tuesday backed the Australia left-arm pacer, saying it's just a "matter of time" before he hits his stride.

Starc's combined figures from the first two games read an underwhelming 8-0-100-0.

"He is probably one of the most experienced bowlers in the world and also somebody who understands the conditions and adapts to it very well. I think you will see a different version of him in the future games," Arun said ahead of their match against Delhi Capitals here. Returning to the IPL after nine years, Starc was bought for a record sum of ₹ 24.75-crore at the auction.

Asked what conversations they are having with Starc, Arun cheekily replied: "Nothing about the price tag definitely.

"I'm looking forward to playing for Durham in the County Championship before the start of our Test summer. I wish Jos (Buttler), Motty (Matthew Mott) and all the team the best of luck in defending our title." England will be defending the title in the Caribbean having triumphed in the last edition of the tournament in Australia in 2022, with Stokes hitting the winning run in the final for a five-wicket victory over Pakistan at the MCG.

However, he has only played two T20 matches since, both at last year's IPL.

Having previously retired from ODI cricket in 2022, Stokes reversed his decision in order to play in the 50-over World Cup last year in India, following which he underwent a knee surgery that did not allow him to bowl in the Test series against India. (PTI)

Ben Stokes pulls out of T20 World Cup

LONDON, April 2: England's star player Ben Stokes on Tuesday pulled out of the upcoming T20 World Cup, saying the "sacrifice" will help him focus on regaining his fitness to bowl full throttle and be the "all-rounder I want to be for the foreseeable future".

The country's Test captain has informed the England & Wales Cricket Board (ECB) about his decision, two months ahead of the showpiece that will be held in the USA and West Indies.

"I'm working hard and focusing on building my bowling fitness back up to fulfil a full role as an all-rounder in all formats of cricket.

"Opting out of the IPL and the World Cup will hopefully be a sacrifice that allows me to be the all-rounder I want to be for the foreseeable future," Stokes said in a statement issued by the ECB.

Stokes, 32, was in-charge of the team that suffered a 1-4 Test series loss to India earlier this year and said the tour made him realise that he isn't quite up for it when it comes to bowling.

"The recent Test tour of India highlighted how far behind I was from a bowling point of view after my knee surgery and nine months without bowling.

"I'm looking forward to playing for Durham in the County Championship before the start of our Test summer. I wish Jos (Buttler), Motty (Matthew Mott) and all the team the best of luck in defending our title."

England will be defending the title in the Caribbean having triumphed in the last edition of the tournament in Australia in 2022, with Stokes hitting the winning run in the final for a five-wicket victory over Pakistan at the MCG.

However, he has only played two T20 matches since, both at last year's IPL.

Riyan Parag reminds me of young SKY at MI: Rajasthan Royals assistant coach Shane Bond

MUMBAI, April 2: Rajasthan Royals assistant coach Shane Bond has described in-form Riyan Parag as a player of "extreme talent" and likened him to a young Suryakumar Yadav who joined Mumbai Indians more than a decade ago and went on to become one of the most explosive T20 batters in the world.

The 22-year-old Parag has brought his rich form from domestic cricket into the IPL, striking two high quality fifties to help Rajasthan notch up wins in all three games so far.

Parag's latest effort came against Mumbai Indians in his side's six-wicket win on Monday. He dropped anchor to spearhead Royals' chase of 126, scoring 54 not out off 39 balls with the help of five fours and three sixes.

"He (Parag) sort of reminds me a little bit of Surya (Suryakumar Yadav), who came to Mumbai a few years ago. He looks like that - he has got extreme talent. He has just matured as a cricketer, even though he is only 22," Bond, who is also the RR bowling coach, said at the post-match press conference.

Bond played a crucial role in developing bowling talents at MI in his nine-year stint with the Mumbai-based franchise from 2015 onwards, before shifting base to Jaipur this year.

"He (Parag) has had an outstanding domestic season, obviously, batting up the order. The trade we made with Devdutt (Padikkal), bringing Avesh (Khan) in, that was to put Riyan up into a position which was probably better suited," the former New Zealand fast bowler added.

Suryakumar, the world's number one T20 batter, joined MI in 2011 and spent four years at Kolkata Knight Riders from 2014-17 before he was brought back to the Mumbai side in 2018. He is recovering from a recent surgery.

Bond said Parag has had to play the role of a finisher in the IPL at a young age whereas other teams have experienced international players in that role.

"Riyan started so young, you forget that he was 17 or something, playing in one of the toughest spots in a batting line-up of No 6. You look at the characters who finish games around the IPL, they are generally pretty experienced guys," he said.

"(The) Tim Davids, (the) Dave Millers... these are high quality players who play international cricket. Riyan has been tasked with that for a number of years. He is still a very young man, but he has got this wealth of experience behind him now.

"We are getting the best of him.

KOLKATA, April 2: Bengal will finally have its own regional cricket league -- Bengal Pro T20 -- which will follow IPL model but will be restricted to just players from the state, the CAB announced on Tuesday.

The 21-day inaugural season will unfold in June with eight men's and women's teams.

The 'Bengal Pro T20' will follow the IPL model and its playing conditions but will not allow any "outstation cricketers, Cricket Association of Bengal (CAB) president Snehasish Ganguly said adding that "even the coaches from outside the state will not be allowed.

The men's league will be held at Eden Gardens, while Jadavpur University Second Campus at Salt Lake will host the women's matches.

Double headers will feature on all days. The men's team will have 17 players each, while women's team will have 16 players each.

"All the eight teams will be franchisees-owned, which will be a first of Bengal (CAB) president Snehasish Ganguly.

Bengal is also set to vote on April 19 in the first phase of the seven-phase general elections. The voting in Kolkata will take place on June 1.

"Yes, the CAB has informed us that local police has asked for rescheduling of the date and the matter is being looked into. We haven't yet decided on the new date," a senior BCCI official told PTI on Monday.

On part of CAB, a senior officer-bearer had informed: "We have suggested two dates, April 16 or 18. In any case, it is KKR's home match and will be played at the Eden Gardens."

The CAB had suggested that the match be advanced either by a day (16 April) or pushed back by 24 hours to 18 April.

KKR is currently in Visakhapatnam for a game against Delhi Capitals on Wednesday.

They had begun the season with a thrilling four-run victory over Sunrisers Hyderabad at the Eden Gardens, followed by a seven-wicket thumping of Royal Challengers Bengaluru at M Chinnaswamy Stadium.

The Shubman Gill-led Gujarat Titans are placed fourth in the standings with four points, following two wins and a loss from four outings. (PTI)

CAB announces IPL-style 'Bengal Pro T20'

(in regional T20 leagues). We have still not finalised the franchises, which will be announced at a later date.

"The teams will be completely owned by franchisees and all players will be paid as per the salary cap. CAB will not incur any expense for the league," the CAB president added. It is learnt that the CAB are in talks with Kolkata Knight Riders, the RP-Sanjiv Goenka Group (Lucknow Super Giants), Bandhan Bank, Shracchi Group and Rashmi Cement among others for the eight franchises.

The CAB had a regional T20 tournament back in 2020-21, but it failed to generate response and had to be stopped after one season.

Since then many states have launched their own T20 leagues to catch the attention of IPL spotters. As of now, there have been more than a dozen regional T20 leagues in India, with the oldest being the KPL (Maharaja Trophy T20) of Karnataka, while Tamil Nadu's TNPL being the most popular. (PTI)

"If your team is successful, you are in a winning team, selections and rewards come from that. That has more of been our focus, to forget about all that other noise from the outside and just work really hard for each other.

"If we do that, I have got no doubt people are going to start talking like you are now about Chahal and whether he will feature in a World Cup or not. He is bowling beautifully, and if he keeps doing that, then we have got a massive chance in this tournament," he added. Bond said having knowledge about opposition players also helps in making strategies for his current team.

"When you have obviously spent so much time with certain players, watched them every day and talked to them about their game and the way that they see the game, that definitely helps," he said.

"It was quite fun being on the other side of the team. A couple of dismissals, you get a lot of satisfaction from that."

MI pacer Akash Madhwal said a fresh pitch at the Wankhede Stadium assisted bowlers in the first game but maintaining tight lines was equally crucial.

"We had to get our basics right and had to bowl in the line of the stumps. The pitch had some help for the fast bowlers," said Madhwal, who returned 3/20. (PTI)

Kohli seems to have evolved again, never write off your champions: David Hussey

MUMBAI, April 2: Virat Kohli seems to have "evolved again" avowed former Australia cricketer David Hussey, who warned against writing off the champion player after a debate ensued on the Indian batter's strike rate.

Despite leading the run chart for Royal Challengers Bengaluru in the ongoing edition of IPL, Kohli faced some criticism for not batting aggressively enough against KKR in their last game.

Kohli is the joint-highest run getter so far with RR's Riyan Parag, scoring 181 runs in three matches with two fifties at a strike rate of 141.4.

With the T20 World Cup impending, Kohli's place in the team has also been a topic of discussion even though he played one of the most memorable innings for India in their clash against arch-rivals Pakistan in Melbourne.

"Virat Kohli is the leading run scorer, isn't he in the IPL currently?" Hussey replied when asked about what he made of the debate around Kohli's strike rate.

"He's a pretty good player. I don't think he's going to have too many issues. If you see the strike rate in this IPL, he seems to have taken his game to a new level, he's evolved again," Hussey told the media here on the sidelines of the announcement of the launch of Melbourne Cricket Academy, a partnership between Cricket Victoria and KheloMore.

"You never write off champions, like you never write off Steve Smith, (like) you never write off Ricky Ponting, Sachin Tendulkar, Rohit Sharma..."

"You never write them off and I'm certain that Virat Kohli is going to come out in the next World Cup and be the dominant force that he has been for the better part of a decade. Never write off your champions," Hussey reiterated.

Hussey, who played in the IPL for Chennai Super Kings, the then Kings XI Punjab and Kolkata Knight Riders, said the competition has evolved with teams moving on from a conservative approach to an ultra-aggressive one.

"It's hit-hit, bang-bang from ball one now, whereas back in 2008, (it) was (about) take your time, get yourself in, try and have wickets in hand at the first 10-over mark and then try and get 180 or 190, (and) that was out of this world," he said.

"Now teams are getting 270 runs and other teams are almost chasing them down. If you face a couple of dot balls early and your strike rate is under 100, you're sort of ostracised, you don't fit to the T20 mould, so the planning that's evolved from 2008 till now is phenomenal -- every ball, every over is really important," he said.

Hussey, who was present at the Cricket Club of India along with Cricket Victoria CEO Nick Cummins and KheloMore CEO and selector Jatin Paranjape, said 10 years from now IPL would be entirely different.

"The game has evolved out of sight and like Nick (Cummins) said, I can't wait to see what the IPL and what T20 cricket looks like in a decade's time, because teams might get 300 runs and chase it down, which should be not good for fast bowlers or spinners but it's great for the game of cricket," he said.

Hussey felt Australia will have a selection headache going into the World Cup, adding that players who are likely to feature in the T20 World Cup are getting an excellent opportunity to prepare for it in the IPL.

"There's competition for places, isn't there, in the Australian team? There's Travis Head who also opens up batting as well, who's playing particularly well," Hussey said.

"Anybody can beat anybody on their day, the pitch is a different, foreign conditions, but the players are very, very fortunate to have the IPL to play in and prepare very well in order to go to the World Cup and execute their skills," Hussey said. (PTI)
