Organ transplant racket busted, 3 gang members arrested in Nagaon

NAGAON, Nov 4: An organ transplant racket was busted in Nagaon district of Assam, and three traffickers were apprehended, an official said on Tuesday.

Nagaon Senior Superintendent of Police Swapnil Deka said an operation carried out over the last few days unearthed the entire web of the organ transplant racket, which has been in operation for several years in the area.

As per reports, after holding an awareness meeting against drugs and illegal liquor under the aegis of 'Village Women's Defence Force' recently at the village, the illegal trade of kidney selling came to light. "Once we came to know about it, Nagaon Police started a thorough investigation. We arrested three suspected gang members, identified as Dharani Das alias Bogamula, Mahendra Das and Deep Das today," the SP said.

During police interrogation, it was revealed that one Hazarika from Baihata Chariali of Kamrup district and another Daulagapu from Guwahati are also involved with them in this trade.

The Huz-Kaibarta village Headman Dipu Das told reporters that the illegal practices have been going on in the area for the last several years. The village is adjacent to Nagaon town.

"The villagers have been running an illegal liquor trade for livelihood. People are not healthy and also not sound financially due to consumption of liquor regularly. To make money, they gradually stepped into the kidney selling market to manage their daily bread and butter," he added.

Despite sharing information regarding the said illegal kidney trade to local police in the early days by female residents, local police failed to arrest any member of the racket, Das claimed.

"We have many such families in the village where three members of a five-member unit have already sold their kidneys. We are gradually having a disabled society, which has been created artificially due to extreme poverty," he added.

An official said the kidney donors are being smuggled from the village through a brokerage cycle. The people of the village, who are financially crippled, are forced to sell their valuable kidneys.

"The kidney gang offers money to these people and take them to Kolkata through some commissioned local brokers of the village, and force them to sell their kidneys for Rs 3-5 lakh," he added.

After spending several days in Kolkata, the poor and unemployed men return home with the money. In some cases, they have also forced their wives to sell their kidneys.

"In several cases, these donor people run out of money very soon as they are heavy drinkers. And there is an illicit liquor trade also going on (CONTD. ON PAGE 2)

NPP, TIPRA Motha, Daniel Langthasa of People's Party, others join hands to form common platform

New political entity of NE in the offing

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: Leaders from three different parties of the Northeast, including Meghalaya Chief Minister and National People's Party (NPP) president Conrad Sangma, on Tuesday announced that they would form a single political entity in the next 45 days to raise issues of the region.

Former BJP spokesperson Mmholmo Kikon will also be a part of the proposed entity.

Pradyot Manikya of TIPRA Motha, Daniel Langthasa from People's Party, Assam, and Kikon were among the signatories of a joint statement that announced the decision.

Both NPP and TIPRA Motha are allies of the BJP.

Mizoram's ruling Zoram People's Movement and Nagaland's ruling Nationalist Democratic Progressive Party, which are in alliance with the BJP, and Asom Gana Parishad, the BJP's junior partner in Assam, are not part of the proposed political entity.

"We, leaders from different states of the Northeast, have come together today to make a collective and historic announcement, i.e., building this common platform, and a committee is being constituted to deliberate on the future course of action, including the modalities and structure of the proposed political entity.

The nine-member committee has Kikon as its member secretary.

"In the next 45 days, the committee will talk to all members, a merger would be done and a new entity would emerge," Sangma said at a joint press conference held by the leaders.

He said that the committee will also reach out to other parties and leaders of the Northeast.

The joint statement said the "younger generation leaders of Northeast" feel it is time to give people a "collective voice".

"For too long, we, the younger generation leaders of Northeast, have spoken about the same issues and (CONTD. ON PAGE 2)

Court grants bail to IAS officer in teen suicide case

ITANAGAR, Nov 4: A court here on Tuesday granted bail to IAS officer Talo Potom in the case of abetment of the suicide of a youth.

On October 24, 19-year-old Gomchu Yekar was found dead in his rented room. In his suicide note, Yekar had accused former Itanagar Capital Region deputy commissioner Potom and Rural Works Department executive engineer Likwang Lowang of sexual exploitation, prolonged harassment, coercion, and threats.

A case under Sections 108, 271, 272 and 3(5) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita was registered at Nirjuli Police Station. Potom had surrendered before the police on October 27 and was remanded to 14-day judicial custody.

Cooperate with judicial panel on Zubeen case, CM urges people

GUWAHATI, Nov 4: Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Tuesday said people should come forward and cooperate with the one-man judicial commission formed to probe the mysterious death of cultural icon Zubeen Garg.

The judicial commission, headed by Justice Soumitra Saikia of the Gauhati High Court, started its investigation on Monday, but no one came forward to give their statement on the first day.

"The government's decision to constitute a judicial commission headed by a sitting judge of the Hon'ble High Court to inquire into the circumstances leading to the tragic death of our beloved Zubeen Garg is a landmark step in the pursuit of truth and justice," Sarma said in a post on X.

"We must extend full cooperation and actively participate in the proceedings of the commission to ensure that every fact is brought to light, and justice is served in the most transparent and impartial manner. #JusticeForZubeenGarg," he added.

People have been demanding justice for Garg with more than 4.5 million users posting '#JusticeForZubeenGarg' on Facebook since his death.

The celebrated singer died under mysterious circumstances while swimming in the sea in Singapore on September 19. He had gone to the Southeast Asian nation to attend the 4th edition of the North East India Festival (NEIF).

Sarma on Monday claimed that Garg was murdered in Singapore, even as he probe into the case was underway.

Through a public notice, the judicial commission decided to accept affidavits from the concerned from November 3 to November 21.

On October 3, the Assam government had set up the judicial commission, which has been given time to submit its report within the next six months.

The judicial commission will probe into the "facts and circumstances" leading to the unfortunate death of Garg in Singapore.

The one-member panel will also investigate if there were any lapses, acts of omission or commission, or negligence on the part of any individual, authority or institution in connection with the incident.

Besides, it will "ascertain whether any external factors, including the possibility of foul play, conspiracy, or unlawful acts, contributed to or were connected with the incident".

A Special Investigation Team (SIT) under the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) of the Assam Police is currently probing Garg's death case after more than 60 FIRs were lodged across the state. A total of seven people were arrested and are now in judicial custody. They were (CONTD. ON PAGE 2)

Tendency to play safe by persons running PSUs, pvt firms leads to policy paralysis: SC

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: The tendency to play safe will set in, leading to policy paralysis if the high officials running PSUs and private sector firms are "shackled with the fear" that their decisions would be viewed with "a jaundiced eye" later and run them and their firms into litigations, the Supreme Court has said.

The observations were made in a judgment by the top court which on Monday upheld the enforcement of a USD 78.72 million (approx Rs 650 crore) arbitral award in favour of Anglo American Metallurgical Coal Pvt Ltd, dismissing a challenge by state-run MMTC Ltd and holding that the PSU failed to establish even a prima facie case of fiduciary breach by its senior management.

A bench of Justices Sanjay Kumar and K V Viswanathan delivered the judgment on MMTC's appeal against a 2025 Delhi High Court ruling that rejected its objections under Section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure (CPC) and allowed Anglo American Coal Pvt Ltd to withdraw the amount deposited with interest.

Justice Viswanathan, writing an 82-page judgment for the bench, upheld the high court order and dismissed MMTC's plea, noting there were "no good grounds" to interfere with the enforcement of the award.

Concluding the judgment, Justice Viswanathan wrote a postscript.

"Whether in Government, Public Sector Corporations or even in the private sector, the driving force of the entity are the persons who administer them. A certain play in the joints is inevitable for their day-to-day functioning.

"If they are shackled with the fear that their decisions taken for day-to-day administration, could years later with the benefit of hindsight, be viewed with a jaundiced eye, it will create a chilling effect on them," the verdict said.

"A tendency to play it safe will set in. Decision making will be avoided. Policy paralysis will descend. All this will in the long run prove detrimental not just to that entity but to the nation itself," it said.

The bench said it should not be understood to be condoning decisions taken for improper purposes or extraneous considerations.

"All that we are at pains to drive home is that great caution and circumspection have to be exercised before such allegations are brought forward and adequate proof must exist to back them. Otherwise (CONTD. ON PAGE 2)

Victory of Shahabuddin's son will be defeat for Hindus: Himanta at Bihar poll rally

SIWAN, Nov 4: Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Tuesday said RJD candidate Osama Shahab shared his first name with terrorist Osama Bin Laden and his victory in the assembly polls will spell a "defeat for Hindus".

Sarma was addressing a rally in the Raghunathpur assembly segment of Siwan district, where Osama Shahab, the son of deceased former MP Mohd Shahabuddin, is making his debut.

"When I was coming to Raghunathpur, I was thrilled as the name evoked the memories of Lord Ram and Sita. But I learnt that there is also an Osama here.... The father of this Osama, Shahabuddin, had created a record in committing murders. He must have grown up playing with AK-47 rifles instead of toys," he claimed.

"If such an Osama wins from Raghunathpur, it will be a defeat for Hindus. I shall myself be watching the results of this constituency on November 14, sitting at the gates of Kamakhya temple in Assam. I am sure you people will reject Osama just as you had defeated his mother in Lok Sabha polls," said Sarma, referring to Shahabuddin's widow Hina Shahab, who had contested the parliamentary elections as an Independent candidate.

The BJP leader spoke of having ruled "a difficult state, with 40 per cent Muslim population, a large number of them infiltrators" and blamed the Congress, which he quit a decade ago, for the scenario.

"When I became the CM, I was told by the bureaucracy that infiltrators were in possession of 1 lakh acre of land. I take pride in having freed 50,000 acres. The infiltrators also pose a threat to our womenfolk. The Congress had been footing the bill for the salaries of teachers at Madrasas. I put an end to it, making it clear the government is supposed to train doctors and engineers, and not mullahs," said Sarma.

"Later this month, I am also going to bring a law that would send to jail those who marry three to four times. I am going to shut down this shop," he said, evoking wild applause from the crowds.

Sarma urged the people to vote for the government headed by Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, the JD(U) president who has long been a BJP ally, and keep at bay the "Tejashwi-Osama duo".

The BJP leader said he was confident of an NDA victory in Bihar as "Hindus have woken up across the country, ever since Narendra Modi came to power".

"Awakened Hindus defeated the legacy of Babur and Aurangzeb in Ayodhya, where a temple of Lord Ram stands. They will again beat Osama," he claimed.

He also slammed the opposition for "trying to protect infiltrators by opposing SIR". (PTI)

GUWAHATI, Nov 4: Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Tuesday said nearly 310 kg of cannabis have been seized, and two drug peddlers arrested in Udalguri district.

The seized contraband is worth around ₹ 3 crore, he said.

Sarma, in a post on X, said: "Kudos to Mazbat Police for apprehending 309.78 kg cannabis worth approx ₹ 3 crore; 2 arrested in connection with the case" (PTI)

Hundreds of people march in Guwahati seeking justice for Zubeen Garg

GUWAHATI, Nov 4: Hundreds of people marched through Guwahati on Tuesday demanding justice for singer Zubeen Garg, who died in Singapore.

The protest march was organised by Asom Jatiyatabadi Yuva Chhatra Parishad (AJYCP) and saw the participation of 25 other indigenous and students' outfits. The rally began at Veterinary College Playground in Khanapara.

"It has been 47 days since Zubeen Garg's death, yet we do not know how he died. The SIT says the case is under investigation, but the CM says Garg was murdered. Why is SIT not holding a press meet to reveal the facts," AJYCP president Palash Changmai asked.

He accused the authorities of withholding crucial information despite the public's demand for clarity.

Changmai appealed to the government to ensure a transparent and strict investigation so that the real culprits can be brought to book.

He said if the government fails to provide satisfactory updates related to the case soon, AJYCP will launch a statewide movement.

The celebrated singer died in Singapore on September 19 while swimming in the sea. He had gone to the Southeast Asian nation to attend the 4th edition of the North East India Festival (NEIF).

A Special Investigation Team (SIT) under the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) of the Assam Police is currently probing Garg's death case after more than 60 FIRs were lodged across the state.

Later, the Assam government set up a one-man judicial commission, headed by Justice Soumitra Saikia of the Gauhati High Court, to probe the death of the singer-lyricist-composer. (PTI)

Hinduja acquired and turned around struggling Ashok Leyland

Business tycoon Gopichand Hinduja passes away at 85

LONDON, Nov 4: Gopichand P Hinduja, the head of Britain's richest family, who was named as an accused in the Bofors scam with his two brothers, died in London at the age of 85.

Fondly known as 'GP' in business circles, Gopichand P Hinduja was unwell for the past few weeks and died in a London hospital, sources close to his family said.

Born in 1940, Gopichand was the second of the four Hinduja brothers who built the group into a global conglomerate, spanning automotive, energy, banking, and infrastructure. After the death of his elder brother Srichand Hinduja in 2023, he took charge as the chairman of the 35 billion pound Hinduja Group.

He is survived by his wife, Sumita, sons Sanjay and Dheeraj, and daughter, Rita.

A graduate of Jai Hind College, Mumbai (1959), Gopichand began his career in the family's trading business in Tehran before expanding its reach across continents.

Under his leadership, the group acquired Gulf Oil in 1984, closely followed by the acquisition of the then-struggling Indian automotive manufacturer, Ashok Leyland, in 1987, which was the first major NRI investment in India.

Today, Ashok Leyland is regarded as one of the most successful turnaround stories ever in Indian corporate history.

He was also the visionary behind the Group's forays into power and infrastructure sectors, spearheading the task of shaping the conglomerate's plan for building multi-GW energy generation capacity in India.

Known for his understated style and deep commitment to family values, he was honoured with an honorary Doctorate of Law from the University of Westminster and an Honorary Doctorate of Economics from Richmond College, London, as per the group's website.

He and his two other brothers - Srichand and Prakash Hinduja - were accused of receiving payments totalling Rs 64 crore in illegal commissions to help Swedish gunmaker AB Bofors secure an Indian contract. All (CONTD. ON PAGE 2)

Sensex tanks over 519 points on foreign fund outflows, weak global peers

MUMBAI, Nov 4: Benchmark Sensex tanked 519 points and broader Nifty settled below the 25,600 level on Tuesday due to profit-taking in utility, metal and IT shares triggered by weak global trends and foreign fund outflows.

The 30-share BSE Sensex dropped 519.34 points, or 0.62 per cent, to settle at 83,459.15 with 25 of its constituents ending lower and five with gains. During the day, it tanked 565.72 points, or 0.67 per cent, to 83,412.77.

The 50-share NSE Nifty declined 165.70 points, or 0.64 per cent, to 25,597.65. It hit a low of 25,578.40 due to losses in bluechip shares such as Power-Grid, Eternal and Adani Enterprises.

Among Sensex firms, Power Grid fell the most by 3.13 per cent after the utility posted a decline in the September quarter profit. Eternal dropped 2.79 per cent, Tata Motors Passenger Vehicle by 2.53 per cent, Tata Steel by 1.86 per cent, Maruti by 1.76 per cent and Bharat Electronics by 1.69 per cent.

However, Titan was the biggest gainer, rising by 2.28 per cent on strong Q2 financial results. The company reported a 59 per cent jump in consolidated net profit to ₹1,120 crore for the September quarter of FY26. Bharti Airtel, Bajaj Finance, Mahindra & Mahindra, and State Bank of India were the gainers.

"Indian equity markets ended lower, tracking weak global cues and broad-based selling, particularly across IT, metal, and power sectors. Investor sentiment remained subdued ahead of the holiday-shortened week. FIIs extended their selling streak for the fourth consecutive session, as rising US bond yields and waning expectations of a near-term Fed rate cut curtailed risk appetite," Vinod Nair, Head of Research, Geojit Investments Limited, said.

Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) offloaded equities worth ₹1,883.78 crore on Monday, according to exchange data. Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs), however, bought stocks worth ₹3,516.36 crore in the previous trade.

The BSE smallcap gauge dropped 0.69 per cent and midcap index dipped 0.26 per cent.

Utilities tumbled the most by 1.56 per cent, followed by metal 1.40 per cent, commodities (1.11 per cent), BSE Focused IT (1.08 per cent), IT (1.06 per cent), power (0.99 per cent) and realty (0.83 per cent).

Telecommunication jumped 0.93 per cent and consumer durables climbed 0.11 per cent.

A total of 2,549 stocks declined while 1,618 advanced and 162 remained unchanged on the BSE.

Stock markets would remain closed on Wednesday for Guru Nanak Jayanti.

"Profit-taking across heavy-weight sectors dampened overall mood, while risk appetite remained subdued amid weak global cues. Additionally, inconsistent foreign institutional investor (FII) flows further added to the cautious tone," Ajit Mishra — SVP, Research, Religare Broking Ltd, said.

In Asian markets, South Korea's Kospi, Japan's Nikkei 225 index, Shanghai's SSE Composite index and Hong Kong's Hang Seng index settled lower.

Markets in Europe were trading in negative territory on Monday, while US markets ended mostly higher.

Global oil benchmark Brent crude declined 1.34 per cent to USD 64.02 a barrel.

On Monday, the Sensex inched up 39.78 points, or 0.05 per cent, to settle at 83,978.49. The Nifty eked out a marginal gain of 41.25 points, or 0.16 per cent, to end at 25,763.35. (PTI)

Global shares trade lower after AI darlings prop up Wall Street

France's CAC 40 lost 1.3 per cent in early trading to 8,007.48, while Germany's DAX dipped 1.5 per cent to 23,780.93. Britain's FTSE 100 slid 0.8 per cent to 9,624.57. US shares were set to drift lower with Dow futures down 0.8 per cent at 47,112.00. S&P 500 futures lost nearly 1.0 per cent to 6,816.50. In Asia, Japan's benchmark Nikkei 225 dipped 1.7 per cent to finish at 51,497.20 following a national holiday on Monday.

to 4,121.74, reversing after a rally took it to record highs in recent days. Hong Kong's Hang Seng erased earlier gains to fall 0.8 per cent to 25,952.40, while the Shanghai Composite lost 0.4 per cent to 3,960.19. Gains for Nvidia, Amazon and other AI superstars have been pronounced lately on Wall Street. But companies across the US stock market will need to hit expectations for growth in profit to justify the big gains for their stock prices since April. (PTI)

ChatGPT Go one-year free access rolls out in India

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: ChatGPT Go's 12-month free access rollout in India on Tuesday witnessed significant user interest, but many reported difficulties activating the offer using their UPI credentials.

OpenAI introduced a 12-month, no-cost ChatGPT Go plan for Indian users, beginning November 4, 2025, as part of a limited-time promotion. However, several users took to X (formerly Twitter) to complain about unsuccessful activation attempts.

Common grievances include repeated approvals of a Re 1 UPI debit without activation, applications getting stuck on the payment screen, and ongoing errors relating to valid UPI IDs and incomplete mandates, even when the payment authorisation appears to be successful.

According to OpenAI, enrolling in the ChatGPT Go free access offer requires adding a payment method (either a Credit Card or UPI), despite the absence of any subscription fee. It mandates a temporary charge of ₹1 at every billing cycle, which is immediately refunded. The setup is designed to enable automatic billing for ChatGPT Go after the 12-month free promotion expires. Users are reminded that cancelling the subscription during the free period renders the offer void for that account.

"Excited for free ChatGPT Go in India, but UPI verification stuck! Invalid VPA error despite valid ID like myname@phonepe. Mandate not completing. Please fix UPI support ASAP!" a user wrote on X.

"I am facing the ChatGPT Go subscription payment issue using the UPI method. Even after confirming the upi payment it is stuck at the approved payment screen. Any fix or is it a bug?" another said. (PTI) concerns of our people, but from different platforms and political spaces. We have realised that our strength lies in unity, and that it is time to give our people one collective voice," it said.

"Taking inspiration from the vision and legacy of great leaders who fought selflessly for the identity and development of our land, we have resolved to carry forward their ideals by coming together under a shared vision for the future of the Northeast," it said.

"Our united effort is guided by a simple conviction that the people of the Northeast deserve to be heard, respected, and represented through a strong, unified, and indigenous political voice at the national level," it added.

Sangma said the effort is driven by the conviction that people of the Northeast need to be "heard and represented".

"It is very important that these different parties are combined in one political party, we have started working on that today," the Meghalaya CM said.

Asked if they would be able to confront the BJP, Sangma said, "We are not here to fight anyone".

"We are not trying to say we will contest against anyone. We are only saying that the platform we are trying to create is what the Northeast needs today. What is driving our decision is the interest of our people and the interest of our future," he said.

"We are working with the central government. Obviously as a political party, we will fight election, we are not fighting against anybody," he said, adding that the NPP, as well as TIPRA Motha, have contested elections on their own.

Asked about the issues that brought the parties together, he said land rights and protection of indigenous people, economic growth, and overall progress are some of the prominent issues.

Manikya said, "Daniel Langthasa is fighting for Sixth Schedule, we are fighting for Sixth Schedule. Besides, there are common problems like illegal migration happening from neighbouring countries and alienation of tribal land."

"In Delhi, people from the Northeast are facing discrimination. Many students and professionals feel there should be a common platform where they can speak," the TIPRA Motha leader added. (PTI) for fear that carefully built reputations could be casually tarnished, best of talent will not be forthcoming, especially for government and public sector corporations," it said.

The bench found no merit in the objections filed by MMTC under Section 47 of the CPC and dismissed its appeal.

The dispute arose out of a long-term coal supply agreement executed in March 2007 between MMTC and Anglo American firm for the supply of coking coal over multiple delivery periods.

After MMTC failed to lift certain quantities during the fifth delivery period amid market volatility in 2008, Anglo American Coal Pvt Ltd invoked arbitration seeking damages based on price differentials.

In May 2014, a majority of the arbitral tribunal awarded Anglo American firm USD 78.72 million with interest and costs. MMTC's challenge to the award under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act failed before a single judge of the Delhi High Court in July 2015.

Although a division bench later set aside the award in March 2020, the Supreme Court restored it in December 2020. MMTC subsequently objected to enforcement on grounds including alleged breach of fiduciary duties by its former officials and an ongoing criminal investigation.

The PSU also sought a stay under CPC, claiming the award was inexecutable. The top court rejected all contentions, ruling that MMTC was attempting a "retrial" of issues already settled. (PTI) three were, however, exonerated by the Delhi High Court in 2005.

Gopichand Hinduja and his family retained their position as Britain's wealthiest, according to the latest The Sunday Times Rich List, despite a drop in their overall fortune. The Hinduja family's net worth stands at 35.3 billion pounds, down from 37.2 billion pounds the previous year.

Their UK property assets include the 67,000 square feet 18th-century Carlton House Terrace near Buckingham Palace and the historic Old War Office building in Whitehall, now home to the Raffles London hotel, which opened in September 2023 to great fanfare.

The family, however, feuded over the vast wealth. After the death of the eldest brother, Srichand, in 2023, it emerged that Gopichand and his two younger brothers - Prakash, 79, and Ashok, 74, had been fighting over the past three years with the patriarch and his daughter, Vinoo, over a 2014 letter signed by the four siblings that said assets held by one of them belonged to all.

While the family called a truce on the bitter power struggle, reports suggest they're still privately haggling on related issues.

Their father, Parmanand, founded their namesake business in 1914 in the Sindh region of British India, trading in carpets, tea and spices. In 1919, he moved from Sindh (then in India, now Pakistan) to Iran, and his sons joined as the group rapidly diversified investments, with early success distributing Bollywood films outside India.

Parmanand, who died in 1971, instilled in his sons a mantra they pledged to follow: "Everything belongs to everyone and nothing belongs to anyone". The siblings, however, feuded over control of the vast business empire and have reportedly agreed to effectively dump the letter, raising the prospect of a breakup for their conglomerate.

The Hinduja empire included the only Indian-owned Swiss bank, SP Hinduja Banquee Privee, with headquarters in Geneva. Its assets include Mumbai-based lender IndusInd Bank Ltd and a property investment firm that has bought more than 250 acres of land in major Indian cities. (PTI)

NPCI urges citizens to stay alert from digital arrest

HT Bureau

GUWAHATI, Nov 4: The National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) has urged citizens to remain vigilant against the rising cases of online frauds, particularly the emerging trend of 'Digital Arrest' scams, as part of its ongoing efforts to promote safe digital payment practices.

Highlighting the growing accessibility and convenience of digital transactions across the country, NPCI emphasized the importance of awareness and caution to ensure a secure, less-cash economy.

It said that early identification of scams can help protect individuals and their families from financial and identity-related losses. Explaining the nature of the 'Digital Arrest' fraud, NPCI said that scammers often pose as law enforcement officials to deceive victims.

They fabricate fake legal cases and use threats of arrest to extort money or personal information.

These fraudsters typically initiate contact through phone calls and then switch to video calls, sometimes appearing in police uniforms or using official-looking backgrounds to intimidate their targets.

The corporation advised citizens to be wary of unexpected calls from individuals claiming to represent government agencies such as the police, CBI, income tax or customs departments, particularly when such callers allege legal violations or demand urgent action.

Genuine officials, NPCI clarified, never seek payments or conduct investigations over phone or video calls. NPCI urged users to pause and verify any suspicious communication before responding.

It recommended reporting such incidents immediately to the national cybercrime helpline by dialing 1930 or through the Department of Telecommunication's portal (<https://sancharsaathi.gov.in/sfc/>).

Citizens were also encouraged to record details, take screenshots and save evidence to assist authorities in their investigations. Reiterating its commitment to secure digital transactions, NPCI said that awareness and caution remain the most effective tools in protecting users from fraudsters exploiting fear and urgency to commit cybercrimes.

Induction of MPATGM in 2026

The Indian Army is set to receive a major upgrade in its tank-destroying capability as the indigenously developed Man-Portable Anti-Tank Guided Missile system moves closer to operational approval by 2026. After years of intensive testing and successful trials, this advanced weapon system represents a giant leap forward for India's defence self-reliance and will fundamentally change how Indian soldiers engage enemy armoured vehicles on the battlefield. Developed by the Defence Research and Development Organisation, the MPATGM is a third-generation fire-and-forget missile that marks a revolutionary departure from the aging systems currently in use. Unlike the old second-generation wire-guided missiles like MILAN and Konkurs that the Army has relied on for decades, this new weapon allows a soldier to simply aim, fire and immediately take cover. The missile's advanced seeker technology then takes over, guiding itself to the target without any further input from the operator. This capability dramatically reduces the soldier's exposure to enemy fire and represents a massive tactical advantage in modern combat. The urgency for such a weapon became painfully clear during the 2020 Galwan border clashes, where portable missile systems proved their critical importance in mountain warfare.

Recognizing this operational need, the Ministry of Defence approved the MPATGM project back in 2015 with an initial budget of Rs 73.46 crore. The mission was to create a man-portable version of the successful Nag anti-tank missile, specifically designed for infantry soldiers, special forces and airborne units who need lightweight yet lethal firepower. State-owned Bharat Dynamics Limited was designated as the primary production agency and established a dedicated manufacturing facility in Bhanur, Telangana in 2018. While the COVID-19 pandemic caused some delays in the testing schedule, DRDO engineers continued refining the system throughout this period. The MPATGM's Imaging Infrared seeker represents cutting-edge technology that locks onto the heat signature of enemy vehicles, making it extremely difficult to evade. The missile offers two attack modes to suit different battlefield situations. In direct attack mode, it flies straight at the target, useful when engaging from the side or rear.

What makes the MPATGM truly impressive is its combination of devastating power and soldier-friendly design. The complete system weighs less than 30 kilograms, with the missile itself at 14.5 kg and the Command Launch Unit with tripod at 14.25 kg, making it manageable for a two-person crew to carry and operate in difficult terrain. According to Defence.in Publication, the missile can engage targets from 200 metres minimum distance all the way out to 4,000 metres, giving soldiers tremendous flexibility in both open desert terrain and congested urban environments. The MPATGM's induction represents more than just a weapons upgrade. It embodies the Atmanirbhar Bharat vision in critical defence technology, demonstrating India's growing capability to design, develop and manufacture sophisticated military systems that match or exceed international standards.

Dr Bhupen Hazarika's melodies of Human compassion

The bard of the Brahmaputra, Dr Bhupen Hazarika, widely known as Bhupen dada, stood as the towering cultural icon of Assam. A multifaceted talent, he transcended the realms of singing to become a lyricist, composer, musical director, poet, filmmaker, and writer all in one. His songs, often self-written and composed, echoed with a highly emotive and melodious voice, impeccable diction, and poetic brilliance. Driven by a deep-rooted humanism, Hazarika's compositions covered diverse themes, with many advocating for universal brotherhood beyond national and cultural boundaries. His music resonated with love, optimism, and a profound humanistic message, fostering unity and brotherhood across ethnic, community, and linguistic diversities. A true humanist at heart, he used his songs to champion the cause of the downtrodden, oppressed, and deprived, expressing spontaneous human love. Dr Bhupen Hazarika's popularity extended far beyond Assam, encompassing the entire nation, as he sang not only in Assamese but also in various Indian languages, including Hindi and Bengali. His profound sense of societal belongingness earned him the title of "janatar xilpi" or the artist of the masses.

Dr Bhupen Hazarika, a true humanist at heart, weaves the soft sentiments of his compassionate soul into his songs. His musical creations resonate with the shared emotions of the masses, evoking a sense of camaraderie. Through his lyrical expressions, he advocates for the downtrodden, oppressed, and the less fortunate in society, imploring the world to extend humane sentiments towards them. The majority of his songs are spontaneous reflections of genuine human love. Dr. Bhupen Hazarika stands unparalleled in portraying the fair and representative depiction of human suffering, poverty, and trauma. His profound love for people and society, rooted in his ideas, creative thoughts, and the value he places on life, finds eloquent expression in his music, elevating him to the status of the greatest cultural icon of India. With heartfelt emotions, he imparts life's messages to the world, aligning himself closely with the common masses and their struggles, forging a deep connection with the people.

Bhupen Hazarika's broader humanistic approach was shaped and influenced by various notable personalities at different stages of his life. In his childhood, he came into contact with legendary icons of Assamese art, music, and literature, namely Jyoti Prasad Agarwala and Bishnu Rabha. These influential figures planted seeds of nationalism and class consciousness in him. Jyoti Prasad imparted aesthetic philosophy, which later became the stepping stone for Hazarika's poetic creations. Under the guidance of the communist Bishnu Rabha, Hazarika adopted a revolutionary and humanistic approach, intensifying his love for ordinary people and earning him the title of janatar xilpi (artist of the masses).

In the USA (Columbia University), Bhupen Hazarika developed intimate contact with the African-American revolutionary singer Paul Robson, giving his humanism a new dimension. Glimpses of Robson are evident in Hazarika, both in his positivist humanistic approach and his works. Bhupen Hazarika expressed, "he was a social singer with the power to change... I too wanted to be a singer with the power to change society." Paul Robson's "Ol' man river" resonates in Hazarika's immortal composition "Bistimo parore," with its Bangla and Hindi versions enjoying immense popularity alongside the Assamese rendition.

The Assamese nationalism witnessed his broader humanistic approach during the tumultuous periods of Assam in the sixties and the eighties, marked by ethnic conflicts between Assamese and Bengalis reaching their peak. Bhupen Hazarika played a pivotal role in these challenging times. He composed songs such as "Morome bhaxar akhar naikia" (language of love doesn't have an alphabet). Additionally, he established a peace-seeking cultural troop and visited violence-affected areas, personally meeting the people affected by the strife.

The Bhupendriam kaleidoscope weaves together countless hues and shades of humanity. Bhupen Hazarika, a true humanist, dedicated his efforts to the pursuit and fight for a society free from prejudices and discrimination. Addressing issues such as casteism, the rich-poor divide, and the struggles of those facing economic depravity, Hazarika's concerns formed a diverse tapestry with a common motive—to empower common people to resist the hardships of life. Through his compositions, Hazarika shed light on aspects of everyday human life that demanded the attention and concern of society.

Dr Bhupen Hazarika's songs serve as powerful sermons on brotherhood and human bonding, carrying profound messages of protest, compassion, and peace. To him, music embodies the spirit of the people, acting as the common thread that connects individuals. Throughout his life, he lent his voice to the voiceless, using his melodies to empower millions to speak out against discrimination and inequality. Many of his timeless compositions resonate with a vocal stance against the hardships faced by the common masses and the destitute. In this paper, selected songs of Dr. Hazarika are taken up for discussion.

Bhupen Hazarika's Songs of human interest
Manuhe manuhor babe/Jadihe akano nebhabe/Akani xahanub-hutire/Bhabiba koneno kowa, samaniya?

(If a man doesn't think of man with little sympathy..... tell me o friend who will....?)

The song is considered the most poignant one, encapsulating the liberal ideals of humanity that Bhupen Hazarika sought to impart. It unequivocally emphasizes the necessity for fellow-feelings and bonds between people in a humanistic manner. Throughout his life, Bhupen Hazarika endeavored to promote unity and brotherhood among people, transcending barriers of ethnicity, community, language, and more. This particular song stands as a testament to those cherished ideals, providing solace to our stressed and bereaved souls through its exquisite blend of love, optimism, and humanism.

In the same song,
Manuh jodihe nohoy maanuh./Daanob kahanui nohoy maanuh./Jodi daanob kahaniba hoye maanuh./Laaj paabo kunenu kowa?..Xamaniya.

He asks if we human fail to act as a human being... a demon can never be a human being, if a demon acts as a human being, we will be ashamed.

In another song,
Xitore xemekara rati/Xemekara xitore rati/Bastra bihin kono khetiyakar.../Bhagi pora pojatir tuh jui/ekurat, umi umi joli thoka,/Raktim jen eti uttaph hou...

On a withered winter night, may I become the warm red glow emanating from the slowly burning ember in the tattered hut of a clothless farmer. Bhupen Hazarika's words resonate with and inspire the working masses and oppressed classes whom he sought to embrace. He passionately lamented the plight of the oppressed, vehemently opposing all forms of hierarchy and domination. Through his songs, he became a strong advocate for the poor and marginalized sections of society, challenging those in positions of power to bring about change. In the poignant line, "Bastra bihin kono khetiyakar.../Bhagi pora pojatir tuh jui ekurat, umi umi joli thoka, Raktim jen eti uttaph hou... (may I be in a cloth-less peasant's broken hut, with the slowly burning ember from the hay, the red glowing warmth), he vividly depicts the struggles of the working masses. Dr. Hazarika's relentless pursuit was for brotherhood and emotional integration among the global human family.

The essence of universalism finds its most poignant expression in his song "Moi Eti Jajabor" (I am a vagabond).

moi luitor pora mississippi hoi/volgar rup salu/ottawar pora austria hoi/peris haboti lolu/moi illoror pora puroni rohon/chicagole koriyalu/moi Galibor sher dushanber/minarot huna palu/Mark Twainor homadhit bohi/Gorky kotha kolu/bare bare dekhur bator manuh/apun hoise bor/heiye moi jajabor/heiye moi jajabor

(He travelled and traversed from the Luhit (the river Brahmaputra) via Mississippi to Volga, from Ottawa via Austria to Chicago, heard Galib's Sharyar in the Minar of Dushanbe, spoke of Gorky sitting at Mark Twain's tomb and embraced the strangers as his own.) In this song, he identified himself with the common masses of the world. He is a vagabond and wonders with only one intention in mind, i.e. unification of human mind. He is without home & family but, embraces the whole world as his own family.

Bhupen Hazarika lamented the plight of the poor and their sufferings and was against all forms of hierarchy and exploitation. So, in the same song - Moi Dekhisu Onek Gogonsumbi Ottalikar Hari, Tar Sa Tei Dekhisu Kotona Grihohin Noronari...

(I've seen many skyscrapers, but also seen countless homeless by the side of those skyscrapers.)

In another song,
Aami ekekhn naore jatri/Xahayatri ekekhn naore jatri.....

(We are in the same boat brother, if you tip one end you will rock the other.....)

He cultivated a warm and universal glow of humanity, with his sense of humanism extending beyond the confines of his political boundaries. Despite recognizing the common thread of humanity, he retained his original roots, enriching them in the process.

Bhupen Hazarika's love extended to people, with their habitat, life, culture, and social security prominently shaping his philosophy of life. He forged a deep connection with the common masses and their struggles, drawing himself much closer to the people. Through his songs, he resonated with their feelings, sentiments, pains, sufferings, hopes, and aspirations, standing steadfastly by them. At times, his songs took on a bitter tone, serving as a poignant expression of protest and compassion.

In another song,
Prothom nohoi/Dwitiyo nohoi/Tritiyo shrenir yatri amii/Jiwan relor dabat amii/Prothom nohoi/Dwitiyo nohoi/Tritiyo shrenir yatri amii

(Neither first, nor second.....are we the passengers of the third class.)

In celebrating the resilience of the working masses, Bhupen Hazarika identified himself as a fellow traveler journeying towards the same destination. This song encapsulates an optimistic expression of Bhupen Hazarika's human philosophy.

Bhupen Hazarika actively seeks, strives, and fights for the establishment of a society devoid of prejudices and discriminations. Delving into issues such as casteism, the rich-poor divide, and the challenges faced by those experiencing economic hardship, Hazarika's concerns form a diverse spectrum united by a common motive—to empower ordinary individuals to resist the hardships of life. As a humanist, Bhupen Hazarika utilizes his compositions to shed light on aspects of common human existence that demand the collective concern of society. The Humanistic Philosophy of the Song 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe'

By: Himangshu Ranjan Bhuyan

The song 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe' by Bharat Ratna Dr Bhupen Hazarika, renowned worldwide, is regarded as one of his finest creations. Every line of this song expresses the profound philosophy of humanism in a deeply meaningful and intricate manner. Through this song, the dignity of human life, responsibility towards one another, and the indispensability of unity in society are beautifully highlighted. Composed against the backdrop of the language movement of 1960-61, this song emerged during a complex and critical period in Assam. At that time, linguistic, cultural, and social divisions had created chaos in society. Yet it must be acknowledged that the message of this song is not confined to the circumstances of that era alone. Transcending the boundaries of time, it has secured a place as an eternal ideal of universal humanism. The lines of the song delicately present the struggles of human life, respect for its dignity, and the importance of empathy towards others.

Humanism is a philosophy that places the dignity, value, and freedom of human life at the highest pedestal. The core foundation of this philosophy is the belief that every individual possesses an inherent dignity, and the fullness of their life depends on mutual empathy and cooperation. The essence of this philosophy is beautifully expressed in the central theme of 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe'. Through the opening lines, "Manuhe manuhor babe, jodihe okono nebhabe, okoni sohanub-hutire hhabib koneno kowa somoniya," he raises a profound question about the lack of responsibility among people towards one another. Through these lines, he clearly explains that if people remain indifferent to the suffering and hardships of those around them, the human values of society will gradually erode. This question creates a moral awakening in the listener's mind, compelling them to reflect deeply on their actions and responsibilities. This part of the song makes evident the interdependence of human lives. Through this interdependence, people from all strata of society remain bound by the thread of unity. This aspect of humanism illuminates the truth that the true fulfillment of human life lies not merely in personal happiness and prosperity, but in the effort to enrich the lives of others. The depth of this sentiment in the song lies in its inspiration for people to rise above selfishness and think about the overall welfare of society. Through this philosophy, the song issues a universal call capable of awakening the values of humanity in the listener's mind. Through this call, the lyricist encourages people to become conscious of the dignity of their own lives and work for the betterment of society. The profundity hidden within the simplicity of these lines makes the song comprehensible and impactful for people of all classes.

Empathy is one of the fundamental aspects of humanism, which closes the doors of division among people and binds society with the thread of unity. From the very first line of 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe', the word "empathy" acquires a special significance. Through this word, the Sudhakantha conveys a clear message—if people do not express empathy towards the pain and suffering of others, the human values of society will gradually be plundered. This concept of empathy is not limited to personal relationships alone; it plays a crucial role in the structure of the entire society. When one person opens the door of their heart to another's pain, they not only become a participant in that pain but also open a path to lighten its burden. In this part of the song, the lyricist has subtly presented the power of empathy, which creates a profound impact on the listener's mind. The song clearly mentions how the lack of empathy among people from different strata of society leads to division and isolation. Through empathy, people reveal their human qualities, paving the way for peace and harmony in society. This aspect unveils a universal truth of humanism—that without empathy, human life remains incomplete, and the progress of society comes to a halt. The depth of this part of the song lies in the fact that it is not merely an emotional appeal but also raises the issue of a moral responsibility to bind people from all strata of society with the thread of unity. This concept of empathy inspires people to rise above their self-interest and become sensitive to the pain and suffering of others' lives. Through this message, the song has succeeded in awakening a sense of unity among people from all strata of society.

In an important part of the song, Dr Bhupen Hazarika raises a sharp criticism against the divisions and exploitation prevalent in society. Through the lines "Manuhe manuhok besib khujii, manuhe manuhok kinib khujii", he points to that dark aspect of society where people exploit others' lives for their own interests. These lines present an opposite picture of humanism, where human qualities are lost, and the web of selfishness engulfs the overall structure of society. The lyricist's criticism was not limited to the society of that time alone; this message remains equally relevant today. In modern society, due to economic inequality, class divisions, and social exploitation, human life has become increasingly complex. In this part of the song, the lyricist strikes a protest tone against this exploitation, compelling the listener to question their own actions. Through this criticism, an important aspect of humanism is revealed—that the value of human life becomes meaningful only when it frees others' lives from the clutches of exploitation. The depth of this part of the song lies in the fact that it is not confined to criticism alone but provides a search for a moral path where cooperation and harmony prevail over exploitation. Through this criticism, the Sudhakantha calls upon people from all strata of society to become conscious of the consequences of their actions and to show respect for the dignity of others' lives. Through this message, the song represents the voice of the exploited and deprived classes of society and brings their life's hardships to the forefront of society. The protest tone of these lines creates a profound impact on the listener's mind, compelling them to reconsider the ethics of their actions.

The historical background of the song adds further depth to its humanistic philosophy. During the language movement of 1960-61, linguistic, cultural, and political instability had emerged in Assamese society. At that time, divisions and conflicts among various communities had disrupted the overall structure of society. Even amidst this situation, Dr Bhupen Hazarika attempted to propagate a universal message of humanism. Through this song, he called upon people from all strata of society to move forward on the path of unity. This historical background gives a special significance to the humanistic philosophy of the song. The lyricist provided a search for the path of empathy, unity, and cooperation to resolve the problems that were dividing society at that time. The relevance of the song's message, born from this background, remains intact even today.

In the modern world, various social, economic, and political problems have complicated human life. In such circumstances, this message of the song can make people conscious of their responsibilities. Through this historical and contemporary relevance, the enduring value of the philosophy of humanism is established. This background gives the song a special depth, which does not confine it within the limits of music alone but establishes it as a carrier of philosophical and social messages. This historical context of the song further strengthens its humanistic philosophy, inspiring the listener to rise above societal divisions and move forward on the path of unity. The message of 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe' is not limited to Assamese society alone but is applicable to people across the entire world. By saying "Manuhe manuhor babe", the lyricist unveils a universal truth—that the primary purpose of human life is to enrich the lives of others. Within this universal call lies a profound philosophy of humanism, which transcends the boundaries of caste, religion, language, or culture and binds people with the thread of unity. This aspect of the song leaves a deep impact on the listener's mind, as it speaks not only of personal responsibility but also raises the issue of accountability towards the entire human race. Through this universality, the song has succeeded in awakening a sense of unity among people from various corners of the world. In today's globalized world, where mutual conflicts among people of different cultures and ethnicities are increasing, this universal message of the song provides a search for the path of peace and harmony. The depth of this aspect of the song lies in the fact that it is not for a specific section of society alone but is an enduring call for the entire human race. This universality has elevated the song to a global level, where it is not merely a specimen of Assamese music but becomes a universal message for all people of the world. Through this message, the song inspires people to rise above the boundaries of caste and religion and build a sense of unity.

A song is not merely a combination of melody and words but a powerful medium through which profound philosophical ideas can be expressed. The artistic value of 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe' lies in its ability to present complex humanistic philosophy through simple and straightforward language. This song creates a deep impact on the listener's heart. Through the melody and rhythm of the song, the message of humanism becomes more vibrant and impactful. Every line of the song reflects a kind of emotional depth, which can make the listener conscious of their responsibilities. Through this medium of art, the lyricist has succeeded in presenting the philosophy of humanism not only on an intellectual level but also on an emotional level. This artistic aspect of the song further strengthens its humanistic message, creating a lasting impact on the listener's mind. Through this aspect, the song has succeeded in establishing its place as a powerful medium of art, opening a unique path to propagate the philosophy of humanism among the general public. Through this artistic value of the song, it is not confined within the limits of music alone but is established as a carrier of philosophical and social messages. This combination of melody and words in the song creates a profound impact on people's minds, reminding them of the dignity of their lives and their responsibilities towards society.

Every line of the song clearly raises the issue of responsibility towards one another. Through this song, Sudhakantha Dr Bhupen Hazarika has attempted to convey a clear message—that every individual in society has certain responsibilities towards others. This responsibility is not only on a personal level but is also extremely necessary for the overall development of society. In the song, he calls upon people to question their own actions. Within this call lies a sense of moral obligation, which is capable of making people conscious of the consequences of their actions. This concept of social responsibility is an inseparable part of humanism, as it inspires people to rise above their self-interest and think about the overall welfare of society. This aspect of the song has succeeded in awakening a sense of unity and cooperation among people from various strata of society, further strengthening the philosophy of humanism. Through this call, the lyricist encourages people to become conscious of the dignity of their lives and work for the welfare of society. Through this message, the song has succeeded in uniting people from all classes of society.

Through this song, Dr Bhupen Hazarika has raised the issue of the freedom of human life and its creative potential. According to humanism, the value of human life is fulfilled only when one contributes to the welfare of society through their creativity and intelligence. This sentiment is clearly evident in the lines of the song, where people are encouraged to shape their own life paths and work responsibly towards society. This aspect reflects that principle of humanism which gives the highest importance to the freedom and creativity of human life. The depth of this part of the song lies in the fact that it calls upon people to have faith in their potential and use it for the welfare of society. Through this call, the lyricist encourages people to become conscious of the dignity of their lives and work for the overall development of society. This aspect gives the song a special significance, which is capable of illuminating the creative potential of human life.

The optimism of human life and faith in the future is another important aspect of the humanistic philosophy of the song. Through this song, Dr Hazarika has expressed an optimistic perspective, which encourages people not to give up amidst all adversities of life and to work for the welfare of society. This aspect of humanism emphasizes the potential of human life and its creativity. This optimistic perspective is clearly evident in the lines of the song, where people are encouraged to have faith in their lives and work for the welfare of society. This aspect has elevated the song to a universal level, where it is not confined to the context of Assamese society alone but becomes a universal message for all people of the world. Through this optimistic perspective of the song, the lyricist inspires people to live with hope amidst all adversities of life and work for the welfare of society. The depth of this aspect lies in the fact that it is capable of illuminating the potential of human life.

In conclusion, it can be said that 'Manuhe Manuhor Babe' is a brilliant expression of the humanistic philosophy of Sudhakantha Dr Bhupen Hazarika. Through this song, he has built a powerful protest against exploitation, inequality, and injustice in society. The lines of his song clearly reflect the hardships and struggles of the lives of the exploited class. He has shown that one section of society has always been a victim of exploitation, and there is a need for a collective protest against this exploitation. The lines of his song represent the voice of the exploited, bringing their life's hardships to the forefront of society. Through this song, he has envisioned a society where there is no place for exploitation, inequality, and injustice. This ideology of his is consistent with the universal ideals of humanism. The lines of his song make the reader or listener conscious of their responsibilities and compel them to think about their role in society. Through the song, he has succeeded in uniting people from all classes of society. The power of his song is a powerful expression of humanism. The message of this song always reminds us that living for one another is the true fulfillment of life.

Bhupen Hazarika@100: A voice beyond borders and time

By: Dipak Kurmi

When India remembers its greatest cultural icons, the name of Bhupen Hazarika rises like the Brahmaputra itself—steady, powerful, and uncontaminable. As the country steps into the centenary year of his birth, beginning September 8, 2024, it is impossible to think of him without invoking the river alongside which he grew up, and which shaped his art, his politics, and his conscience. To many, his voice was not merely a vessel for songs but an echo of the Brahmaputra's eternal current—majestic, unrelenting, and carrying both sorrow and hope in equal measure.

For decades, Hazarika's compositions articulated the conscience of a troubled region. The Northeast of India, often described as peripheral in the national imagination, found in his music a voice that could travel across boundaries of language, ethnicity, and geography. Through folk-rooted melodies that spoke of boatmen, rivers, tribal traditions, and forgotten idioms, he constructed bridges between a culturally rich but politically neglected Assam and the rest of the nation. His themes—solidarity, dignity, humanity, and resistance—resonated far beyond Assam's borders, turning his work into a timeless call for empathy and justice.

Early Life: Music by the River
Bhupen Hazarika was born in 1926 in Sadiya, a town in unified Assam, situated by the deepest point of the Brahmaputra. He was the eldest of ten siblings in a family deeply immersed in education and culture. His grandfather had established a school in Sivasagar, and his father, Neelkantha Hazarika, taught there before moving on to Cotton College in Guwahati. But while academics formed one part of his environment, it was music that defined young Bhupen's world.

His mother's lullabies and the tribal songs that surrounded his childhood instilled in him the musical instincts that later matured into compositions of staggering emotional depth. Traces of these early lullabies would later find their way into his acclaimed film scores, including in Kalpana Lajmi's Rudaali (1993), where the haunting notes bear unmistakable echoes of Assamese folk traditions.

Hazarika's prodigious talent revealed itself early. At just ten years old, he sang at a public event in Tezpur. Among those in the audience were Jyotiprasad Agarwala, the pioneering poet, playwright, and filmmaker credited with founding Assamese cinema, and Bishnu Prasad Rabha, a political activist, composer, and writer. They immediately recognized his brilliance. Between 1936 and 1940, young Hazarika accompanied Agarwala to Kolkata, where he recorded songs, including for Agarwala's 1939 film Indramalati. He also absorbed Rabha's musical and political influences, which shaped his lifelong understanding of art as a social weapon.

After schooling, Hazarika pursued political science at Banaras Hindu University (BHU). There, he was enthralled by the shehnai of Ustad Bismillah Khan, often visiting the maestro to learn the nuances of Hindustani classical music. His circle of acquaintances expanded to include young political leaders, among them Chandra Shekhar, the future Prime Minister of India. These years opened his eyes to caste prejudice and political exclusion, themes he would wrestle with in both his personal and creative life. His inability to marry an upper-caste Brahmin woman due to social orthodoxy left a deep scar and further reinforced his resolve to fight against discrimination.

In 1948, after a brief stint with All India Radio, Hazarika left for the United States on a scholarship to Columbia University, where he pursued a PhD in Mass Communication. His time in New York proved transformative. He befriended African-American musician and activist Paul Robeson, whose powerful rendition of "Ol' Man River" exposed him to the idea of music as protest. Hazarika reimagined Robeson's song in Assamese as Bistirno Parore and later in Bengali as Bistirno Duparey, transplanting the imagery of the Mississippi onto the Brahmaputra and, at times, the Ganga. This adaptation was not mimicry but reinvention: Robeson's lament over racial struggles became Hazarika's anthem for resistance, dignity, and human solidarity in the Indian context.

On his way back from America, he traveled via France and even encountered

Music as a Social Weapon
Returning to India, Hazarika immersed himself in the Indian People's Theatre Association (IPTA), an organization where art was wielded as a weapon for social justice. He absorbed from mentors like Agarwala and Rabha the conviction that art must confront power and give voice to the silenced. His music, thus, was never a passive reflection of culture—it was a deliberate intervention.

Through the 1960s, he composed for and directed Assamese films such as Shakuntala (1961) and Pratidhwani (1964), as well as Bengali films in West Bengal and Bangladesh. His baritone voice—at once commanding and tender—became instantly recognizable, particularly in songs like Samay dheere chalo and Dil hoom hoom kare. Beyond melody, his lyrics often questioned inequality, called for peace, and celebrated humanity.

But Hazarika's role was not limited to cinema and records. He was a public figure whose songs became entwined with Assam's political ferment. In the early 1980s, during the anti-immigration agitation in Assam, his songs—though written earlier as critiques of systemic injustice—were appropriated by the masses as expressions of anger and hope. They articulated fears of cultural erasure and yet retained a universal appeal, warning against violence even as they gave voice to unrest.

By the time the United Liberation

Front of Asom (ULFA) emerged in 1987 under Paresh Barua, Hazarika's music had become inseparable from the political imagination of the state. Though ULFA initially enjoyed popular support, its descent into violence disillusioned many. Hazarika, meanwhile, remained committed to peace. At the 50th anniversary celebrations of All India Radio Guwahati in 1998, he spoke movingly about reconciliation. Soon after, Barua himself reportedly called him, admitting that he too longed for peace. Hazarika offered to mediate between ULFA and the Union Government, underlining his stature not merely as an artist but as a moral leader.

Recounting his village road shows, he once said: "During those shows, I have met many angry young men who have said to me, 'Dada gana chod do aur gun le lo' (Leave your song and take up the gun). I told them that my gaan (song) is my gun." In this statement lies the essence of Hazarika's philosophy: the belief that music could be more potent than violence in confronting injustice.

A Multifaceted Career

Hazarika's career defied categories. He was a poet, composer, singer, filmmaker, writer, editor, and even a politician. Over his lifetime, he wrote and composed more than 1,500 songs, made 14 films, and composed music for around 70 others. He also edited literary magazines like Amar Pratidhwani and Pratidhwani, authored books, and served in key cultural institutions such as the Sangeet Natak Akademi and the Assam Sahitya Sabha.

His partnership with filmmaker Kalpana Lajmi in the 1970s added another dimension to his career. He composed for her films Ek Pal (1986), Rudaali (1993), and Daman (2001), creating music that reached pan-Indian audiences. The haunting "Dil hoom hoom kare" from Rudaali, with its fusion of folk strains and cinematic sweep, remains one of the most enduring pieces in Indian film music. His personal relationship with Lajmi, which lasted until his death in 2011, was equally significant in his life.

Recognition for his work poured in steadily. He received numerous National Awards, including the Dadasaheb Phalke Award for lifetime contribution to Indian cinema. He was conferred the Padma Bhushan by the Government of India. The Government of Bangladesh, acknowledging his cultural solidarity with its people, bestowed its highest civilian honor upon him in 2010 for his song Manush manusher jonnai (Humans are for humans), which became an anthem of shared humanity across borders. In 2019, eight years after his death, he was posthumously awarded the Bharat Ratna, India's highest civilian honor.

Yet Hazarika also ventured into active politics. He served as an independent MLA in Assam from 1967 to 1972. Later, he joined the Bharatiya Janata Party and contested the Lok Sabha elections from Guwahati, though unsuccessfully, losing to Congress candidate Kirip Chaliha. His political career was short-lived, but it reflected his lifelong urge to engage directly with issues beyond the stage.

The Eternal River
Bhupen Hazarika passed away in 2011, but like the Brahmaputra, his presence continues to flow through the consciousness of Assam, the Northeast, and India at large. His centenary is not merely a moment of nostalgia but a reminder of what he stood for. He believed in the power of art to heal fractured societies, to fight against oppression without surrendering to violence, and to assert the dignity of the marginalized.

The Brahmaputra was his eternal metaphor—its vastness a symbol of human endurance, its turbulence a reflection of social conflict, its flow an emblem of continuity. Just as the river connected distant shores, Hazarika's songs connected fragmented peoples, reminding them that humanity itself was the greatest bond.

As India celebrates his hundredth year, his words still resonate: songs are not mere entertainment; they are weapons of conscience. In the troubled times of his life, Hazarika wielded his voice like a river—ceaseless, powerful, and forever carrying the echo of humanity. (The writer can be reached at dipakkurmipltd@gmail.com)

In the lush green valleys of Assam, where the mighty Brahmaputra River winds its way like a silver thread through the heart of the land, a voice was born that would echo across generations. That voice belonged to Bhupen Hazarika, a man whose life was as vast and nurturing as the river he loved so deeply. People in Assam still call him the Bard of the Brahmaputra, or Sudha Kontho, the sweet-throated singer, because his melodies carried the soul of their homeland far beyond its borders. Born on a crisp September morning in 1926, in the quiet town of Sadiya, Bhupen came into a world rich with stories, songs, and the gentle rhythm of nature. His father, Nilakanta Hazarika, was a simple man who worked in the railways, but it was his mother, Shantipriya, who first filled young Bhupen's ears with the magic of music. She would sing him lullabies in the evenings, soft tunes drawn from Assam's ancient folk traditions, weaving tales of love, loss, and the beauty of the everyday. As the eldest of ten children, Bhupen grew up in a home buzzing with laughter and learning, where music was not just entertainment but a way to connect with one's roots.

From his earliest days, Bhupen showed a spark that set him apart. His family moved around Assam a bit, following his father's job, but it was in Tezpur, at the age of just ten, that his talent truly blossomed. During a public event at a local school, little Bhupen stepped onto the stage and sang a Borgeet, one of those timeless devotional songs from Assam's Vaishnava heritage, taught to him by his mother. The audience included two giants of Assamese culture: Jyotiprasad Agarwala, a poet, playwright, and the pioneer of Assamese cinema, and Bishnu Prasad Rabha, a fiery artist and freedom fighter. They were stunned by the boy's pure, heartfelt voice. It was like hearing the river itself sing. Moved by his gift, they invited him to Kolkata, then the cultural heartbeat of eastern India. There, in 1936, at the Aurora Studio, ten-year-old Bhupen recorded his very first song for the Selona Company. Standing on wooden crates to reach the microphone, he poured his young heart into the melody, and a star was born. By twelve, he was already lending his voice to Agarwala's groundbreaking film Indramalati, singing tracks like Kaxote Kolosi Loi and Biswo Bijoyi Naujawan. These were not just songs; they were bridges between childhood dreams and a lifelong passion for art that spoke to the people.

As Bhupen grew into his teens, his love for music deepened alongside his thirst for knowledge. He finished his schooling in places like Dhubri and Guwahati, where the mix of Assamese and Bengali influences sharpened his ear for diverse rhythms. The Bhati boatmen's songs from the riverbanks became his favorites, their haunting calls blending sorrow and hope in a way that would later define his own work. After matriculating in 1940, he headed to Cotton College in Guwahati for his intermediate studies, then to Banaras Hindu University for a bachelor's in arts. By 1946, he had earned a master's in political science, but his mind was always wandering back to the melodies of home. Music and politics intertwined early for him; he saw songs as tools for change, much like the freedom struggles stirring across India. In those post-independence years, Bhupen joined All India Radio as a producer, but the pull of bigger horizons was too strong. He left for New York in 1948, enrolling at Columbia University to pursue a doctorate in mass communication. It was there, amid the skyscrapers and jazz clubs, that he discovered influences that would transform his art. He befriended Paul Robeson, the legendary African-American singer and civil rights activist, whose powerful rendition of Ol' Man River left an indelible mark. Robeson's song mourned the struggles of Black workers along the Mississippi, and Bhupen, homesick for his own river, reimagined it as Bistirno Parore, a poignant Assamese ode to the river's wide shores, where the waters whispered of inequality and resilience.

The Bard of Brahmaputra

Returning to India in 1953 with his PhD in hand, Bhupen dove headfirst into the cultural renaissance of Assam. He briefly taught at Gauhati University, sharing his knowledge of film and communication, but soon shifted to Kolkata, the hub of Bengali and Indian cinema. Returning to India in 1953 with his PhD in hand, Bhupen dove headfirst into the cultural renaissance of Assam. He briefly taught at Gauhati University, sharing his knowledge of film and communication, but soon shifted to Kolkata, the hub of Bengali and Indian cinema. There, he became a force in the Indian People's Theatre Association, using plays and songs to rally for social justice and unity. His voice, now richer and more commanding, filled auditoriums and airwaves. He composed music for documentaries and films that highlighted the lives of ordinary folks, from tea garden workers to river traders. One of his early triumphs was the film Era Bator Sur in 1956, where he wore multiple hats as director, producer, and composer. But it was his songs that truly captured hearts. Bhupen wrote over a thousand of them, mostly in Assamese, each one a mirror to the joys and pains of his people. Tracks like Bistrina parore and Ami asomiya painted vivid pictures of the Northeast's landscapes, from misty hills to flooded plains, urging listeners to cherish their heritage while dreaming of a fairer world. His lyrics often wove in themes of universal brotherhood, drawing from the Borgeets and folk tunes he grew up with, but infusing them with modern empathy. In an Assam grappling with identity and change, his music became a gentle conscience, soothing the wounds of insurgency and migration with calls for harmony.

Bhupen's reach extended far beyond Assam's borders, thanks to his work in cinema. He directed and scored several Assamese classics, like Shakuntala in 1960, Pratidhwani in 1964 and Lotighoti in 1966, earning the President's Medal for their evocative storytelling. These films weren't just entertainment; they showcased the raw beauty and struggles of rural life, with Bhupen's scores using traditional instruments like the dotara and flute to evoke the river's flow. His foray into Bengali and Hindi cinema brought Assam's folk essence to a national audience. He collaborated with directors like Kalpana Lajmi on films such as Rudaali and Saaz, where his song Dil Hoom Hoom Kare, a duet that tugs at the soul, introduced Northeast rhythms to Bollywood. Sung with a depth that mirrored the film's themes of widowhood and resilience, it became an anthem of quiet strength. In Bangladesh, his tunes were beloved, bridging cultures with shared stories of rivers and longing. Even in Arunachal Pradesh, he was honored with a gold medal in 1979 for uplifting tribal voices through his art. Bhupen once called himself a jajabor, a wandering minstrel, and indeed, he roamed from studios in Kolkata to stages in Delhi, always carrying Assam in his heart. What made Bhupen truly iconic was how his music touched the everyday lives of people in Assam. During the turbulent Assam Agitation of the 1970s and 80s, when tensions over immigrants boiled over, his songs became rallying cries. Yet, ever the humanist, he criticized the violence while performing to foster peace. Tunes like Moi Eti Jajabor were more than ballads; they were invitations to wander through life's uncertainties with grace, reminding folks that the Brahmaputra, for all its floods, always renewed itself. His words celebrated the tea pickers' toil, the fishermen's solitude, and the warmth of Shillong's hills, making the marginalized feel seen. In a region often overlooked by the rest of India, Bhupen was a proud ambassador, blending local dialects like Mising and Boro into his compositions to honor Assam's mosaic of ethnic voices. He wrote books too, fifteen in all, filled with poems, essays, and children's stories that echoed his belief in education as a path to equality. As president of the Assam Sahitya Sabha in 1993, he championed literature that spoke truth to power.

The world took notice of this unassuming genius. In 1992, he received the Dadasaheb Phalke Award, India's highest cinema honor, for his lifetime of blending song and screen. Padma Shri in 1977, Padma Bhushan in 2001, and posthumously the Padma Vibhushan in 2012 followed, but it was the Bharat Ratna in 2019 that sealed his place among India's immortals, only the second from Assam after Gopinath Bordoloi. Stamps bore his image, and the grand Dhola-Sadiya Bridge over the Brahmaputra was renamed Dr. Bhupen Hazarika Setu in his memory, a fitting tribute to the man who sang its praises. Yet, Bhupen remained grounded, often joking about his nomadic life, saying he had no fixed address but the river's banks.

On November 5, 2011, at 85, Bhupen left this world in Guwahati, his voice silenced by illness. But oh, how it lingers. Today, as we mark nearly a century since his birth, his songs play on river ferries and in school assemblies, teaching young Assamese children about their roots. They remind us that art can heal divides, that a simple melody can carry the weight of a nation's hopes. In an era of fleeting trends, Bhupen's work endures like the Brahmaputra eternal flow, nurturing dreams and washing away sorrows. He wasn't just a singer; he was the heartbeat of Assam, a friend who whispered that humanity's greatest strength lies in its shared stories. And in every note, every word, he invites us still to listen, to feel, and to sing along.

Two drones targeted an industrial facility in Sterlitamak, a city in Russia's Bashkortostan region Ukrainian drones reach deep inside Russia as battle for key city rages on MOSCOW, Nov 4: Ukrainian long-range drones attacked an industrial plant around 1,300 kilometres (800 miles) inside Russia, local officials said Tuesday, while Ukraine's army remained locked in an intense battle to hold back a Russian push on the key city of Pokrovsk in the eastern Donetsk region. Two drones targeted an industrial facility in Sterlitamak, a city in Russia's Bashkortostan region, regional Gov. Rady Habirov said in an online statement. He didn't specify what facility was targeted, but he said that both drones were shot down. There were no casualties, and the facility was operating normally, he said.

Moscow, with officials being unforthcoming about any damage, and unnerved Russians. Ukraine has taken aim at manufacturing plants, oil refineries and military logistics hubs in a bid to disrupt Russia's war effort almost four years after Moscow launched an all-out invasion. Explosions were also heard at an industrial area of the Nizhny Novgorod region, some 800 kilometres (500 miles) from Ukraine, where an oil refinery and a petrochemical plant are located, Russian media reported. Officials did not confirm the reports. Both Bashkortostan and Nizhny Novgorod are among the regions where the Russian Defence Ministry said Tuesday that Ukrainian drones were shot down, claiming that 85 were intercepted overnight. Ukrainian officials said Russia bombed the southeastern Dnipropetrovsk region of Ukraine with drones, missiles and artillery overnight, killing one person and injuring 11 others, including two children. Russia fired seven missiles of various types and 130 strike and decoy drones at Ukraine during the night, Ukraine's air force said. Also, Romania's Defence said Tuesday that Russia carried out two overnight attacks on Ukraine's Danube port infrastructure, close to the border with the NATO member country. Two pairs of fighter jets were separately deployed from two different airbases for air policing missions after "numerous explosions were observed on the Ukrainian shore," the ministry said. On the battlefield, Russia and Ukraine are fiercely contesting control of Pokrovsk, a Ukrainian stronghold in the Donetsk region that Moscow's forces have been trying to capture for more than a year. Russia has, in recent months, intensified its efforts in the area and has claimed its troops are making progress. "Russian forces continue to advance in the Pokrovsk direction and appear to be operating with increasing comfort within Pokrovsk itself," the Institute for the Study of War, a Washington think tank, said late Monday. Philippine air force helicopter carrying 5 crashes while en route to help in typhoon response

MANILA, Nov 4: A Philippine air force helicopter with five personnel on board crashed on Monday in the country's south while flying to help respond to the devastation wrought by Typhoon Kalmaegi, which has already left at least five people dead and set off widespread flooding that trapped residents on roofs in some central villages. The Super Huey chopper crashed near Loreto town in southern Agusan del Sur province, and efforts were underway to locate the air force personnel aboard who were deployed to help provide humanitarian assistance to provinces affected by the typhoon, the military's Eastern Mindanao Command said in a statement. Military officials didn't immediately provide other details about the crash, including the condition of the five air force personnel aboard and what could have caused the crash. Kalmaegi was last spotted over the coastal waters of Jordan town in the central province of Guimaras with sustained winds of 130 kph (81 mph) and gusts of up to 180 kph (112 mph). It was forecast to blow away into the South China Sea late Tuesday or early Wednesday after hitting the western province of Palawan. An older villager drowned in floodwaters in Southern Leyte, where a provincewide power outage was also reported, and another person died after being hit by a fallen tree in central Bohol province, officials said. Three other people died in central Cebu province, where officials reported flooding in several towns and villages.

Gwendolyn Pang, secretary-general of the Philippine Red Cross, said that an unspecified number of residents were trapped on their roofs by floodwaters in the coastal town of Liloan in Cebu, and added that cars either were submerged in floods or floated in another Cebu community. "We have received so many calls from people asking us to rescue them from roofs and from their houses, but it's impossible," Pang told The Associated Press on Tuesday morning. "There is so much debris, you see cars floating, so we have to wait for the flood to subside." Cebu province was still recovering from a 6.9 magnitude earthquake on Sept. 30 that left at least 79 people dead and displaced thousands when houses collapsed or were severely damaged. In Eastern Samar, one of the east-central provinces first lashed by Kalmaegi early Tuesday, fierce winds either ripped off roofs or damaged about 300 mostly rural shanties on the island community of Homonhon, which is part of the town of Guianan, but there were no reported deaths or injuries, Mayor Annaliza Gonzales Kwan said. "There was no flooding at all, but just strong wind," Kwan told the AP by telephone. "We're OK. We'll make it through. We've been through a lot, and bigger than this." (AP)

UN secretary-general warns that war in Sudan is 'spiralling out of control'

DUBAI, Nov 4: The United Nations secretary-general warned on Tuesday that the war in Sudan is "spiralling out of control" after a paramilitary force seized the Darfur city of el-Fasher. Speaking at a UN summit in Qatar, Antonio Guterres offered a stark warning about el-Fasher and called for an immediate ceasefire in the two-year conflict that's become one of the world's worst humanitarian crises. "Hundreds of thousands of civilians are trapped by this siege," Guterres said. "People are dying of malnutrition, disease and violence. And we are hearing continued reports of violations of international humanitarian law and human rights." He added that there also were "credible reports of widespread executions since the Rapid Support Forces entered the city." UN officials have warned of a rampage by the paramilitary Rapid Support Forces after it took over the city of el-Fasher, reportedly killing more than 450 people in a hospital and carrying out ethnically targeted killings of civilians and sexual assaults. The RSF has denied committing atrocities, but testimonies from those fleeing, online videos and satellite images offer an apocalyptic vision of the aftermath of their attack. The full scope of the violence remains unclear because communications are poor in the region. The RSF besieged el-Fasher for 18 months, cutting off much of the food and other supplies needed by tens of thousands of people. Last week, the paramilitary group seized the city. (AP)

9 climbers, including 2 local guides, killed in separate avalanches in Nepal

KATHMANDU, Nov 4: At least nine climbers, including two Nepalese guides, have been killed in two separate avalanches in Nepal, officials said on Tuesday. Seven climbers were buried in an avalanche near Mt. Yalung Ri (6,920m) under Gaushankar Rural Municipality at around 10 am on Monday while attempting to scale the peak, said Deputy Superintendent of Police Gyan Kumar Mahato. A joint rescue mission have been mobilised to retrieve the bodies of the seven climbers, he said. The deceased climbers include two Nepali citizens, two Italians identified as Paolo Cocco and Marco Di Marcello, a Canadian, a French, and a German national. Five others, including three Nepalis and two French nationals, were injured and airlifted to hospitals in Kathmandu. Four more climbers with minor injuries were also rescued from the site. In a separate incident, two Italian climbers, Stefano Farronato and Alessandro Caputo, who had been missing after heavy snowfall since October 28, were found dead inside their tent at Camp I of Mt. Panbari (6,887m) in the Manaslu region. Their bodies were recovered on Tuesday from an altitude of 5,242 metres, police said. Another Italian climber, Velter Parallon, who was stranded with them, was rescued on Sunday. Meanwhile, the Nepal Tourism Board has issued a condolence message on the demise of the mountaineers in the Himalayas of Nepal. "We are deeply saddened by the tragic loss of lives in the avalanche. Our heartfelt condolences go out to the families and friends of the seven victims in Yalung Ri mountain," the tourism board said in the message. (PTI)

Indian Sikhs arrive in Pak to attend events related to Guru Nanak Dev's birth anniversary

LAHORE, Nov 4: About 2,100 Indian Sikh pilgrims entered Pakistan via Wagah border on Tuesday to attend events related to the 556th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak Dev, marking the first people-to-people contact between the two countries after the four-day conflict in May. Pakistan Sikh Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee President and Punjab Minorities Minister Sardar Ramesh Singh Arora, Evacuee Trust Property Board (ETPB) chief Sajid Mahmood Chauhan and Additional Secretary Shrines Nasir Mushtaq received the Indian pilgrims at the Wagah check post. Akal Takht leader Giani Kuldeep Singh Gargaj, Shrimoni Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee delegation led by Bibi Gurinder Kaur and Delhi Gurdwara Management Committee's Ravinder Singh Sweeta were among those who crossed the Wagah border into Pakistan. The Pakistan government had issued 2,150 visas to Indian Sikhs to attend Guru Nanak Dev's birth anniversary. ETPB spokesperson Ghulam Mohyuddin told PTI that some 2,100 Sikhs arrived in Lahore via Wagah on Tuesday. He said that after completing immigration and customs formalities, the pilgrims departed for Gurdwara Janamasthan, Nankana Sahib, by special buses. The main ceremony of Guru Nanak's birth anniversary will be held on Wednesday at Gurdwara Janamasthan, some 80 km from Lahore.

Hegseth praises South Korea's plans to raise its military spending

SEOUL, Nov 4: US Defence Secretary Pete Hegseth praised South Korea's plans to raise its military spending, saying Tuesday that the Asian ally will take a larger role in defending itself from North Korean aggressions as the allies must brace for regional contingencies. Modernising the decades-long alliance between the US and South Korea is a key issue between the two Koreas, as the US apparently wants South Korea to increase its conventional defence capabilities so that Washington can focus more on China. After annual security talks with South Korean Defence Minister Ahn Gyu-back in Seoul, Hegseth told reporters that he was "greatly encouraged" by Seoul's commitment to increase defence spending and make greater investments in South Korean capabilities. He said the two agreed the investments would bolster South Korea's ability to lead its conventional deterrence and defence against North Korea. In a speech at parliament earlier Tuesday, South Korean President Lee Jae Myung asked lawmakers to approve an 8.2 per cent increase in defence spending next year, which he said would help modernise the South Korean military's weapons systems and reduce its reliance on the United States. "We face, as we both acknowledge, a dangerous security environment, but our alliance is stronger than ever," Hegseth said. Hegseth said that he and Ahn agreed to demonstrate works to maintain and repair US warships in South Korea, a move that he said will harness South Korea's world-class shipbuilding capabilities and also "ensure our most lethal capabilities remain ready to respond to any crisis." Hegseth said the South Korea-US alliance is primarily aimed at coping with potential North Korean provocations but must also keep other regional threats in view. "There's no doubt flexibility for regional contingencies is something we would take a look at, but we are focused on standing by our allies here and ensuring the threat of the DPRK is not a threat to the Republic of Korea and certainly continue to extend nuclear deterrence as we have before," he said. DPRK stands for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea — North Korea's official name — while the Republic of Korea is South Korea's formal name. In recent years, the US and South Korea have been discussing how to integrate US nuclear weapons and South Korean conventional weapons in various contingencies. South Korea has no nuclear weapons and is under the US "nuclear umbrella" security commitment. Ahn denied speculation that South Korea could eventually seek its own nuclear weapons program or is pushing for the redeployment of US tactical weapons that were removed from South Korea in the 1990s. He stressed that Seoul remains committed to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. "Because we cannot have nuclear weapons, that's why a system integrating US nuclear capabilities and South Korea's conventional weapons, the CNI (conventional-nuclear integration) framework, has been established," he said. Hegseth and Ahn did not issue a joint statement after the meeting, leaving the details of their agreements unclear. It's unusual for the two countries' defence ministerial talks to end without an immediate joint statement. But Hegseth said there was "no daylight or differences" between the two countries, only "a bigger deal which takes a little more time." (AP)

NEW YORK, Nov 4: New York City is all set to elect a new mayor on Tuesday as the mayoral race enters its final lap, with Indian-descent Zohran Kwame Mamdani emerging as the front-runner to take up the top political post in America's biggest city. Mamdani, 34, born in Uganda and raised in New York City, is a New York State Assembly member and democratic socialist running for Mayor. The Democratic nominee will face off against former New York State Governor Andrew Cuomo, who is running as an independent candidate and the Republican nominee Curtis Slivia on the ballots. Current New York City Mayor Eric Adams, whose administration has been plagued by scandals, dropped out of the mayoral race in September. US President Donald Trump has warned voters that New York City will be a "complete and total economic and social disaster" and its "survival" will be at risk if Democratic candidate Zohran Mamdani wins the mayoral race, as he officially endorsed former governor Andrew Cuomo for the city's top post. In a post on Truth Social on election eve on Monday, Trump also threatened that he will send only the minimum-required federal funds to New York City if Mamdani wins the election and becomes the mayor. November 4 is election day across the US, with polls opening from 6 am to 9 pm. The early voting period, which commenced on October 25, ended on Sunday. Mamdani, the son of renowned Indian filmmaker Mira Nair and Mahmood Mamdani, a Ugandan author of Indian ancestry, upset Cuomo in the Democratic primary race for New York City mayor and was declared victorious in June. The Board of Elections has said that more than 735,000 people voted early in this election, which is about four times more than the number of ballots cast during the 2021 elections. Mamdani has emerged as the front-runner in the NYC Mayoral election race and has promised to "lower costs and make life easier" for New Yorkers as the city gets "too expensive". Mamdani has vowed that as Mayor, he will immediately freeze the rent for all stabilised tenants, and use every available resource to build the housing New Yorkers need and bring down the rent. Promising fast, fare-free buses, his campaign said that as Mayor, he'll permanently eliminate the fare on every city bus — and make them faster by rapidly building priority lanes, expanding bus queue jump signals, and dedicated loading zones to keep double parkers out of the way. Mamdani would also implement free childcare for every New Yorker aged 6 weeks to 5 years, ensuring high-quality programming for all families. With food prices out of control, his campaign also promised that as Mayor, he would create a network of city-owned grocery stores focused on keeping prices low, not making a profit. Mamdani has a plan to bring down the cost-of-living through city-owned grocery stores, universal childcare, and other bold proposals, and he knows exactly how to pay for it, too, the campaign said. China opposes Trump's threat to attack Nigeria

BEIJING, Nov 4: China on Tuesday opposed US President Donald Trump's threat to carry out military action against Nigeria over the alleged persecution of Christians, as it backed the Nigerian government in leading its people to follow a development path in line with its national conditions. Trump on Saturday said if the Nigerian government continues to allow the killing of Christians, the US will immediately stop all aid and assistance to the West African country, and may go for military action to wipe out the Islamic terrorists. Asked for her comments on Trump's threat, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Mao Ning told the media that the Nigerian Foreign Ministry issued a statement, stating that the US' claims did not reflect the current realities in Nigeria, and the government had remained committed to fighting terrorism, strengthening interfaith harmony, and protecting the lives and rights of all its people. As a comprehensive strategic partner, China firmly supports the Nigerian government in leading its people to follow a development path in line with its national conditions, Mao said. "China opposes interference by any country in the internal affairs of other nations under the pretext of religion or human rights and opposes the arbitrary use of sanctions and threats of force," she said. On the reports that Venezuela is seeking missiles and drones following a dozen US strikes on the boats in the region on the suspicion that they carried drugs, Mao said China is opposed to the use of force in the name of fighting drug cartels. China supports enhanced international cooperation in combating transnational crimes, but opposes the use of threats of using force in international relations, and actions that undermine peace and stability in Latin America and the Caribbean, she said. Britain's Treasury chief prepares ground for tax-hiking budget

LONDON, Nov 4: UK Treasury chief Rachel Reeves signalled she will raise taxes in her budget this month, arguing that the economy is sicker than the government knew when it took office last year. Reeves gave a highly unusual speech, three weeks before the Nov. 26 budget, to brace voters and financial markets for the likelihood she will break an election pledge not to increase income taxes or sales tax. "If we are to build the future of Britain together, we will all have to contribute to that effort," she said, in a hint at broad tax increases. "Each of us must do our bit for the security of our country and the brightness of its future." Reeves cited interest payments on the UK's 2.6 trillion pound (USD 3.4 trillion) national debt and a lower-than-expected productivity assessment from the government's economic forecaster as factors behind her decisions. "The productivity performance that we inherited from the last government is weaker than we first thought," Reeves said. "We're putting in more, we're getting out less." On top of that, "the world has thrown even more challenges our way," including US President Donald Trump's tariffs, volatile supply chains and a rise in the cost of government borrowing, she said. While many of the economic challenges are global, Reeves said Britain is especially exposed because of the high debt left by "years of economic mismanagement" under the Conservative Party that was in power for 14 years until 2024. The British economy, the sixth-largest in the world, has underperformed its long-run average since the global financial crisis of 2008-2009, and the centre-left Labour Party government elected in July 2024 has struggled to deliver the economic growth it promised. Inflation remains stubbornly high and growth sluggish, frustrating efforts to repair battered public services and ease the cost of living. Critics say Reeves has made things worse by being overly downbeat and increasing taxes on businesses in last year's budget. (AP)

HC gives two months for maintenance of Papu Nallah-Nirjuli road

HT Correspondent

ITANAGAR, Nov 4: The Gauhati High Court (Itanagar Permanent Bench, Naharlagun) has given the PWD (Highway) two months' time to complete maintenance work on the Papu Nallah-Nirjuli stretch of National Highway-415 Package-B, informed Itanagar Capital Complex Deputy Commissioner Toko Babu.

Speaking to the media on Monday afternoon at the DC office in Chandannagar, DC Babu said that earlier, the court had directed the PWD Highway and the executing agency to carry out the maintenance work, but despite repeated efforts, they failed to comply. On October 31, the High Court again issued directions for repairing and maintaining NH-415, Package-B from Papu Nallah to Nirjuli.

"Today, after the court's direction, I spoke with officers of the Highway department and they confirmed that maintenance work has begun. The entire stretch is to be completed as per the court's orders. A new firm has been assigned the task, as the previous contractor, Woodhill Shivam, failed to carry out the work," DC Babu said.

Earlier, the court had given the contractor one month to complete the maintenance, which remained incomplete. M/s Tama Fabrication Works has now been assigned the maintenance work for the Papu Nallah-Nirjuli stretch, which must be completed within 60 days. The court has also directed the department to file a status report on the progress by December 3 with the matter listed for hearing on December 5.

NSCN issues diktat ahead of panchayat polls

HT Correspondent

DIBRUGARH, Nov 4: As the panchayat elections in Arunachal Pradesh draw near, the NSCN has once again interfered in the election process.

Intelligence agencies have reportedly obtained a document issued by the outfit directing villagers under Wakka, Pongchau, Khakam and Longchan circles in Longding district not to field candidates from any party other than "the ruling government and party."

The diktat, issued by self-styled Major General Shahkoi, warned that anyone violating the order

The court further directed that the construction of the flyover and highway should strictly adhere to the terms of the agreement. The completion date for the highway and flyover has been extended to July 2026, DC Babu said.

A division bench passed the order while hearing Public Interest Litigation (PIL) No. 11/2024, filed in July 2024 in which senior advocate Dicky Pangang appeared for the petitioners.

DC Babu expressed concern over the slow pace of construction under Package B, which begins at Papu Nallah and ends at Nirjuli, causing immense inconvenience to the people of the Itanagar Capital Region. "Despite several assurances from the state government, work continues at a snail's pace. I am equally worried about the progress of the flyover and highway construction. As an administrative officer, I have repeatedly inspected the work and urged the agency to increase workforce and machinery. Everyone is facing difficulties due to the poor road condition and damaged bypass and I am not satisfied with the progress. Nevertheless, we are pursuing the matter to fast-track the work of the highway and flyover construction," he said.

would face "strong action" and a fine of ₹ 20 lakh. The directive has sparked strong reactions in the region, with the Congress taking up the matter with Governor Lt Gen (Retd) K T Parnaik, seeking his intervention to ensure free and fair elections.

Interference from militant outfits in the Tirap, Changlang and Longding (TCL) region is not new. In the past, militants from outside the area have been directly involved in Arunachal's electoral process, often leading to violence, including the assassination of sitting MLA Tirong Aboh and 10 of his family members and associates in May 2019.

HT Correspondent

ANINI, Nov 4: The search operation to locate 29-year-old porter Jamok Pansa, missing for over a month in the high-altitude Kangri Camp area of Dibang Valley, has entered its third phase but was again called off due to extreme weather conditions.

The latest team, led by Aito Miwu, set out from Anini earlier this week to comb the designated search zone but had to return after heavy snowfall and poor visibility made progress impossible. The second phase on October 26 was similarly abandoned due to incessant rain, snow and difficult terrain.

The rescue efforts have been jointly carried out by the District Administration, Indian Army, Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP), Arunachal Pradesh Police, local porters and volunteers. Deputy Commissioner Bekir Nyorak appreciated the dedication and courage of all personnel involved, noting that the terrain and weather have posed significant challenges.

'The NDA under PM's leadership could only lead Bihar to all-around development' Pak terrorists to get 'goli ka jawab goley se' if they attack India again: Shah

DARBHANGA/MOTIHARI/BETIAH, Nov 4: Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Thursday warned Pakistan-sponsored terrorists to refrain from further attacking India, asserting that if they repeat the mistake, "goli ka jawab goley se diya jayega" (they will face cannons for bullets).

Explosives manufactured in Bihar's proposed defence corridor will be used against these terrorists, he said.

"Terrorists from Pakistan attacked our citizens in Pahalgam. They wiped off Sindoor from the foreheads of our mothers and sisters. Prime Minister Narendra Modi avenged it by launching Operation Sindoor within 20 days. The Indian Army neutralised the terrorists on Pakistan's land," Shah said at a poll rally in Bihar.

He also said, "The PM is setting up a Defence Corridor in Bihar. If Pakistan-sponsored terrorists repeat their mistake, 'goli ka jawab goley se diya jayega' (they will face cannons for bullets)."

The cannons to be used against terrorists will be made in Bihar, Shah said. "Unlike the previous Congress regime, the government under Modi's leadership is committed to the safety and security of the nation," he alleged.

Shah launched a blistering attack on RJD supreme Lalu Prasad and his son Tejashwi Yadav for "raising slogans in the praise of late Mohammad Shahabuddin", who was accused of unleashing terror in Siwan during the RJD's 15-year rule in Bihar.

"Lalu and his party raise slogans like 'Shahabuddin amar rahe', dream of 'jungle raj' but Bihar people won't allow these," he said.

Addressing back-to-back rallies in Darbhanga, Motihari and Bettiah, Shah urged voters in Bihar to press the EVM button with the BJP's poll symbol 'lotus' to prevent the return of 'jungle raj' during the RJD rule that had "devastated" the state.

Champaran is witness to "how Bihar's land remained blood-soaked during the RJD's 'jungle raj'," he said. Shah also hit out at Rahul Gandhi, the leader of the opposition in the Lok Sabha, for organising the 'Voter Adhikar Yatra' in Bihar.

"I dare Rahul Gandhi to organise as many yatras as he can to protect infiltrators. We will drive out illegal immigrants," he claimed. Shah promised that if the NDA 6 voting day," the union minister alleged.

Shah claimed that the NDA under Prime Minister Narendra Modi's leadership could only lead Bihar to all-around development.

"Altogether, ₹ 26,000 crore will be spent to harness the Koshi river water to irrigate 'Mithilanchal' and prevent floods in the area if the NDA is voted to power in Bihar...Water of the Ganga, Koshi and Gandak rivers will be utilised for irrigation and to prevent deluge in the state," the former BJP president said. If the NDA retains power in Bihar, people from Mithila, Koshi, and Tirhut will not be required to go to Patna or Delhi for treatment, as they will get quality medical facilities at AIIMS-Darbhangha, he said.

Shah claimed, "As many as 3.60 cr people have been covered with free health insurance up to ₹ 5 lakh crore, while the IT park at Darbhanga will employ the youth."

He slammed the RJD for its complaint to the Election Commission, seeking a pause on the ₹ 10,000 benefit for 'Jeevika Didis', alleging that "three generations of Lalu won't be able to snatch funds transferred" to the self-help groups.

Reiterating that the RJD-Congress insulted 'Chhathi Maiya', the prime minister and his mother, Shah said people of Bihar will "avenge the insult by showing the exit door to such political parties" in the upcoming elections.

"Bihar people never forgive those who insult 'Chhathi Maiya'. The RJD-Congress will be wiped out in the Bihar polls," Shah claimed.

If NDA retains power in Bihar, each district will get one engineering, one medical college in the next five years, he promised.

Asserting that real development could take place only under the NDA, he said, "As many as 423 companies inked pacts for ₹ 1.80 lakh crore investment in Bihar during the business summit. (PTI)

PM wants youth to remain busy making social media reels: Rahul

AURANGABAD, Nov 4: Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Tuesday alleged that Prime Minister Narendra Modi wants the youth to remain busy in making social media reels, so that they stay distracted from pressing problems about education, health and employment.

Addressing back-to-back rallies in Bihar's Aurangabad and Gayaji, Gandhi charged the PM with promoting "addiction" to social media.

"Modi wants you to become addicted to making reels, Instagram, Facebook... This is the new high ('nasha') of the 21st century. He wants such a scenario because this would ensure that the youth remain distracted, and do not hold his government accountable for their problems about education, health and employment," he alleged.

Gandhi also claimed that Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah "were indulging in 'vote chori' (vote theft) in Bihar, as they know the NDA would not win the assembly polls".

The former Congress president also rebutted repeated assertions by the BJP and other NDA leaders that his party, in alliance with the RJD, would bring back "jungle raj" if voted to power in Bihar, and alleged that the PM was promoting lawlessness through vote theft.

"Whenever Modi comes here, he speaks about 'jungle raj'. I will tell you what that is. 'Jungle raj' has been brought in Delhi, by Modi, who is enabling vote theft. He has done so in Maharashtra and Haryana. He wants to do the same in Bihar. But, I am sure that the people of Bihar will defeat his designs," Gandhi asserted.

"The INDIA bloc, if voted to power in Bihar, will be a government of the extremely backward, socially marginalised and Dalits," the Rae Bareilly MP said.

He said it would transform the state into a manufacturing hub, ensure labels of 'made-in-Bihar' on clothes and mobile phones, "so that even China is forced to sit up and take note".

Gandhi also promised to revive the ancient glory of Bihar by setting up a state-of-the-art university at Nalanda, if the opposition bloc came to power. (PTI)

SC to hear in open court NHA's plea for review of verdict on compensation to farmers

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: In a significant development, the Supreme Court has agreed to hear in open court a plea of the National Highway Authority of India seeking review of its verdict, which ruled that the apex court's 2019 decision for the grant of compensation with interest to farmers whose land was acquired under the NHA Act would apply retrospectively.

A bench of Justices Surya Kant and Ujjal Bhuyan issued notice on the review plea and listed the matter for open court hearing on November 11. Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the NHA, had recently told the bench that the matter will have wide implications of around ₹ 32,000 crore and not ₹ 100 crore as was stated earlier in the petition.

"Issue notice, returnable on November 11, 2025, at 3 PM," the bench ordered on Tuesday.

On February 4, the top court, while rejecting NHA's plea, ruled that its 2019 decision allowing the grant of compensation and interest to farmers, whose land was acquired under the NHA Act, would apply retrospectively.

The NHA had sought the applicability of its September 19, 2019 judgment prospectively, thereby precluding the reopening of cases where land acquisition proceedings had already been completed and the determination of com-penetration attained finality.

The bench had said, "We find no merit in the contentions raised by the applicant, NHA. We reaffirm the principles established in Tarsem Singh (2019 decision) regarding the beneficial nature of granting 'solatium' and 'interest' while emphasising the need to avoid creating unjust classifications lacking intelligible differentia. Consequently, we deem it appropriate to dismiss the present miscellaneous application."

The top court had said that in its 2019 decision that Section 3J of the NHA Act, by excluding the applicability of the Land Acquisition Act of 1894 and thereby denying solatium and interest for lands acquired under the NHA Act, was violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. "Regardless, the prayer in the instant application expressly seeks clarification that the decision in Tarsem Singh should be deemed to operate prospectively only."

"However, in our considered view, granting such a clarification would effectively nullify the very relief that Tarsem Singh intended to provide, as the prospective operation of it would restore the state of affairs to the same position as it was before the decision was rendered," the bench had said in February.

Referring to the 2019 decision, which held

Section 3J of the NHA Act as unconstitutional, the top court had said the broader purpose behind the Tarsem Singh verdict was to resolve and put quietus upon the quagmire created by Section 3J of the NHA Act, which led to the unequal treatment of similarly-situated persons.

"The impact of Section 3J was short-lived, owing to the applicability of the 2013 Act upon the NHA Act from January 1, 2015. As a result, two classes of landowners emerged, devoid of any intelligible differentia: those whose lands were acquired by the NHA between 1997 and 2015, and those whose lands were acquired otherwise," it had further said that the 2019 verdict must be viewed in the light of the principle that when a provision is declared unconstitutional, any continued disparity strikes at the core of Article 14 of the Constitution and must be rectified, particularly when such disparity affects only a select group. Illustrating, it had said if the 2019 decision was rendered as prospective, then it would create a situation where a landowner whose land was acquired on December 31, 2014 would be denied the benefit of solatium and interest whereas a landowner whose land was acquired the very next day, January 1, 2015 -- the date on which the ordinance was promulgated -- would be entitled to these statutory benefits. BJP govt will fall if just one eligible voter removed from list in Bengal: Mamata

KOLKATA, Nov 4: West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Tuesday asserted that the fall of the BJP-led government at the Centre would be inevitable if a single eligible voter was omitted from the rolls, and accused the saffron party and the EC of using the SIR as a political tool to intimidate voters before the 2026 assembly polls.

Leading a massive anti-SIR rally in Kolkata, Banerjee charged the Election Commission (EC) of selectively conducting the revision drive in opposition-ruled states while sparing BJP-ruled ones.

"The EC is conducting SIR in states like Kerala, Tamil Nadu and West Bengal, but not in BJP-ruled Assam," the TMC chief alleged.

In these four states, the assembly elections are due next year.

"The Election Commission must also reply why there is no SIR in BJP-ruled Assam, Tripura and other northeastern states," she demanded, calling it "clear discrimination aimed at helping the ruling party at the Centre."

The last SIR in West Bengal in 2002 took at least two years to be completed, she said, and wondered why the EC is "in a hurry" to finish it this time in just a month.

Banerjee branded the current exercise "hurried and politically motivated". "If a single eligible voter is removed from the electoral rolls, we will ensure the fall of this BJP government," Banerjee declared to thunderous applause from her supporters. Challenging the BJP's repeated claims of "illegal voters" in West Bengal, Banerjee asked, "How many Rohingyas or Bangladeshis were found in Bihar after the SIR there?"

She asserted that just speaking in Bengali doesn't make someone a Bangladeshi, accusing the saffron party of spreading fake news and communal propaganda to malign Bengalis. Taking a swipe at the saffron party, the TMC supreme said, "The BJP does not want to win on the basis of votes, but on the strength of notes. If this electoral rolls is fake, then how did the BJP win previous elections held on the basis of the same list?" (PTI)

Nadda uses acronym 'HIRA' to highlight growth in Bihar under NDA rule

PATNA, Nov 4: BJP president Jagat Prakash Nadda on Tuesday used the acronym 'HIRA', which means diamond in Hindi, to highlight the growth witnessed in Bihar under the NDA rule, especially in road, rail, air and internet connectivity.

The union minister, who addressed a rally in Bhojpur district, on the final day of campaign for the first phase of assembly polls in the state, also alleged that the RJD, the main opposition party, stood for 'rangdari' (extortion), 'jungle raj' (lawlessness) and 'dadagiri' (intimidation).

"The people of Bihar might recall the 'Lathi tel pilawan' rally called by RJD president Lalu Prasad in his heyday. It was a clear signal to his detractors that they were better off cowering inside their homes. The state must beware of the party, which is trying to lure voters through promises but in essence remains the same, wearing new clothes", alleged Nadda. He urged voters to "shower blessings on the NDA and ensure that Chief Minister Nitish Kumar retains power".

"The state has discovered 'HIRA' under the BJP-led coalition. H stands for highways, I for internet, R for Railways and A for airports. You all can vouch for the improvement on these counts in the last 20 years", the BJP president said. Nadda also claimed that the Narendra Modi government at the Centre was working towards rapid poverty alleviation, with "over three crore people in Bihar alone having been pulled out of the clutches of deprivation". Crimes against women 'skyrocketed uncontrollably' under BJP-JD(U) rule in Bihar: Cong

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: The Congress on Tuesday alleged that crimes against women have "skyrocketed uncontrollably" under the BJP-JD(U) rule in Bihar and posed questions to Prime Minister Narendra Modi on the alleged "neglect" of women's safety, health, and dignity in the last 20 years.

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge slammed the BJP-JD(U) over the security situation for women and asserted that the Mahagathbandhan is fully committed to their empowerment and economic upliftment.

Kharge said the Congress' promises are not just to garner votes during elections or right before them, but rather, they are the same promises that the party will fulfil.

Congress general secretary in charge of communications, Jairam Ramesh, alleged that for the 20 years under the BJP-JD(U) government in Bihar, there has been a "consistent neglect" of women's safety, health, and dignity.

The prime minister didn't remember to check on Bihar's women for an entire decade, and now, at election time, a sham digital outreach is being staged for votes, Ramesh said.

In a post in Hindi on X, Kharge said, "The BJP-JDU government in Bihar has been in power for 20 years. If even today, Modi ji has to say that in Bihar 'daughters-in-law and daughters are not safe', then this is his self-admission that in 20 years, they have not made Bihar safe!"

He alleged that the situation of women and children in the state is extremely alarming.

Citing data from the National Family Health Survey (NFHS), Kharge claimed that 70 per cent of children in the state were afflicted with anaemia and 40 per cent were victims of malnutrition. Only 11 per cent of infants receive adequate nutrition, he said.

The Mahagathbandhan is fully committed to the empowerment and economic upliftment of half the population, he said, referring to women.

Listing the promises made to women by the Mahagathbandhan, Kharge said they will be given an assistance of ₹ 2,500 per month if the opposition alliance comes to power.

A monthly pension of ₹ 1,500-₹ 3,000 would be given to the elderly, widows, and disabled, while Jeevika Didis will be given official status, he said.

"Our promises are not just to garner votes during elections or right before them, but rather, they are the same promises that we will fulfil-and we have already fulfilled them in Congress-ruled states," he said. (PTI)

Doctors report 60% rise in eye problems as toxic smog engulfs Delhi

Delhi's air quality, which has remained in the 'severe' category since Diwali

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: A thick blanket of smog and toxic air hanging over Delhi has triggered a sharp rise in eye-related ailments like allergies, dryness, burning sensations, and excessive watering, affecting both adults and children, according to the city's doctors.

With the air quality plunging to the severe category after Diwali, ophthalmologists say they have seen a 60 per cent surge in such cases, blaming the toxic cocktail of smoke, particulate matter, and chemical residues from fire-cracker burning. The dangerously high level of pollution, they warned, was not only harmful for the lungs, but for the eyes as well.

Dr Ikeda Lal, Senior Cornea, Cataract and Refractive Surgery Specialist at Delhi Eye Centre and Sir Ganga Ram Hospital, said, "Every year after Diwali, we brace for a rise in eye complaints. The number of patients complaining of itching, redness, and irritation has gone up by almost 50-60 per cent."

"We are seeing patients with severe eye allergies, and those who already have dry eyes are experiencing much more discomfort than usual. The combination of pollution, dust, and chemical exposure is proving extremely harmful for the ocular surface," Lal said. Delhi's air quality, which has remained in the "severe" category since Diwali, has left citizens gasping. Experts warn that prolonged exposure to such toxic air can lead to chronic eye conditions, particularly among people who spend long hours outdoors, such as traffic police, delivery agents, and school children.

Dr Rajesh Sinha, Professor of Ophthalmology at the RP Centre in AIIMS, said in the last few days, the number of patients suffering from dryness, burning, and watery eyes has increased by around 50 per cent.

"Many of them come in complaining that their eyes feel gritty or heavy, which are symptoms typical of pollution-induced ocular allergy. Even healthy individuals are experiencing irritation due to the poor air quality," he said.

"Tiny particulate matter (PM2.5 and PM10) suspended in the air can settle on the surface of the eyes, damaging the tear film and causing inflammation. If preventive measures are ignored, the constant irritation can eventually lead to infections or temporary blurring of vision. For those already prone to allergies or dry eye disease, the risk is much higher," Sinha said.

The eyes, being directly exposed to the environment, are among the first organs to suffer when pollution levels soar. Pollutants like nitrogen dioxide, sulfur dioxide, and carbon particles react with the moisture in the eyes, leading to chemical irritation and inflammation. Lal further said the eyes have a delicate surface and depend on a healthy tear film for comfort and clarity of vision. Pollution disturbs this balance, making the eyes dry, red, and prone to infection. Even short exposure to smog can make eyes sting, itch, or water.

Contact lens wearers and makeup users are particularly vulnerable, as tiny particles trapped between the lens and the cornea can worsen inflammation, Lal said.

Doctors also suggested wearing protective eyewear when stepping outdoors, limiting outdoor activity during peak smog hours, and using air purifiers indoors to reduce exposure to irritant particles.

Those experiencing persistent redness, pain, or blurred vision should consult an ophthalmologist promptly rather than self-medicating, they said.

Sinha said repeated exposure to high pollution levels can lead to chronic inflammation and progressive damage to the ocular surface, affecting both comfort and long-term vision.

"Protecting your eyes is just as important as protecting your lungs during this season. Even small steps like wearing glasses and using lubricating drops can make a big difference," Sinha said.

According to doctors, children's eyes are more sensitive, and since they tend to spend more time outdoors, the risk of allergic conjunctivitis and infections increases.

The elderly, on the other hand, often experience reduced tear production, which makes their eyes drier and more susceptible to irritation. Older adults should stay indoors during peak pollution hours to ensure their eyes remain well-lubricated, they said.

The doctors cautioned that ignoring eye irritation or delaying treatment can lead to long-term damage to the cornea and tear glands. (PTI)

Union Minister reviews implementation of central schemes in Manipur

IMPHAL, Nov 4: Union Minister of State for Home Affairs, Government of India, Bandi Sanjay Kumar, immediately on arrival at Imphal on Monday, reviewed various central schemes and 10% Gross Budgetary Support (GBS) during a meeting at the Conference Hall, Old Secretariat, Manipur, an official report said.

The Union Minister was also briefed on the details of "Fund Released by MHA for Relief Operation & Resettlement / Rehabilitation of IDPs (Internally Displaced Persons)".

During the meeting, the Union Minister of State reviewed various programmes and policies of Central Ministries, departments, organisations (including MHA), for ensuring speedy implementation of flagship and other programs, the report also said.

Bandi Sanjay Kumar assessed the status of different programmes being implemented by various Departments under the State Government in the following sectors: Health, Education, Transport and Connectivity, Power, Tourism, Rural Development, Housing, Agriculture and Food Processing, Handloom, Handicrafts & Textiles among others.

The Minister was briefed on "Action Plans" on improving the above sectors in a time bound manner.

On a query about the number of tourists coming to the State, he was informed that the number of tourists visiting the State has drastically decreased from over 1,79,000 (1,67,000 domestic and 12,000 foreign) in 2019-20 to approximately 17,000 (15,700 domestic and 1,300 foreign) in 2024-25.

Though the decrease is primarily due to civil unrest in the State, another factor deterring tourists from visiting the State is due to exorbitant air fare, the report further said.

Zoramthanga launches attack on ZPM over governance

AIZAWL, Nov 4: Mizo National Front (MNF) president Zoramthanga on Tuesday launched a scathing attack on the Zoram People's Movement (ZPM) government headed by Chief Minister Lalduhoma, claiming that the patriotic youths have become sick of its rule. He said that the ZPM government is undergoing a "test" and is under a scanner to find out whether it is good or bad.

"The patriotic young people are bored with the ZPM government. By destiny, the MNF lost the 2023 assembly polls and the ZPM won. It is just an experimental government. It begins its rule with wearing sackcloth, a Biblical sign of repentance, which is followed by amending the prohibition law," the former chief minister said while addressing a political training in south Mizoram's Lunglei district.

"The ZPM has sold our lands, and they are trying to dispose of our assets. It illegally awards contracts. Roads are in such bad condition that non-tribal travellers can't find roads while travelling in vehicles. The number of lies ZPM has told is innumerable," the former rebel leader turned politician said. Zoramthanga said that the MNF, when it returns to power, will reform and erase all the bad things that have been done by the ZPM.

Although the government levied cess for road construction, roads have not been improved and repaired, he said. "The ZPM is being scanned by voters in all parts of the state. It will hardly win assembly seats. We should make efforts to strengthen our party as we are nearing MNF's year of victory," Zoramthanga said. (PTI)

The NPO then said it does not blame the entire Kuki-Zo community. "In fact, we urged the concerned community-based civil society organisations to identify and present the culprits to our office", the NPO added. The NPO also said the statement issued by CoTU further confirmed that the incident was a deliberate and calculated attempt to insult and dishonour the "living legendary leader" of the Nagas.

NPO warns of supply halt to Kangpokpi over poster desecration

IMPHAL, Nov 4: The Naga People's Organisation (NPO), while reacting Committee on Tribal Unity (CoTU) advisory statement, said on Monday that it "shall take a drastic course of action by completely halting all forms of economic supply passing towards Kangpokpi areas, within 48 hours i.e from the midnight of November 5.

The NPO said that the Committee on Tribal Unity (CoTU) advisory statement issued in response to the Naga People's Organisation (NPO) press release dated October 31, 2025, which condemned and served an ultimatum regarding the incidents of October 29 and October 30 at Daili village near Kangpokpi, "where the poster of the most respected Naga living legend, Eno Th Muivah, was desecrated twice and a huge firecracker was detonated, causing panic among the residents which is deeply regrettable".

The NPO said, "If CoTU truly considers itself a re-

NMC sanctions 50 more MBBS seats for Tripura Medical College, Ambedkar hospital

4 militants killed in gun-battle with security forces in Manipur's Churachandpur

IMPHAL/CHURACHANDPUR, Nov 4: At least four militants, belonging to a banned outfit, were killed in a gunfight with security forces in Manipur's Churachandpur district on Tuesday morning, police said.

Based on inputs about the presence of armed cadres belonging to the proscribed United Kuki National Army (UKNA), an operation was launched around 5.30 am at Khanpi village under Henglep subdivision in the district, a senior officer said.

UKNA is not a signatory to the Suspension of Operations pact signed between the Centre, the state government and the Kuki and Zomi militant groups.

During the operation, a fierce gunfight broke out between army personnel and the militants, the officer said.

"At least four militants were killed during the exchange of fire while several others managed to flee the spot," the officer said, adding that the identities of the deceased are yet to be established.

The militants were identified as Alex Zammaunlal Simte, Thangminlal Haokip, Ginlenjohn Haokip and Thanglenlal Kipgen.

A defence statement said that in the early hours of November 4, terrorists resorted to unprovoked firing on the Army column during an intelligence-based operation at Khanpi village, approximately 80 km west of Churachandpur.

In the ensuing firefight between security forces and armed cadres of UKNA, a non-SOO insurgent group, "four cadres of the terrorist group were neutralised", it said.

"This operation follows recent atrocities by UKNA cadres, including the killing of a village chief, intimidation of locals and attempts to disrupt peace and stability in the region. Successful neutralisation of these terrorists highlights the Indian Army's and Assam Rifles' commitment to protecting innocent civilians, mitigating all threats and ensuring peace and security in Manipur," it said.

Meanwhile, Kuki civil society organisations condemned the killing of four militants in the gunfight and called for a total shutdown in Churachandpur district to "mourn the deaths" on the day of the funeral of the militants, which is yet to be decided. (PTI)

Tourist footfalls decrease to 17,000 in FY25 in Manipur amid ethnic strife

IMPHAL, Nov 4: Tourist footfalls have plummeted in Manipur to nearly 17,000 in 2024-25 from 1.79 lakh in 2019-20, amid ethnic violence between Meiteis and the Kuki-Zo community continuing for more than two years, a statement said.

Not only the unrest in the state, but also the exorbitant airfare is a factor responsible for the decline in the number of travellers in the state, it said.

During a meeting with Union Minister of State for Home Affairs Bandi Sanjay Kumar, who arrived in Imphal on Monday and reviewed various central schemes, the state government officials raised the issue of high airfare.

On a query, Kumar was informed that "the number of tourists visiting the state has drastically decreased from over 1,79,000 (1,67,000 domestic and 12,000 foreign) in 2019-20 to approximately 17,000 (15,700 domestic and 1,300 foreign) in 2024-25", the statement said.

The state officials also urged the central minister to take up the issue with the Ministry of Civil Aviation.

"The decrease in tourist footfalls is primarily due to civil unrest in the state, while another factor deterring travellers from visiting the state is due to high airfare", the statement said.

The union minister was also briefed on the details of "funds released by the Ministry of Home Affairs for relief operation and resettlement/rehabilitation of IDPs (Internally Displaced Persons)", it said.

During the meeting, Kumar reviewed various programmes and policies of central ministries, departments and organisations for ensuring the speedy implementation of various programmes.

Kumar also assessed the status of different programmes being implemented by the departments under the state government. (PTI)

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: Ishaan Khatter hopes for a time when smaller films like "Homebound" can find box office success at par with mainstream blockbusters, but for that to happen, the actor believes the audiences must also become a "stakeholder" in supporting these stories.

"Homebound", directed by Neeraj Ghaywan, struck a chord with international audiences after it premiered at the Cannes Film Festival in May, followed by more such screenings at Toronto and Melbourne. The movie is set to represent India at the Academy Awards next year.

Despite the critical acclaim, the film, which released in Indian theatres on September 26, has only managed to earn Rs 5 crore at the domestic box office.

Khatter, who stars in the movie alongside Vishal Jethwa and Janhvi Kapoor, said he would not label the movie a failure in "any way, shape or form".

"I don't think this film is a failure. I think films have different journeys. As far as the box office is concerned, I think this film is going to have a long life. And this is not coming from a place of... I'm not trying to be deluded or in denial about the box office. I know the numbers very well.

"Our hope is to have it reach as many people as possible. And I'm not going to let up in my efforts in that," the 30-year-old actor told PTI in an interview.

"Homebound" is loosely inspired by journalist Basharat Peer's The New York Times article "Taking Amrit Home (A Friendship, a Pandemic and a Death Beside the Highway)".

The film portrays the childhood friendship between a Muslim and Dalit who chase a police job that promises them the dignity they have long been denied due to their respective backgrounds.

The movie is produced by Dharma Productions' Karan Johar and Apoorva Mehta alongside

Films have different journeys, 'Homebound' will have a long life: Ishaan Khatter

Somen Mishra and Adar Poonawalla. Hollywood veteran Martin Scorsese serves as an executive producer. If smaller films get good numbers at the ticket window, titles like "Homebound" wouldn't be a rarity, Khatter said.

"One does hope for a time where films like these will also see the kind of numbers that you see a big commercial blockbuster having because that would change things. It would create a kind of culture where films like these are allowed to exist and thrive and be made much more. Unfortunately, you see a rare film like this every once in a while.

"And in order to change that, the audience has to become an active participant, almost like a stakeholder." Still, the actor said he is happy with the response to the movie.

"Call me an idealist or an optimist, but I still think that the way that this film has been showered with love and the people who have seen it, the way that they are going out talking about it and championing it, my hope is that it keeps growing, not only theatrically, but also once the digital release happens, once it makes a little more noise internationally. "I have personally seen the universality of this film. I've seen the range and diversity of the audiences that have watched it and connected with it." He said the movie had a hectic production and release timeline -- from completing the film to submitting it for Cannes within 40 days, followed by festival runs in Toronto, Melbourne, and Zurich. 'Umrao Jaan' was poetry coming alive: Filmmaker Muzaffar Ali

NAINITAL, Nov 4: For veteran filmmaker Muzaffar Ali, his 1981 masterpiece "Umrao Jaan" was more than a period drama -- it was poetry finding a visual form.

Speaking at the recently concluded 10th edition of the "Himalayan Echoes: Kumaon Festival of Literature & Arts", Ali said with "Umrao Jaan", he was, in essence, telling "the story of a poetess through poetry".

"I was always a poetry-driven person. For me, 'Umrao Jaan' was poetry coming alive. It came from my days after leaving Aligarh, from all the poets I spent time with, and from the imagery they instilled in my thinking and life," said Ali, who has also directed "Gaman", "Aagaman", "Anjuman", and "Jaanisaaar".

To keep the essence of the story intact, he ensured that poet-lyricist Shahryar stayed with him in Mumbai throughout the process.

Shahryar was someone who, Ali said, would "think and dream in poetry".

"Yeh kya jagah hai doston, yeh kaun sa dayaar hai" was the starting point. And to this, Shahryar would say, "Why are you making me do this women's poetry?" And I told him, "This women's poetry is what will stay alive." And that is true.

The entire trajectory of Umrao's character - from her transformation into a courtesan, her experiences of love and rejection, to her eventual disillusionment and return to her roots - was a poetic journey," he added. Set in the opulent world of 19th-century

Lucknow, "Umrao Jaan", based on Mirza Hadi Ruswa's Urdu novel, tells the poignant story of a young girl named Amiran from Faizabad, who is kidnapped by her father's rival and sold to a brothel in Lucknow.

There she is renamed Umrao Jaan and trained in music, dance, and poetry, eventually becoming one of the most celebrated courtesans of her time. The story explores her journey from innocence to fame and the emotional scars that come with it. The 81-year-old director remains grateful for his collaboration with composer Khayyam and Shahryar, a partnership of music, words, and vision which, he noted, was what breathed life into the very soul of the film.

"Fortunately, we all lived close by. We would walk to each other's homes, constantly exchanging thoughts and ideas," he said.

On veteran actor Rekha, who played the titular role, Ali said he always knew she had it in her to bring the iconic character to life.

He also fondly recalled singer Asha Bhosle's dedication and "extraordinary commitment" towards the project.

"She was ready to sing in a lower scale, wanted me to narrate the entire book to her, and was determined to recreate the world of Lucknow out of Bombay. She was willing to go that extra mile," he recalled.

When asked why he chose to tell the story from a woman's perspective, Ali explained that women are the true bearers of culture, with a depth of perception men often lack. "When you narrate a story through a woman, you can't go wrong. With a man, it's a hit or miss," he concluded.

"Umrao Jaan" won four National Film Awards, including best actress for Rekha. The film rereleased in theatres in June this year.

The two-day festival, focused on both literature and nature, was attended by celebrated writer Stephen Alter, Booker-longlisted author Anuradha Roy, Nepali economist Sujeev Shakya, environmentalist Vandana Shiva, and others. (PTI)

SRK thanks Akshay Kumar, Shashi Tharoor and others for birthday wishes

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: Superstar Shah Rukh Khan thanked actors Akshay Kumar, Juhi Chawla, Anupam Kher as well as politician Mamata Banerjee and Shashi Tharoor for their heartfelt birthday wishes.

Shah Rukh celebrated his 60th birthday on Sunday.

"Thank u Akki for singing Happy Birthday to me... you've taught me the secret to looking good and thinking smart. Ab Khiladi ki taraah jaldi uthna bhi sikhaade. Ha ha," he replied to Akshay Kumar, his "Dil To Pagal Hai" co-star.

The actor also thanked his "Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge" co-star Anupam Kher who had uploaded a lengthy video congratulating Shah Rukh.

"Thank u @AnupamPKher for the heartfelt video. Big hugs and lots of love to you always. Some of the fondest memories in my journey of films are with you. I hold you in the highest regard. Love u. (And yes we must find ways to spend more time... maybe a film would be nice)," his tweet read.

Shah Rukh is also a co-owner of the Indian Premier League (IPL) team, Kolkata Knight Riders and was wished by CM Mamata Banerjee. He thanked her in a post.

"Thank u for your kind words Mamata Di. Wishing you the best. Will visit Kolkata soon..." he said.

Replying to Shashi Tharoor, who in a witty tweet, compared the actor's youthful appearance to "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button", SRK said the politician will be around to see him play the child star.

"Thank u... Although I'm sure you will be around to see me playing the 'child star'... and I will copy your hairstyle then. Ha ha." Shah Rukh joked. He also thanked his frequent collaborator, "Darr" co-star Juhi Chawla as she wished him by planting trees.

"Thank u Juh... thoughtful as always. Me tell them next good cause on the agenda that you will be involved in has to be a jungle of love..." he wrote. (PTI)

Got half a star for my film first time but no complaints: Harshvardhan Rane on 'Ek Deewane...' success

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: "Ek Deewane Ki Deewaniyat" is the biggest hit of Harshvardhan Rane's career and has also earned him some of the worst reviews but the actor says negative feedback only motivates him to do better.

Directed by Milap Zaveri, the romantic drama released on October 21 and also features Sonam Bajwa alongside Rane. The film, which released alongside "Thamma", has already crossed the mark of Rs 100 crore at the worldwide box office and continues to attract the audiences to the theatres.

"You give me negative feedback, I'll give you all the love in my heart because it motivates me to build on it. I have got half a star for the first time... And I have no complaints about it. My heart doesn't hold anything right now. There is no heaviness. "They (critics) are getting paid for saying what they feel. They are not trying to put us down or put anybody down. It is just a job and part of the job is to give stars. The people who have given this half-star have really appreciated my other films. So, I know they are actually good people who are doing a job," Rane told PTI in an interview.

The film revolves around Rane, a politician, who falls for a strong-willed superstar, who rebuffs his advances.

Despite the box office numbers, many critics have rated the film to be poor, pointing out how it propagates themes of toxic masculinity and revenge.

According to Rane, there is something very Indian about the movie's story.

"Yes, there are parts that are dramatic and bold and you might not want to face in real life. But that's how cinema is. There is always some heightened drama. But there was always this Indian-ness to this. And I love Indian emotions," he said Rane made his acting debut in 2006 with the television show "Left Right Left" and went on to feature in several projects, including Netflix's romantic thriller "Haseen Dillruba" and Telugu film "Kavacham", among others.

But it was the re-release of his 2016 film "Sanam Teri Kasam", earlier this year, which served as a breakthrough project for the actor.

Although declared a flop at the box office during its original release, "Sanam Teri Kasam" emerged as the highest-grossing re-released film in India, giving Rane a much delayed appreciation from the audience.

Rane said when "Sanam Teri Kasam" became a big hit after its re-release, there were many who called it a "fluke" and it broke his heart.

"But then I thought, you give me half a star, I'll work harder. You call it tukka (fluke), I'll work harder," he added.

The actor said he has finally reached a stage where audiences are organically going to theatres to watch his movies.

"It is delayed gratification... it is the opposite of what we get on social media, where you put a picture and you suddenly get likes... I had put this picture up 20 years ago, and today I am getting the likes. So, it is a 20-year-old social media post in a way. That credit goes to the directors," Rane said.

The success of "Ek Deewane Ki Deewaniyat" is even more special as it was re-released alongside "Thamma"

"Thamma", the big-budget film from Maddock Films, featuring Ayushmann Khurrana and Rashmika Mandanna in the lead roles.

The actor praised his producers and the director of the film for taking the call to re-release the movie alongside "Thamma".

"It was a huge decision to release the film on that date. It was a big call because we were up against a Rs 200 crore film ('Thamma') approximately. And it was part of a universe.

We are one small little new film. There is no franchise. It was a Rs 25 crore rupee film. So, pitting against a 175 to 200 crore rupee film, it was all their conviction," he said.

The actor, however, is happy that viewers appreciated both the movies by going to theatres and pointed out that both "Thamma" and "Ek Deewane..." are fronted by "outsiders".

"On Diwali, you saw two films of two outsiders.. 'Thamma' and ours. It means that you (audience) are giving equal love to both. So, it goes to show that the audience has given both the films the same amount of love." The actor will next appear in a sequel to "Sanam Teri Kasam". (PTI)

Sunil Joshi set to accompany India A team as head coach for Rising Stars Asia Cup

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: Former India left-arm spinner and Centre of Excellence's (CoE) head of spin department Sunil Joshi will be the chief coach of the India A team led by Jitesh Sharma, which will take part in the Rising Stars Asia Cup in Doha from November 14.

The India A team comprises IPL stars like Vaibhav Suryavanshi, Priyansh Arya, Naman Dhir, Nehal Wadhwa, and Ramandeep Singh to name a few.

The convention in BCCI to appoint COE's in-house coaches for India's A, Emerging (Rising Stars), India U-19s assignments and rotate them.

Joshi, who recently joined the CoE, also was a part of India A team's recent assignment against Australia A.

Along with Joshi as the head coach for the assignment, the other two members of the coaching staff will be Apurva Desai (batting) and Pallav Vohra (fielding).

Joshi will go with the India A team for Rising Stars (previously Emerging) because the other CoE coach Hrishikesh Kanitkar is busy with the India A team's first-class games against South Africa A. He will then return for India U-19 duty for a series involving Afghanistan and guide the team till the next U-19 World Cup.

The Centre of Excellence is trying to integrate all the coaches who have completed their Level 2 or have been coaches with first-class, age-group or IPL teams into a system.

Sunderland moves into fourth place after home draw with Everton

LONDON, Nov 4: Sunderland came back from a goal down to draw with Everton 1-1 and moved into fourth spot in the Premier League on Monday.

The Black Cats moved level with Liverpool and Bournemouth and continued to confound doubters on a stirring return to the top tier.

Sunderland was looking to win three successive top-flight wins for the first time in a decade but went behind after 15 minutes thanks to a solo effort from Everton winger Iliman Ndiaye.

The Senegal international gathered the ball on the right touchline around 40 meters from goal and dribbled and muscled his way past four defenders before striking a lovely left-foot shot past a static keeper.

Jack Grealish hit the post midway through the first half as Everton started to dominate and Thierno Barry sliced over the top from close in a few minutes later.

But Sunderland got back into the match immediately after the could not get the goal that would have taken it above Manchester City and into second place.

"We lost the three points today in the first 25 minutes," Xhaka told broadcaster Sky Sports. "We were sloppy with the ball and made too many mistakes. On this level you get punished, but second half was very good. We created many chances and with a bit more luck we can win this game."

Its next game is a mouth-watering home tie against leader Arsenal on Saturday.

Everton, which was in 14th place and without a win in three games, takes on Fulham, the team below it, the same day.

Coach David Moyes agreed his team was on top in the opening stages and he rued the missed chances. (AP)

Jharkhand inflict innings defeat on Nagaland

RANCHI, Nov 4: Jharkhand inflicted a massive innings defeat on Nagaland to earn a bonus point as left-arm spinner Anukul Roy returned a career-best match haul of 13 wickets in a Ranji Trophy game, here on Tuesday.

A day after Roy grabbed a career-best haul of eight wickets (8/55) to dismiss Nagaland for 154 in response to Jharkhand's 510 for 8 declared, the 26-year-old ripped through the opponent's batting lineup in the second essay as well with 5/35 as they won by an innings and 196 runs in their Elite Group A game.

Nagaland, who were asked to follow-on and were reduced to 104 for 5 at stumps on day three, did not have the wherewithal to ward off a combative Jharkhand bowling attack.

Roy, who had started the demolition work on day three by taking two second-innings wickets with compatriot slow-bowler Manishi grabbing the other three, came back to finish off Nagaland's resistance in no time. Nagaland could add just 56 runs to their overnight total as their innings folded up at 160 in 57.4 overs. (PTI)

Barbados-born Bethell in England's centrally-contracted list alongside Stokes, Archer

LONDON, Nov 4: Four-Test-old all-rounder Jacob Bethell was awarded his maiden central contract by the England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) which offered two-year deals to 14 multi-format cricketers, including Test captain Ben Stokes and injury-plagued pacer Jofra Archer.

The 22-year-old Bethell, who has also appeared in 18 ODIs and 20 T20 Internationals, is among the top 14 alongside other senior stars Joe Root, ODI captain Harry Brook and Gus Atkinson among others.

Bethell was born and brought up in Barbados before moving to England on a scholarship. He made his Test debut only last year.

"A total of 30 players have been awarded central contracts, comprising 14 Two-Year Central Contracts, 12 England Annual Central Contracts, and four England Development Contracts," the ECB said in a press release.

Five players -- Sonny Baker, Liam Dawson, Saqib Mahmood, Jamie Overton and Luke Wood -- have also been awarded central contracts for the first time but for one year.

Three players -- Eddie Jack, Tom Lawes and Mitchell Stanley -- have

My job was to apply the finishing touches: Richa Ghosh

MUMBAI, Nov 4: India's World Cup-winning team was built on trust and role clarity, feels dashing keeper-batter Richa Ghosh, who was assigned the finisher's role by head coach Amol Muzumdar.

Having missed at the final hurdle twice, India finally won their maiden World Cup title, defeating Laura Wolvaardt's South Africa by 52 runs in front of a sea of crowd in Navi Mumbai.

"My main job was to finish innings strongly by scoring quickly in the final overs," the 22-year-old said on JioStar's Follow The Blues.

"Whenever I got the chance to bat, my focus was on applying the finishing touches. I aimed to maintain a high strike-rate and put pressure on the opposition bowlers.

"Scoring those extra runs reduces the pressure on our team and gives us a better chance to win," she said. Richa, who played a blistering 34 off 24 balls in the final batting at No 7 to lift India to 298/7. In reply, South Africa folded for 246.

She further credited head coach Amol Muzumdar for creating an environment where every player knew exactly what was expected of them. "Amol sir made everyone's role in the team very clear."

"For me, it was to play fearless cricket, look for the big shots and finish the innings strongly," she said, adding that Muzumdar's reassurance to "take time to settle in" gave her the confidence to back her strengths under pressure.

Richa, who often walked in during the final overs, said she had worked hard in the lead-up to the tournament to balance aggression with patience.

"Before the World Cup, I really focused on spending more time at the crease and building my innings. Whenever I got the chance to play, I concentrated on playing grounded shots and making sure I didn't throw my wicket away."

"For me, it was all about keeping the scoreboard ticking with singles and holding up one end. That's what I worked on the most," added Richa, who scored 235 runs from eight innings with one fifty finishing among the top-five run-getters for the team.

Her strike rate of 133.52 was the highest among Indians and she also equalled the record for the most sixes (12) in a single edition of the Women's World Cup joining West Indies power-hitter Deandra Dottin.

Richa's approach remained simple. "My main job was to finish innings strongly by scoring quickly in the final overs. Whenever I got the chance to bat, my focus was on applying the finishing touches."

"I aimed to maintain a high strike-rate and put pressure on the opposition bowlers. Scoring those extra runs reduces the pressure on our team and gives us a better chance to win," she said.

The daughter of an umpire, Richa's talent was spotted when she was just eight years old before she went on to make her domestic debut for Bengal under the legendary India pacer Jhulan Goswami.

"Jhulan didi has played a huge role in my journey. She's always been there to guide me, even when I started playing for India. She taught me how to adapt my game to different situations and shared invaluable advice on improving as a player." As the team erupted in joy after Harmanpreet Kaur's catch sealed the final, Richa said the feeling was "just incredible".

"We were so overwhelmed that we didn't even know how to celebrate! Harman didi was absolutely speechless, just pure joy. And when Deepti didi got that last wicket, even she couldn't process that we'd actually won the World Cup. We were all just living in that moment, soaking it all in before it even sank in." The victory also unlocked a long-kept secret: their self-composed team song as they had a spontaneous rendition on the pitch that quickly went viral with the players singing and dancing with the World Cup Trophy at the centre of the pitch.

"We actually created our team song a few series ago. It was something we really wanted. But we made a pact to only sing it, and reveal it to the world after we lifted the World Cup trophy."

"Every player contributed to it in some way. So, the moment we won at the DY Patil Stadium, we just knew we had to sing it right there on the ground. It was a magical feeling," she signed off. (PTI)

Women's soccer great Pia Sundhage out as Switzerland coach despite Euro 2025 success

BERN (SWITZERLAND), Nov 4: Storied soccer coach Pia Sundhage won't get the chance to lead Switzerland to the 2027 Women's World Cup despite a hugely successful European Championship.

Sundhage said on Monday she was surprised by the Swiss Football Association decision not to renew her contract which expires in December.

A two-time Olympic champion and 2011 World Cup finalist coaching the United States, Sundhage led the host Swiss team in July to the quarterfinals of Euro 2025 that captured the nation's imagination. Switzerland had never reached the knockout stage before.

"I would have loved to continue this journey," the 65-year-old Sundhage said in a statement published by the Swiss FA. "I am surprised by the (federation's) decision, but I respect it." Sundhage said last month — ahead of back-to-back wins against Canada and Scotland in friendlies — she wanted a renewed contract on condition she could have a full-time assistant.

Swiss FA officials delivered the news to Sundhage at a face-to-face meeting in Stockholm in her native Sweden, the statement said.

Swiss FA president Peter Knäbel said Sundhage was thanked for leading the team through an "unforgettable" Euro tournament.

The federation said it will make structural changes in women's soccer with Johan Djourou as technical director of national teams. The former Arsenal defender worked with Sundhage this year as the sporting coordinator with the squad. (AP)

Slot happy to welcome Alexander-Arnold's return to Anfield with Real Madrid

LONDON, Nov 4: Trent Alexander-Arnold will receive a hearty welcome from Liverpool manager Arne Slot when he returns to Anfield with Real Madrid on Tuesday.

Alexander-Arnold won two Premier Leagues and the Champions League across 10 years with Liverpool after graduating from its academy, but after he announced in May he was leaving his hometown club he was booed by angry Reds fans.

The Champions League draw set up a quick return to Liverpool for Alexander-Arnold, who has said he'll love the club for life and has mixed emotions about the upcoming game.

He added he was prepared for any reaction from the Liverpool crowd but Slot guaranteed on Monday nothing but affection for one of the stars of the manager's first season.

"I have great memories of the player and of the human being... so he will get a warm welcome by me," Slot said.

The jeering of Alexander-Arnold last May when Arsenal visited prompted former Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp to turn off his TV, saying, "I couldn't have been more disappointed."

More public outcry prompted Liverpool fans to cool down for the remaining home games, and Slot was not sure what reception the crowd will give the England international this time.

"Let's first wait and see if he is on the pitch tomorrow," Slot said. "I have no clue how that's going to be but he gets a warm welcome from me, that's for sure."

Alexander-Arnold has not featured in Madrid's last two matches since recovering from a hamstring injury. But Madrid coach Xabi Alonso said they've spoken about returning to former clubs.

Alonso was a 2005 Champions League winner with Liverpool and his returns have always been welcoming.

"He has to have his own feelings and enjoy it his own way, so I am not going to say how he needs to feel," Alonso said. "For sure his history is different from mine, he was born and bred in Liverpool. I remember him from a young age in the academy and then coming to the first team and winning the Champions League."

"So he needs to enjoy that moment because it is nice to be back and for him it is going to be nice."

Slot confirmed Alexander Isak would not be available for the game and was a doubt for Sunday's game against Manchester City after a groin injury. (AP)

Mandhana concedes top spot to Wolvaardt; Jemimah in top-10

DUBAI, Nov 4: Smriti Mandhana dropped a rung to second but Jemimah Rodrigues scaled nine positions to be 10th in the latest ICC women's ODI rankings after India's title-winning World Cup performance.

South Africa captain Laura Wolvaardt has moved up two positions to the No.1 spot in the latest list. Wolvaardt overtook Mandhana after her incredible effort of striking hundreds in both the semifinal and final.

The two innings took Wolvaardt to 571 runs, the most in a single edition of the tournament, and the run was rewarded with a career-high rating of 814.

Mandhana, who held the top spot for the entirety of the World Cup, was named in the Team of the Tournament alongside Wolvaardt. India defeated South Africa by 52 runs in the final on Sunday.

Rodrigues' match-winning hundred against the Australians in the semifinal in Navi Mumbai meant the 25-year-old entered the top-10, while Phoebe Litchfield made a 13-spot jump to a career-high 13th (637) thanks to a century in the same match. Australia's Ellyse Perry moved to seventh, sharing the spot with New Zealand's Sophie Devine, who has announced her retirement from the format.

India captain Harmanpreet Kaur also rose four spots to 14th in the updated list.

There was marked movement in the bowling rankings, with South Africa's Marizanne Kapp now the closest to knock Sophie Ecclestone off the top spot thanks to her 5/20 against England in the other World Cup semifinal.

Kapp moved two spots to a rating of 712, with Australians Annabel Sutherland (sixth) and Kim Garth (seventh) making one-spot moves in the top 10.

World Cup's Player of the Tournament Deepti Sharma cemented her credentials with seven wickets and 82 runs across the semifinal and final at the tournament. As a result, she gained a spot to fourth in the all-rounder rankings, overtaking Sutherland (388). (PTI)

Vaibhav, Priyansh in India A squad for Rising Stars Asia Cup; Jitesh to lead

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: Teenaged batting sensation Vaibhav Suryavanshi and IPL star Priyansh Arya were on Tuesday named in the Jitesh Sharma-led India A squad for the Rising Stars Asia Cup to be held in Doha later this month.

India A will play arch foes Pakistan A on November 16 after opening their campaign against the UAE on November 14.

Jitesh, who is currently in Australia with the Indian team for a five-match T20I series, will be leading a side full of IPL performers, including the 14-year-old Suryavanshi, who have shown tremendous potential.

Jitesh was a part of the IPL trophy-winning Royal Challengers Bengaluru side.

The 32-year-old, who was brought in place of Sanju Samson for the third T20I, scored an unbeaten 22 against Australia at Hobart as India won the match to level the series 1-1.

"The Senior Men's Selection Committee has picked the India A squad for the Asian Cricket Council's Rising Stars Asia Cup to be held in Qatar. The Tournament will be played from 14th to 23rd November 2025 at West End International Cricket Stadium in Doha," said BCCI in a release.

Suryavanshi will once again be the player to watch out for after he became the youngest centurion in men's T20 cricket with a 101 for Rajasthan Royals against Gujarat Titans in an IPL game earlier this year.

He also cracked a century during India U-19s Youth Test against Australia A in Brisbane last month.

Young top-order batter Priyansh has secured a place in the side following his performances for Punjab Kings in the IPL and also his century in an official ODI between India A and Australia A in Kanpur in September.

Besides, the squad also has upcoming 26-year-old left-arm pacer Gurjapneet Singh, who took a hat-trick for Tamil Nadu in the Ranji Trophy match against Nagaland a few days back.

Rising Stars Asia Cup squads were earlier known as India Emerging, which was primarily an Under-23 tournament.

However, most nations don't have robust U-23 programmes like India and sent open teams.

This year, India has also done the same by including a mix of young and senior players in the squad.

India A squad for Rising Stars Asia Cup: Priyansh Arya, Vaibhav Sooryavanshi, Nehal Wadhwa, Naman Dhir (VC), Suryansh Sledge, Jitesh Sharma (C) (WK), Ramandeep Singh, Harsh Dubey, Ashutosh Sharma, Yash Thakur, Gurjapneet Singh, Vijay Kumar Vyshak, Yudhvir Singh Charak, Abhishek Porel (WK), Suyash Sharma.

Stand-by Players: Gurnoor Singh Brar, Kumar Kushagra, Tanush Kotian, Sameer Rizvi, Shaik Rasheed. (PTI)

Naqvi unlikely to attend ICC meeting where BCCI will rake up Asia Cup trophy issue

KARACHI, Nov 4: "Domestic political issues" might prevent Pakistan Cricket Board Chairman Mohsin Naqvi from attending the ICC's Executive Board meeting in Dubai where the BCCI is set to raise the issue of the Asia Cup trophy not being presented to India.

The four-day meeting began on Tuesday and Naqvi, who is also the chairman of the Asian Cricket Council, was to face the BCCI's ire for not handing the trophy after the winning players refused to accept it from him due to his anti-India statements.

The PCB source did not specify the exact political issues that would come in the way of his attendance. Naqvi also holds the interior minister's position in his country and has not attended ICC meetings after Jay Shah was elected Chairman of the world body last year.

A source in the PCB said that the Board's Chief Operating Officer Sumair Syed will attend the chief executives meeting and in case Naqvi is unable to travel to Dubai, he could represent Pakistan in the all-important board meeting on November 7.

The Asia Cup Trophy lies locked in the Asian Cricket Council headquarter in Dubai despite the final being held back in late September.

The source said there was also a likelihood of Naqvi joining the board meeting remotely.

The Pakistan minister was at the centre of the trophy controversy when he had it sent to the ACC secretariat in Dubai. He has since insisted that the Indian team must accept the trophy from him and has ordered the ACC staff not to move the silverware without his permission.

The BCCI wrote a letter to the ACC asking for the trophy to be sent to Mumbai but Naqvi is insisting that it will be handed over to a BCCI representative and a member of the Indian team only by him at a function in Dubai on November 10. (PTI)

Ashwin ruled out of BBL15 due to knee injury

CHENNAI, Nov 4: Former India cricketer Ravichandran Ashwin's much-anticipated foray into Australian Big Bash League has been stalled by a knee injury with the off-spinner ruled out of the entire season with Sydney Thunder.

Ashwin had retired from international cricket late last year and from the IPL in August 2025 to focus on playing in T20 leagues across the world, including BBL, The Hundred and SA20.

"While training in Chennai to prepare for the upcoming season, I hurt my knee. I've had a procedure, and the outcome means I'll miss BBL15. That is tough to say. I was genuinely excited to be part of this group," wrote Ashwin on Instagram.

BBL 15 will commence on December 14. The injury means the legendary cricketer will also miss the Hong Kong Sixes from November 7-9. He has been replaced by Robin Uthappa in HK Sixes.

Ashwin said that following the medical procedure, he will now focus on rehabilitation.

"For now it is rehab, recovery and doing the work to come back stronger. From my first chat with the club, I have felt only warmth. Trent (Copeland, the Thunder general manager), the staff, the players and so many of you who have already reached out. Thank you for making me feel at home before a ball has been bowled," he wrote for Sydney Thunder fans.

Earlier this year, Ashwin had confirmed his full availability for Thunder's BBL15 campaign, including the finals.

The legend said that if the injury heals, he would like to be with the Thunder sometime later in the season to cheer the team.

"If rehab and travel line up, and only if the doctors are happy, I would love to be round later in the season and say hello in person. No promises. That is the intent," he wrote.

Thunder GM Copeland said his side was "devastated" by the news. "Everyone at Sydney Thunder was devastated to learn of Ash's knee injury... and we wish him well in his recovery.

"From the moment we first spoke with Ash, his commitment to Thunder was clear. We are hopeful of welcoming him into our dugout for part of BBL15, introducing him to our fans at events and building a long-term relationship."

"While disappointing for the club, we have built two championship-contending squads and expect to continue the progress of recent seasons in WBBL11 and BBL15. We can't wait to get back in front of our fans in Western Sydney for two massive campaigns," added Copeland. (PTI)

Never stop dreaming, you never know where destiny will take you: Harmanpreet

NEW DELHI, Nov 4: Still quite overwhelmed by emotions, India's newest World Cup-winning captain Harmanpreet Kaur has recalled how picking up her sports tragic father's "big" cricket bat as a kid ignited the dream that is now a reality.

After leading India to a 52-run win over South Africa in the women's World Cup summit clash in Navi Mumbai on Sunday, Harmanpreet, in a video posted by the BCCI, recalled her childhood and also had one advice for aspiring young players -- "Never stop dreaming. You never know where your destiny will take you."

"Ever since, I was a kid, I've always had a bat in my hand. I still remember we used to play with a bat from my dad's kit bag. The bat was very big. One day, my dad carved a small bat for me out of one of his old bats. We used to play with it.

"Whenever we used to watch a match on TV, or watch India play, or watch the World Cup, I used to think, I need an opportunity like this. At that time, I didn't even know about women's cricket," Harmanpreet said as she Harmanpreet's father Harmandar Singh Bhullar dabbled in cricket and football before settling for a clerk's job at a local judicial court in Punjab's Moga, the city where she was born and brought up.

With the firm support of her father, the journey which began as a child culminated into a World Cup trophy for Harmanpreet on Sunday. None of it came easy but Harmanpreet said she wasn't the one to get bogged down by the challenges that were integral to women's cricket.

"I was dreaming, when will I wear this blue jersey? So I think this means a lot to me, a young girl who didn't know about women's cricket, but still dreamt, that one day, I want to bring that change in our country.

"And I think, it all shows that you should never stop dreaming. You never know where your destiny will take you. You never think, when will it happen, how will it happen. You only think, this will happen."

"So, I think, that was my self-belief, that this can be possible. And that is exactly what happened."

The 36-year-old stalwart said she is feeling relaxed and humbled after realising her childhood dream.

"Personally, it's a very emotional moment. Because, it was my dream since childhood. Ever since I started playing, it was my dream to win the World Cup one day. If I get an opportunity to lead my team, I don't want to miss this opportunity," she said, emotions still heavy in her voice.

"So, I said all these things from the bottom of my heart. And God heard everything one by one. It's like magic. I don't understand how come suddenly everything is falling in place. Everything kept happening one by one."

"Finally, we are world champions. I am feeling very relaxed, very humble, so grateful to God, for giving this team, which we have been dreaming of for so many years, and we are living this moment."

Harmanpreet also recalled the grand reception that the Indian team came back to after losing the 2017 women's World Cup final to England in London.

"...we were so heartbroken. We lost the game by nine runs. We didn't understand how that happened because that game was also fully in our control," she said of the 2017 final where India were all out for 219 in 48.4 overs while chasing 229.

"But after coming back, the kind of welcome and motivation we got from Indian fans, that showed that not only us, the entire country was waiting for women's cricket to do something special for them and for the country."

That team, led by Mithali Raj, had the current team's senior players like Harmanpreet, Smriti Mandhana and Deepti Sharma.

"Everybody was waiting for this moment. And I think it's because of everyone's blessings and prayers that we were able to cross that line. I don't think we were alone playing in the stadium."

"Everybody, the entire stadium, people who were watching us on TV, everybody came together to win this. Because it wasn't possible alone." (PTI)

Mandhana, Jemimah, Deepti named in ICC Women's World Cup team of tournament

DUBAI, Nov 4: The title-winning Indian stars expectedly dominated the ICC Women's Cricket World Cup Team of the Tournament with Smriti Mandhana, Jemimah Rodrigues and Deepti Sharma making it to the line-up announced on Tuesday.

The Indian trio played a stellar role in the team's maiden World Cup triumph. India defeated South Africa by 52 runs in the summit clash on Sunday.

Runners-up South Africa also have three of their players in the side, with skipper Laura Wolvaardt chosen to captain the Team of the Tournament following her sensational efforts with the bat where she amassed a whopping 571 runs at an average of 71.37 to break the record for the most runs at any single edition of the Women's World Cup.

Annabel Sutherland, Ash Gardner and leg-spinner Alana King feature from the Australian team that reached the semi-finals, with standout wicket-keeper Sidra Nawaz of Pakistan the only player named in a side to miss out on the final four, stated an ICC press release.

England's Sophie Ecclestone was also included following some strong efforts that helped her side reach the semi-finals, while compatriot Nat Sciver-Brunt is named as the 12th player.

Opening batter Mandhana scored 434 runs at an average of 54.25 with one century and two fifties.

A model of consistency at the top of the batting order for India, Mandhana finished as the second-leading run-scorer at the tournament behind only Wolvaardt.

Her 109 against New Zealand in Navi Mumbai was the highlight for the left-hander, while consecutive scores of 80 and 88 against Australia and England prior to that century displayed Mandhana's ability to perform well against the best teams.

Rodrigues, on her part, made 292 runs at an average of 58.40 with the help of one century and one fifty.

Her stunning innings of 127 not out against Australia in the semi-finals was the major reason behind her inclusion in the side, though the India No.3 also produced a string of other good scores throughout the tournament.

An unbeaten 76 against New Zealand was of vital importance in India's run to the semifinals, while Rodrigues' knock of 24 helped alongside Shafali Verma's fireworks in the final against South Africa.

With the bat, Deepti scored 215 runs at an average of 30.71 with one century and three fifties. She also took 22 wickets at an average of 20.40.

Named Player of the Tournament, Deepti was instrumental in India's title-winning campaign. She finished as the leading wicket-taker and scored crucial runs across the tournament.

Deepti produced her best performance on the grandest stage, taking 5/39 in the final against South Africa and adding 58 with the bat. Her consistency and ability to influence games with both bat and ball made her India's most valuable player.
