GUWAHATI, Dec 12: The Special Investigation Team, probing the death of Zubeen Garg, charged four accused, including the singer's secretary Siddhartha Sharma and festival organiser Shyamkanu Mahanta, with murder in the charge sheet filed in a court here on Friday.

Garg's band members, Shekhar Jyoti Goswami and Amritprava Mahanta, have also been charged with murder.

Shyamkanu Mahanta was the chief organiser of the North East India Festival, to attend which Garg had gone to Singapore, where he died under mysterious circumstances while swimming in the sea on September 19.

Speaking to reporters after submission of the charge sheet, Special DGP (CID) M P Gupta, heading the SIT team, said that Garg's cousin and suspended Assam Police officer Sandipan Garg has been charged with culpable homicide not amounting to murder.

The singer's two personal security officers (PSOs) -- Nandeswar Bora and Prabin Baishya -- have been charged with criminal conspiracy and criminal breach of trust by misappropriating funds or property entrusted to them, Gupta said.

Besides murder, Mahanta has been charged with criminal conspiracy, extortion, cheating, and destruction of evidence. Zubeen's secretary has also been charged with murder, criminal conspiracy and criminal breach of trust.

In addition to the murder charge, his band member Goswami has also been charged with criminal breach of trust, while Amritprava Mahanta has also been charged with destruction of evidence. All the accused have been arrested and are currently in jail, with five of them in Baksa Jail and Goswami and Amritprava in Haflong Prison.

The charge sheet was submitted before the Chief Judicial Magistrate of Kamrup (Metro).

TEZPUR, Dec 12: Four persons, including a woman reportedly married to a Pakistani national, have been arrested in Assam's Sonitpur district, a top police officer said on Friday.

The accused were arrested based on a complaint of suspicious financial transactions, he said.

Now time to focus on Gaurav case: Himanta

GUWAHATI, Dec 12: Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Friday as the SIT has already submitted the charge sheet on the case related to the death singer Zubeen Garg, "we will now move on to the case of Gaurav Gogoi".

The Assam government had constituted an SIT to probe into the alleged Pakistani links of state Congress president Gaurav Gogoi and his British wife Elizabeth Colburn.

The SIT had submitted the report on September 10 to the chief minister, who claimed that the investigating agency had "unearthed startling facts which point towards a larger conspiracy aimed at undermining the sovereignty of our nation".

Sarma has been attacking Gogoi and his wife over the last few months, alleging that they have a connection with the Pakistani intelligence agency ISI. (PTI)

Sonowal visits lone Arunachal accident survivor

DIBRUGARH/TINSUKIA, Dec 12: The condition of the lone survivor of the Arunachal Pradesh road accident in which 18 people died was still critical with Union Minister Sarbananda Sonowal meeting him at the Assam Medical College and Hospital (AMCH) in Dibrugarh where he is admitted, officials said on Friday.

Budheswar Deep (23) was initially brought to Tinsukia Medical College and Hospital, but doctors referred him to Dibrugarh for further treatment, Tinsukia District Commissioner Swapnil Paul told PTI.

Sonowal visited Deep at the hospital and directed the hospital authorities to provide the best treatment to him.

AMCH superintendent Dhrubajyoti Bhuyan said Deep's health condition was critical.

"He has suffered severe head and chest injuries. At this point, we cannot say he is out of danger," Bhuyan told PTI.

Deep also suffered internal injuries and is also in a state of 'shock and trauma', he added.

He survived the accident and trekked with difficulty to the nearest Chipra GREF Camp, following which police were alerted and rescue operations began.

At least 18 people from Assam's Tinsukia district were killed and three others went missing as the truck carrying them fell into a deep gorge in a remote terrain in neighbouring Arunachal Pradesh, officials said on Thursday.

The accident took place on Hayuliang-Chaglagam Road in Anjaw district in the eastern part of the hill state on December 8 when the truck was carrying 22 labourers, Defence PRO Lt Col Mahender Rawat had said.

"We received the lone survivor at 3pm on Thursday and after initial treatment, he was shifted to Dibrugarh," Paul said.

He said a team of officials from Tinsukia reached the accident spot on Friday, and 'we are in touch with the Anjaw district administration'.

Assam Minister for Cultural Affairs Bimal Borah and Tinsukia BJP MLA Sanjay Kishan have also reached Anjaw to oversee the rescue operations.

"The process of recovering the bodies has started since Friday morning. Some bodies have been spotted inside the vehicle, which is hanging in a precarious position," Paul said.

He said that six bodies were recovered from the gorge on Friday, but details of their arrival in Tinsukia are awaited and they were likely to be brought on Saturday.

The rescue operation was scheduled to resume tomorrow, he said. Meanwhile, a pall of gloom descended. (CONTD. ON PAGE-2)

Varsity students sit for exams as protests continue

TEZPUR, Dec 12: Agitating students of Assam's Tezpur University (TU) agreed to sit for end-term examinations, even as they continued to impose a shutdown of all other activities to press for their demand for an inquiry into alleged financial irregularities by Vice Chancellor Shambhu Nath Singh, and his removal from the post.

As a mark of respect for the request of acting VC Dhurba Kumar Bhattacharya, the students agreed to sit for the examinations from Thursday, a member of Tezpur University United Forum (TUUF), a joint platform of students, teachers and non-teaching staffers, under the aegis of which the protests have been going on, said on Friday.

The senior-most faculty member, Bhattacharya, had assumed charge as acting Vice Chancellor suo motu on December 5, citing the Tezpur University Act, 1993.

The TUUF member said the end-term exams were initially scheduled from December 3-15.

"It has now started from Thursday with a similar schedule," he said.

However, all other activities in this central university will remain under the shutdown.

"The protest is still underway. The students will only sit for the exams, and once it is over, the boycott and complete shutdown will continue until the demands are met," he said.

He added that a more "intensive shutdown" will be enforced after the examinations are over, and "this time, everything will be closed down, including all facilities within the campus, banks, ATMs, and the post office". The varsity, located on the north bank of Brahmaputra in Sonitpur district, has been under complete shutdown since November 29 as a joint forum of all stakeholders have demanded the removal of the VC and starting of an inquiry (CONTD. Panel has asked for a comprehensive wildlife conservation plan

Govt nod for forest diversion in Assam for strategic underground weapon storage facility

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: The central government has recommended in-principle approval for diversion of 299 hectares of reserved forest in Assam for a tunnel-based underground weapon storage facility, saying the project carries "strategic importance" amid the "changing geopolitical environment in the eastern theater and the associated instability".

The proposal, submitted by the Station Commander, Air Force Station Digaru, pertains to Sonaikuchi Reserved Forest under Nagaon division in Morigaon district.

According to the minutes of the December 2 meeting of the environment ministry's Advisory Committee, the project requires 265.513 hectares for the underground weapon storage area and 33.688 hectares for surface infrastructure such as administrative buildings, guard posts, fencing, boundary wall and approach roads.

The forest has a canopy density of 0.7 and 203 trees are expected to be felled.

According to the minutes, the site is not within 10 kilometres of any protected area and no protected archaeological or heritage sites were reported.

The nodal officer informed the panel that the "proposal assumes strategic importance considering the changing geopolitical environment in the eastern theater and the associated instability".

"There is an urgent requirement to increase the underground storage capacity to strengthen the rapid response capability and deployment of available stores in the shortest possible time," the official said.

The committee said the state government has proposed compensatory afforestation over 85.75 hectares in Sonaikuchi Reserved Forest, of which 68 hectares were found (CONTD. ON PAGE-2)

Focus on rural, tribal areas under PMUY 3.0 in Assam: Officials

GUWAHATI, Dec 12: Rural and tribal-dominated areas with low LPG penetration will be the focus points in Assam under the Pradhan Mantri Ujjwala Yojana (PMUY) 3.0, being rolled out across the country, a top IndianOil official said here on Friday.

With a section of people still preferring traditional means such as firewood for cooking purposes, awareness on health hazards of such means will be highlighted, they said.

"The North East is a focus area for the Centre under the PMUY 3.0. A total of 25 lakh additional free LPG connections have been approved for the country. Of these, five lakh are for the region, including 2.5 lakh for Assam," Rajesh Nambiar, Executive Director and State Head, IndianOil Assam Oil Division (AOD) state office, said at a press conference.

He emphasised that LPG penetration was much low when the PMUY was first launched in 2016, with the coverage now crossing 100 per cent in many places, including in the state.

Amar Jyoti Bordoloi, CGM LPG, IndianOil AOD state office, added that the penetration is still less in rural and tribal areas, and PMUY 3.0 will be focusing on reaching those parts.

"In these areas, people still prefer traditional means like firewood. Creating awareness in those areas is crucial," he said.

The state government will be playing an important role in awareness generation, Hemanta Bhuyan, commissioner, Food and Public Distribution, Consumer Affairs and Legal Metrology, government of Assam, also present in the press conference, said.

"We will be engaging in more publicity in the areas where coverage is low. Special camps will be held," he said.

The Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas (MOPNG) introduced the PMUY as a flagship scheme in May 2016, with an objective to make clean cooking fuel such as LPG available to the rural and deprived households which were otherwise using traditional cooking fuels such as firewood, coal, cowdung cakes, etc.

Sharing details of PMUY coverage in the state, Bordoloi said the total domestic LPG connections are 92.24 lakh with a coverage of 115.8 per cent, out of which about 52 lakh connections are under the free connection scheme.

While most districts have high penetrations, some still have low coverage – Sivasagar 65.7 per cent, Baksa 67.1 per cent, Dhemajai 73.2 per cent, (CONTD. ON PAGE-2)

IndiGo board ropes in external aviation expert for flight disruption probe

MUMBAI, Dec 12: IndiGo's board on Friday announced the appointment of an external aviation expert to carry out a root-cause analysis of recent flight disruptions.

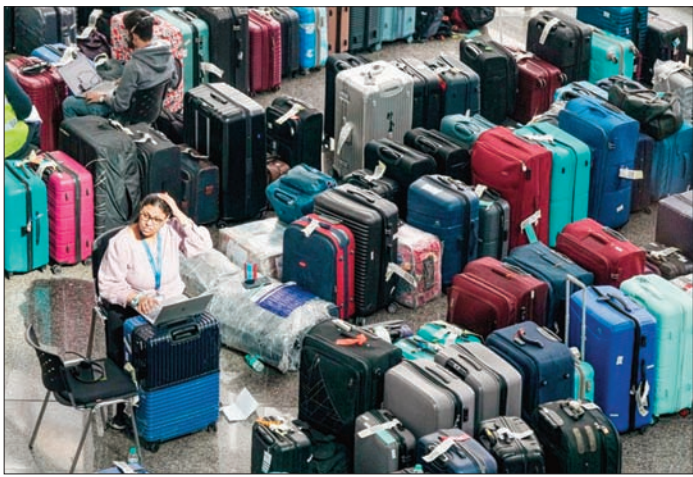

The independent aviation expert will start the review at the earliest and submit a comprehensive report to the board, IndiGo said in a statement.

The board has approved the appointment of aviation Advisors LLC for a comprehensive review and carry out root cause analysis of the airline's recent flight disruptions, it said.

The announcement comes on the day IndiGo Chief Executive Officer Pieter Elbers and Chief Operating Officer, Isidre Porqueras are being grilled before a four-member panel, set up by the Directorate General of Civil Aviation with a mandate to identify the root causes of widespread operational disruptions at the leading domestic carrier.

The mandate of the panel comprising Joint Director General Sanjay Brahamane, Deputy Director General Amit Gupta, senior Flight Operations Inspector Kapil Manglik, and FOI Lokesh Ramlal, includes assessing manpower planning, fluctuating rostering systems, and the airline's preparedness to implement the latest duty period and rest norms for pilots, which came into effect from November 1 this year.

In a related development, the DGCA on Friday sacked four Flight Operations Inspectors (FOIs) over operational disruptions at the Gurugram-headquartered airlines.

"Chief Aviation Advisors LLC, led by Captain John Illson, veteran aviation expert, to conduct an independent expert review and assessment of the recent operational disruption and the contributing factors," the airline said.

IndiGo Chairman Vikram Singh Mehta had in a video message earlier this week said that the board had decided to involve external technical experts to work with the management and help determine the root causes that led to the disruptions.

The board of InterGlobe Aviation, the parent of IndiGo, has already set up a crisis management group in the wake of the significant operational disruptions that started on December 2.

"The objective is to conduct an independent root cause analysis of the recent operational disruption, besides opportunities for improvement," it said.

This decision follows the recommendation of the Crisis Management Group, IndiGo said.

As part of its assessment, the CMG advised commissioning an independent expert review in the matter, the airline said, adding with the board's approval now in place, the review will begin at the earliest. The independent expert reviewer will submit a comprehensive report to the board upon completion, it stated.

The Rahul Bhatia-controlled airline cancelled thousands of flights between December 1 and December 9 on account of lack of proper planning, and crew shortage in implementing the new set of regulations for pilots' duty period and rest, which were put in place from November 1.

"The four FOIs, under various categories, on a contract basis, are hereby relieved from the DGCA with immediate effect to join their respective parent organisation," a DGCA order said on Friday.

FOIs are senior officials within the Directorate General of Civil Aviation, working as part of its regulatory and safety oversight functions, often deployed to monitor airline operations.

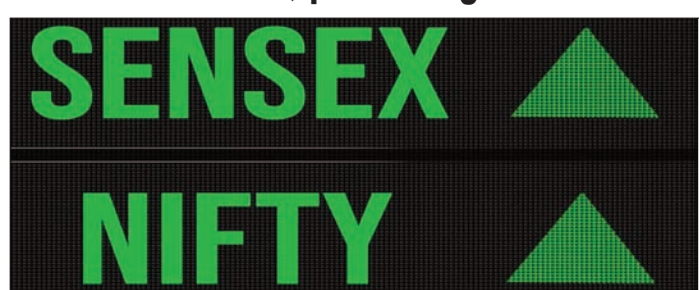

These officials, who come on deputation from various air operators, ensure aviation safety by inspecting, auditing, and certifying airlines and personnel, such as pilots, dispatchers, and cabin crew, to meet strict regulatory standards, verifying various regulations and overseeing training, flight standards, and accident prevention measures in India.

Enhancing oversight, DGCA officials have from Thursday started monitoring IndiGo's operations, refunds, and other processes from the airline's headquarters.

These officials are expected to submit daily reports on the situation, as per sources.

Moreover, as part of its probe, the DGCA has also deployed two members from an 8-member oversight panel at IndiGo's Gurugram headquarters to monitor cancellation status, crew deployment, unplanned leave, and routes hit by staff shortages, among others. (PTI)

Brookfield to invest USD 1 billion to build Asia's largest GCC in Mumbai

MUMBAI, Dec 12: Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis on Friday said asset manager Brookfield is set to invest over USD 1 billion (around ₹ 9,000 crore) to create a global capability centre (GCC) facility in the state. Fadnis said a formal agreement for the GCC, which will create a total of 45,000 jobs, will be signed in due course, pointing out that the government and Brookfield have zeroed in on a plan in discussions.

"It (investment) will be more than USD 1 billion. One single project will create 45,000 jobs," Fadnis told reporters on the sidelines of an event here. In a statement issued later, Brookfield said it has partnered with one B S Sharma for the project, and added the project is being developed through an agreement between Mumbai Metropolitan Region Development Authority (MMRDA).

The project is spread over six acres in suburban Powai, and will see construction of a "leatable area" of 20 lakh sq ft by 2029, the statement said.

The facility will be the largest in Asia and Brookfield has signed up with a multinational bank for a lease having a 20-year term, the statement said, adding that the entire power requirements for the GCC will be met through green sources.

The asset manager said it has already commissioned a similar build-to-suit tower in Pune for the GCC of a large financial services corporation.

In May this year, Brookfield Asset Management aims to more than triple its assets under management in India to USD 100 billion over the next five years. (PTI)

Rupee slumps 17 paise to close at all-time low of 90.49 against US dollar

MUMBAI, Dec 12: The rupee depreciated by 17 paise to close at an all-time low of 90.49 against the US dollar on Friday, as uncertainty over the India-US trade deal and persistent foreign fund outflows dented investor sentiment.

Forex traders said the rupee is under pressure, largely due to aggressive dollar purchases by importers amid surging global precious metal prices.

At the interbank foreign exchange, the rupee opened at 90.43 against the US dollar, then fell further to a record intraday low of 90.56 against the greenback, registering a fall of 24 paise from its previous close.

The unit settled the day at 90.49 against the US dollar, down 17 paise over its last close.

On Thursday, the rupee had plunged 38 paise to close at an all-time low of 90.32 against the US dollar.

The rupee is expected to trade with a negative bias as the delay in the trade deal between India and the US may weigh on the domestic unit.

India and the US on Thursday concluded two days of talks, during which both sides exchanged views on trade-related issues, including the ongoing negotiations for a mutually beneficial bilateral trade agreement.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi and US President Donald Trump on Thursday discussed ways to sustain momentum in the bilateral economic partnership in a phone conversation amid signs of the two sides inching closer to firming up a much-awaited trade deal.

"We expect the rupee to trade with a negative bias amid uncertainty over the Indo-US trade deal. However, improved global sentiments and falling crude oil prices may support the rupee. A weak dollar and any intervention by the central bank may also support the rupee at lower levels," said Anuj Choudhary, Research Analyst, Mirae Asset ShareKhan. Meanwhile, the dollar index, which gauges the greenback's strength against a basket of six currencies, was trading 0.07 per cent higher at 98.41. (PTI)

Around 6 am on December 8, 19 workers began their journey from Gelapukhuri Tea Estate for work at a construction site for building a hostel in Anjaw district, deceased Pankaj Manki's family member said.

"For two days, families of all the workers who had gone from the tea garden were anxiously trying to call their loved ones but the phone calls remained unanswered," he said.

Another deceased Rahul Kumar's brother said that they are now waiting to receive his body so that they can perform the last rites.

Gangamani lost her only son, Rahul Chetria, in the accident and refuses to believe that he is no more.

"My son had gone to work as a daily wager outside the state for the first time and I cannot believe that he is no more", she said.

Daleshwaria Chetria, mother of another victim Dhiraj, said she will not accept his death till she sees his body. Sonowal met the bereaved families at Gelapukhuri Tea Estate, assuring them of all assistance.

He said he was monitoring the situation and had directed the Chief Secretary to maintain close coordination with officials in Arunachal Pradesh.

"All government agencies have been directed to work together to ensure that rescue and relief operations continue swiftly and efficiently," he said.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi has announced an ex gratia of ₹ 2 lakh each for the next of kin of those who died from the PM National Relief Fund.

Assam ministers Keshav Mahanta and Atul Bora also met the bereaved families and said that Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma has announced an ex gratia of Rs 5 lakh to the next of kin of the deceased. (PTI)

Varsity students sit against him. The situation in Tezpur University had been tense since mid-September, with students accusing the VC and varsity authorities of not showing due respect to cultural icon Zubeen Garg even as the state was mourning his death.

Apart from fiscal irregularities, the agitators are also protesting alleged deforestation carried out under Singh's administration.

The protesters have said that the university will remain closed until a formal communication from the Centre is received regarding the removal of the VC.

The VC abstained from the campus after the university had witnessed heated scenes and an exchange of words between him and students on September 22, leading to a situation where Singh had to nearly flee from the spot.

Singh had convened a virtual meeting of the Board of Management (BOM) on December 4, and appointed Mass Communication Professor Joya Chakraborty as pro-VC, a role she declined. (PTI)

Reactions pour in after chargesheet filed in Zubeen Garg case

HT Correspondent

SIVASAGAR, Dec 12: Filing of the long-awaited chargesheet in Zubeen Garg's mysterious death case by the SIT on Friday in Guwahati has sparked sensational reactions across different quarters. Sivasagar MLA Akhil Gogoi, in his characteristic style, criticised it as a well-tailored BJP election agenda for 2026, calling it "worth throwing into the dustbin." Speaking to the media, he alleged that it is the only chargesheet in the world where the investigating agency did not visit the place of the crime. Zubeen's uncle, Manoj Kr Borthakur, appreciated the SIT for successfully submitting the voluminous chargesheet within the stipulated time frame but noted that sustaining the allegations in the Honourable Court remains to be seen. Noble Konwar, ANI journalist, told this correspondent that, up to this stage, the government has been doing its best in the investigation process. Irshad Ahmed added that it will definitely take time before a court verdict is reached, given that the investigation involved over a thousand interviews and documents.

Discovery of Alakananda

India's scientific community has quietly handed the world an intriguing cosmic puzzle. It is called Alakananda after the ancient Himalayan River, but its significance runs far deeper than its poetic name. Alakananda is one third the size of a Milky Way containing roughly 19 billion stars. It has a symmetrical spiral arm with the classic "beads on a string" pattern. Its very essence compressed the timeline of a cosmic evolution. A galaxy of this size and order should not have had the time to assemble, stabilise and begin forming stars at a rate far exceeding our own galaxy's present output. And yet, 12 billion years later, its ancient light reaches us with unmistakable clarity. Discovered by researchers Rishi Jain and Yogesh Wadekar using data from James Webb Space Telescope, the finding forces us to rethink long held assumptions about how and how quickly the old universe organised itself. For decades, the prevailing view of the "cosmic dawn" placed it in a state of restless disorder. Astronomers believed that early galaxies were small and misshapen. These primitive clumps gradually evolved into graceful spirals and majestic ellipticals we see today. The emergence of well-defined discs and spiral arms, according to mainstream theory, required millions of years of gravitational settling and star formation.

The discovery of Alakananda challenges this theory. It is not merely an exotic outlier. It is a reminder that nature often builds faster, earlier and more creatively than our models predict. A single observation is overturning an assumption about the universe's first billion years. It suggests that there may be many more such galaxies. They are awaiting discovery. James Webb has only begun revealing the early cosmos with resolution and sensitivity required to distinguish between real structure from distant smudges. Its observations are accumulating. A time may come when the narrative of a chaotic early universe may have to give way to one of surprising maturity. The discovery also highlights something else. There is a growing presence of Indian researchers at the frontier of astrophysics. A young scientist has painstakingly examined 70,000 candidate objects. Thereafter, a system has been identified that now forces the re-evaluation of global cosmology.

It is a reminder that major breakthroughs are not the monopolies of large observatories alone. They often begin with a careful eye, sharp intuition and scientific patience. We may not know what Alakananda looks like today. But what it reveals about the past is profound. Every such discovery nudges us towards a humbler cosmic truth. The universe has always been ahead of our theories, waiting for our instruments and our imagination, to catch up.

The wastage of talent and Assam's intellectual crisis

By: Himaneshu Ranjan Bhuyan

For any nation, the most valuable asset is the fertility of its people's minds and the sharpness of their thoughts. The all-round progress, stability, and future of a society depend on how that society nurtures its talented children, how it recognises their abilities, and how it applies their innovative energy for the greater good. In the present context of Assam, the most sensitive and thought-provoking issue is the continuous wastage of talent and the all-devouring intellectual crisis that has emerged as a result. Assam, a land rich in natural resources and geographical diversity, is on the verge of becoming intellectually impoverished. This crisis is not limited merely to the departure of a few highly educated young men and women from the state; rather, like a deep social malady, it has spread to every level of our society.

The word "talent" or "intellect" is not confined only to educational qualifications, degrees, or examination marks. Talent is an abstract yet powerful concept that denotes human creativity, problem-solving ability, foresight, and the inherent strength to show society a new path. It is regrettable that in our current social system the idea of talent has been accepted in an extremely narrow form. From the student stage itself, the race for marks has obstructed the pursuit of real knowledge and the development of original thinking. When a society considers marks and government jobs as the sole aim of life, superficial competition takes root instead of depth of knowledge. This very process is the first and most deadly stage of talent wastage. The natural abilities of many gifted children and adolescents are destroyed in their infancy by our rigid education system and social pressure. Forced to walk the conventional path prescribed by society instead of advancing according to their own interests and skills, they ultimately turn into frustrated citizens devoid of creativity.

The outward migration of talent, or brain drain, from Assam has today become a complex problem. The roots of this problem extend far. It is a natural process for students from Assam to go outside the state or abroad for higher education and research. Certainly, in the age of globalisation, geographical boundaries cannot be an obstacle to the acquisition of knowledge. Yet the worrying aspect arises when, even after acquiring knowledge and skills, these talented individuals find no way to return to their motherland or lose all desire to do so. Behind this lie not only economic reasons but also deep social and psychological ones. Economic security and living standards are undoubtedly important factors, but equally responsible are the lack of freedom in the workplace, the absence of proper infrastructure for research, and the lack of genuine respect for talent in society, which have given this outward flow a permanent character. When a highly educated or specially skilled person tries to work in his own state and encounters bureaucratic complications, political interference, and the dominance of the incompetent at every step, relocation becomes for him not merely a professional decision but a psychological necessity. The present condition of our institutions of higher learning makes this picture of intellectual crisis even clearer and more tragic. Universities and colleges, instead of being temples of knowledge, are gradually turning into degree-distribution centres and arenas of politics. The environment for original research, the emergence of new ideas, and world-class academic discourse is extremely limited in these institutions. Complaints of decrepit laboratories, absence of new books in libraries, and nepotism or corruption in teacher appointments demoralise the new generation. When a research student sees that his teacher has reached that position not on the basis of merit but through some invisible force, a feeling of revolt and hatred towards the entire system arises in the student's mind. This disgust compels them to leave the state. As a result, there is a shortage of talented teachers and students in Assam's higher education institutions, and mediocre thinking has taken their place, dragging the intellectual world downward. Another profound aspect of talent wastage is the death of talent or its fall victim to "intellectual inertia" even while remaining within the state due to the absence of a suitable environment. Many talented youths may not go outside the state for family or personal reasons, yet while staying here they get no opportunity to develop their abilities. In both government and private sectors, obedience and conventionality are given more importance than creativity. Our society does not easily accept people who want to do something new or think against the prevailing current. Rather, they are repeatedly discouraged through criticism and non-cooperation. The prevalent "crab mentality" in Assamese social life—the tendency of one to pull another down—has prematurely killed many promising initiatives and thoughts. Thus, countless talents are silently perishing within our society, unnoticed by anyone. This too is an irreparable loss of talent.

The effect of Assam's intellectual crisis is clearly visible in our literature, culture, and media. The kind of serious discussion, literary practice, and reasoned debate that once existed in Assam is rapidly disappearing today. The superficial, cheap, and emotion-dominated content that now dominates newspapers and social media is indicative of the community's intellectual bankruptcy. Instead of deep study and analysis of complex social and economic problems, only momentary excitement finds space. Thoughtful scholars and researchers are receiving less respect in society, while the influence of rabble-rousers and those who gain cheap popularity is increasing. When emotion replaces knowledge and shouting replaces logic in a society, that society can never progress. In such an environment, genuinely talented people distance themselves, leaving the seat of intellectual leadership either vacant or in the hands of the incompetent.

Political instability and long-standing social conflicts have also acted as major obstacles to the development of talent in Assam. Over the past several decades the state has faced numerous movements and unrest. Their direct impact has fallen on the academic calendar and educational environment. Although the present situation is somewhat calm, the fear of future uncertainty and apprehension has not entirely vanished from people's minds. Because of this uncertainty, many parents want to educate their children outside the state and settle them there in the hope of a secure future. This is a situation akin to "intellectual refugees". Despite love for their birthplace, they are compelled to stay away for the sake of future security. As a result, Assam has lost thousands of skilled doctors, engineers, scientists, economists, and social scientists who have earned fame in various parts of the world with their expertise, yet have been unable to contribute anything directly to their own state. From an economic perspective, this wastage of talent is a major disaster for Assam. Today's global economy is a "knowledge-based economy". The nation that possesses more intellectual wealth and technological skill becomes correspondingly richer. Despite abundant natural resources in Assam, we are unable to utilise them properly due to the lack of appropriate technical knowledge and innovative power. Consequently, we remain mere suppliers of raw materials and consumers of external products. The participation of talented economists and experts in the state's economic planning and policy-making is nominal. In most cases, bureaucratic decisions dominate, where realistic research is absent. Because the modern technology and management skills required for establishing industries are not locally available, people have to be brought from outside. This neither solves the local unemployment problem nor prevents the state's wealth from flowing outward. Intellectual poverty has bound us in chains of economic dependence as well.

The inferiority complex that has developed towards language and culture is another major cause of this crisis. Knowledge of English is essential in the age of globalisation, but to neglect or demean one's mother tongue and take refuge in another language is a symptom of intellectual slavery. A large section of our new generation finds it difficult to engage in serious thought, writing, or reading in Assamese. As a result, the connection of the Assamese language with the world of knowledge is beginning to break. Because the latest philosophy, science, and technology of the world are neither translated into Assamese nor discussed, the mental horizon of the common people is not expanding. Talent that is not connected to its own soil and people cannot fully benefit society. At present a "rootless" class of talented people has emerged in Assam who achieve success at the international level yet are unable to make any significant contribution to the advancement of their own language and culture.

Due to the unprecedented advancement of technology, geographical distance is no longer a major problem in today's world. Yet in the context of Assam we have failed to use these technological advantages for talent retention. There is no structured and continuous relationship between the state government or local institutions and the expatriate Assamese experts living abroad or outside the state. Although some conferences or festivals are occasionally held, they remain confined to formality. Even when expatriate experts wish to offer advice in the fields of education, health, or agriculture based on their experience, there is a lack of proper platform or goodwill to accept it. In many cases, local leadership refuses to welcome new ideas from outside for fear that their own power or influence will diminish. This lack of communication and coordination has greatly dimmed Assam's potential. Another aspect of this intellectual crisis is the absence of ideal personalities or "role models" in society. Whom will the new generation look up to for inspiration? Most of those projected as successful in today's society are either owners of immense wealth or politically powerful individuals. People who lead their lives through the pursuit of knowledge, sacrifice, and social service are pushed into a corner of society. When an adolescent sees that wealth, not knowledge, receives the highest honour in society, respect for knowledge naturally diminishes in his mind. As a result, a materialistic and opportunistic mentality takes root in society. This mentality teaches people to regard talent merely as a tool for acquiring personal luxuries. The number of people who think about the greater interest of society or human welfare becomes countable on one's fingertips.

To escape this terrible situation, we need a comprehensive and radical change. This is not possible merely through government schemes; it requires a social awakening. The first and foremost task is the reform of the education system. Education must be used not only as a job-oriented tool but as an instrument for building human beings. An environment that keeps curiosity, the courage to question, and creativity alive must be created in the classroom itself. Emphasis must be placed on practical and analytical education instead of rote learning. Institutions of higher education must be completely freed from political interference and granted academic autonomy. Only if merit and skill become the sole criteria for appointing vice-chancellors or professors can the lost glory of these institutions return. Building a healthy research culture in Assam is extremely urgent. The government must increase budget allocation for research and development while also involving the private sector. Funds and infrastructure must be provided for high-quality research on local problems such as floods, agriculture, and biodiversity conservation. When our talented students see that their research has value and benefits society, they will prefer to work here rather than go elsewhere. Think tanks should be formed by bringing together experts from various fields and their advice should be taken in policy-making for the state. Similarly, encouraging industrialisation and a "start-up" culture is an effective way to retain talent. A mindset of self-reliance must be built among Assam's new generation. The mentality of running only after government jobs must be abandoned, and young men and women must be inspired to start new businesses or services with their own skills and creativity. The government must provide easy loans, tax concessions, and market facilities for this. When sufficient employment opportunities are created within the state and a favourable environment for entrepreneurship exists, the outward migration of talent will automatically decrease. The number of "incubation centres" must be increased to nurture those young people who come with new ideas. Improving the quality of life is essential. For living in a city or town, minimum civic amenities must be of high standard. Only when there are good schools, good hospitals, a safe environment, and cultural recreation facilities will highly educated people like to settle there permanently. Along with metropolises like Guwahati, district headquarters also need to be developed in a planned manner. Problems such as traffic congestion, pollution, and artificial floods must be solved for these places to become livable for talented people. Moreover, if internet and digital connectivity are strengthened, many will be able to work for international organisations while staying in Assam through "work from home".

The change in societal mentality is the most important. We must learn to honour the meritorious. Those who selflessly contribute to literature, art, science, or social service must be publicly recognised and honoured. An environment of constructive discussion must be created instead of criticism. We must possess the generosity to respect differing opinions and welcome new thoughts. Especially, parents must identify their children's real interests and talents instead of imposing their own unfulfilled dreams and encourage them to move forward accordingly. We must abandon the habit of measuring success only by money. Furthermore, a separate diaspora policy should be prepared to establish relations with expatriate Assamese. States like Kerala or Andhra Pradesh have beautifully utilised the skills and capital of their expatriate population for the state's development. The Assam government can also maintain regular contact with Assamese organisations and individuals living in different parts of the world following similar models. Creating a favourable investment environment in Assam for them or inviting them as guest professors for knowledge dissemination are measures that can be taken. This will not only bring economic benefits but also smooth the path of intellectual exchange.

In conclusion, it can be said that the wastage of talent and the intellectual crisis are crucial questions connected with Assam's very existence. Its solution is not possible overnight; it is a long-term struggle. But if we do not start this struggle now, in the future we will have nothing left except regret. To build a talent-illuminated, knowledge-based, and self-reliant Assam, the government, society, parents, and the new generation—all must move forward together. Talent is not merely personal property; it is national wealth. The future of this fertile land on the banks of the Luit depends on the preservation and proper utilisation of this wealth. We hope that every Assamese endowed with good sense will realise the depth of this crisis and become active in its resolution from their respective positions. We must remember that only the light of knowledge can defeat darkness and decay; otherwise, in the pages of history we will survive merely as a nearly extinct possibility. Time has not yet run out; what is needed is only a firm resolve and far-sighted thinking.

Premeditated Murder? Zubeen Garg case chargesheet

The untimely death of Zubeen Garg, the beloved Assamese singer, composer, actor, and cultural icon, has left an indelible scar on the hearts of millions across Northeast India and beyond. On September 19, 2025, the 52-year-old artist, known for his soul-stirring melodies that blended folk traditions with contemporary rhythms, collapsed while swimming in the sea off an island near Singapore. He had traveled there as the cultural brand ambassador for the fourth edition of the North East India Festival (NEIF), an event meant to showcase the vibrant heritage of the region under the auspices of the Indian High Commission. What began as a routine outing on a yacht, organized by members of the Assam Association Singapore ahead of his scheduled performance, spiraled into a tragedy that shook Assam to its core. Garg's body was recovered from the waters, and initial reports from Singapore authorities attributed the incident to drowning, with no immediate signs of foul play. Yet, back home in Guwahati, whispers of suspicion quickly grew into a roar of public outrage, demanding answers for how a man in his prime, celebrated for hits like "Mon Jai" and "Mayabini," could vanish so abruptly.

Born on November 18, 1972, in Tura, Meghalaya, to an Assamese family rooted in the village of Tamulichiga in Jorhat district, Zubeen Garg was more than an entertainer; he was a symbol of Assamese pride. His career spanned over three decades, encompassing playback singing, film direction, and philanthropy. Garg's voice carried the raw emotion of the Brahmaputra's floods and the resilience of the tea garden workers, earning him accolades like the Asom Ratna and a legion of fans who saw in him a bridge between tradition and modernity. He was unmarried, dedicating his life to music and social causes, including environmental advocacy and support for flood victims. His presence at NEIF was poised to be a highlight, drawing expatriates eager for a taste of home. Instead, news of his collapse spread like wildfire, prompting an outpouring of grief. Vigils lit up Guwahati's streets, and social media overflowed with tributes, but beneath the sorrow simmered questions: Was this truly an accident, or something far more sinister?

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma wasted no time in signaling that the state would not accept surface-level explanations. Addressing the assembly and the public within days, Sarma declared the incident "not a normal case," hinting at deeper conspiracies tied to financial irregularities that predated the COVID-19 pandemic. "It was a murder case from the very first day," he asserted, vowing that the truth would "shock the state." This bold stance set the tone for an unprecedented investigation, bypassing initial skepticism from Singapore police, who had issued a death certificate citing drowning and suggested a coroner's inquiry for further clarity. The Assam government, undeterred, invoked Section 208 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita to secure Central government sanction for prosecuting an extrajurisdictional crime, underscoring their conviction that justice transcended borders.

The probe kicked off swiftly with the formation of a nine-member Special Investigation Team (SIT) under the Criminal Investigation Department (CID), headed by Special Director General of Police Munna Prasad Gupta. Registered as Case No. 18/2025 at the Dispur Police Station, the investigation initially invoked Sections 61 (criminal conspiracy), 105 (culpable homicide not amounting to murder), and 106 (causing death by negligence) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), India's revamped criminal code. But as evidence mounted, the SIT pushed for escalation. Within two days, they petitioned the court to add Section 103, equivalent to the erstwhile IPC 302 for murder, arguing that preliminary findings pointed to deliberate foul play rather than negligence. After intense debates, the court approved the amendment, transforming the case from potential manslaughter to premeditated homicide. A parallel case, No. 19/2025, targeted property-related offenses against key figures, broadening the net to include forgery and breach of trust.

The SIT's work was exhaustive, spanning three grueling months. Over 300 witnesses were interrogated, from festival organizers and hotel staff in Singapore to fellow performers and locals in Assam. The team traversed continents, collaborating with Singapore authorities to obtain critical documents: two post-mortem reports—one from Singapore and another from Guwahati—a toxicology analysis from the Singapore Police, and viscera examination from the Central Forensic Science Laboratory (CFSL) in Kolkata. Seized items included Garg's mobile phone, personal medicines, a suitcase, multiple hard drives, forged PAN cards, and at least 28 seals from various companies and government offices, hinting at a web of financial manipulation. Gupta, in a December 6 briefing, revealed that the chargesheet would encompass nearly 3,500 pages—some reports even cited 7,000—detailing timelines, forensic correlations, and inmate confessions from the seven accused, who had been grilled relentlessly in CID lockups.

Arrests began trickling in almost immediately, each revelation fueling public fervor. The first breakthroughs came on September 30, when prime suspects Shyamkanu Mahanta, the NEIF chief organizer, and Siddharth Sharma, Garg's long-time manager, were apprehended after days on the run. Mahanta was nabbed in Delhi, Sharma in Haryana, and both were produced before the Chief Judicial Magistrate's residence amid closed courts, remanded to 14-day police custody. Mahanta's home yielded a trove of incriminating documents, leading to a fresh forgery case. Sharma, who handled Garg's schedules and finances, faced scrutiny over suspicious transactions totaling over ₹1.1 crore. By October 2, murder charges under BNS 103 were formally slapped on them, with Gupta confirming the SIT's certainty of orchestration.

The dragnet widened to include those closest to Garg during his final hours. Shekhar Jyoti Goswami, a bandmate and musician, and Amritprabha Mahanta, a co-singer and relative, were arrested after six days of questioning. Goswami, part of the entourage on the fateful yacht, and Amritprabha, who shared stages with Garg, were accused of abetment, their roles allegedly pivotal in luring him into vulnerability. Sandipan Garg, Zubeen's cousin and an Assam Police Service officer serving as Deputy Superintendent of Police, was detained next, charged under BNS 105 for culpable homicide—implying knowledge or intent without full premeditation. His proximity to the victim raised eyebrows about insider betrayal. Rounding out the septet were the singer's personal security officers (PSOs), Pareswari Baisya and Nandeswar Bora, booked under BNS 316 for criminal breach of trust (CBT), their failure to protect deemed not mere oversight but complicity in fatal negligence.

The chargesheet, submitted on December 12, 2025, before the Chief Judicial Magistrate's court in Kamrup Metropolitan under heavy security—a convoy of six vehicles ferrying the voluminous files—crystallized these allegations. It explicitly invoked BNS 103 against Siddharth Sharma, Shyamkanu Mahanta, Amritprabha Mahanta, and Shekhar Jyoti Goswami for abetment of murder, poring them as architects who "facilitated or encouraged the act." Sandipan Garg stood accused under 105, his actions linked to causing death with awareness of consequences. The PSOs faced 316, underscoring their breach as a direct enabler of harm. Accompanying the document were seized exhibits, forensic linkages, and timelines reconstructing the yacht outing: how the group, ostensibly celebrating, isolated Garg in the water, where toxicology hinted at possible impairment from undisclosed substances.

Yet, the chargesheet was just the prelude to deeper revelations. Sarma, in a November 25 assembly address amid an opposition adjournment motion, dropped a bombshell: "One person murdered him, and others cooperated." He refrained from naming the principal perpetrator but stressed that four to five faced murder charges outright. The motive, he implied, wove through financial entanglements—disputed festival funds, embezzlement from Garg's tours, and a "big story" of conspiracy simmering since pre-pandemic years. Opposition leaders, including those from the Congress and AAP, had lambasted the government for premature conclusions, but Sarma countered with the court's endorsement of Section 103, crediting the SIT's rigor for preventing bail-outs. The probe's extrajurisdictional nod from the Ministry of Home Affairs further validated their pursuit.

Complicating the narrative was the legal standoff over representation. In a rare show of solidarity, the Assam Advocates' Association, representing over 10,000 lawyers, resolved to boycott the accused, citing the gravity of betraying a cultural icon. Shyamkanu Mahanta's wife, Anita Deka Mahanta, a lawyer herself, penned a desperate plea for withdrawal, arguing it undermined due process. "In the context of legal proceedings," she questioned in her letter, decrying the decision as emotional overreach. The association stood firm, forcing the accused to navigate without local counsel, a move that amplified perceptions of communal outrage. Protests erupted outside suspects' residences, with arrests for incitement underscoring the volatile mood.

As the chargesheet landed in court, it marked a pivotal closure to the SIT's phase, but the trial loomed as the true battleground. Gupta emphasized that while the core murder probe concluded, ancillary inquiries into finances and forgeries persisted, promising no escapes. Public sentiment, raw and unrelenting, echoed in chants of "Justice for Zubeen Da," with fans from Sivasagar to Shillong holding candlelight marches. Garg's absence reverberated in empty concert halls and silenced airwaves, his songs now anthems of loss. The case exposed fissures in the entertainment industry's underbelly—managerial greed, succession lapses, familial fractures—while highlighting Assam's unyielding quest for accountability. Was the plot to eliminate Zubeen Garg hatched long before that fateful swim? Inmate testimonies, buried in the chargesheet's annexures, reportedly affirm a premeditated snare, with whispers of earlier attempts thwarted. Financial trails point to siphoned royalties and festival kickbacks, Mahanta's forged seals suggesting a syndicate preying on artists. Sharma's evasion to Rajasthan, Mahanta's Delhi hideout—these were no panic flights but calculated dodges, per investigators. Singapore's initial clean bill clashed with CFSL's viscera insights, possibly indicating tampering or overdose, though details remain sealed until trial.

Three months on, as December's chill settled over Guwahati, the submission of the chargesheet felt like a collective exhale. Yet, for a state that revered Garg as its heartbeat, closure remains elusive. His music, once a balm for everyday joys and sorrows, now underscores a cautionary tale of trust shattered. The courts will dissect the 3,500 pages, weighing abetment against intent, conspiracy against coincidence. But beyond legalese, this is a reckoning for a legacy: Zubeen Garg, the voice of Assam, silenced not by waves but by human shadows. As Sarma promised, the full story will shock, but in unveiling it, perhaps it heals—reminding us that icons, too, deserve guardians as fierce as their admirers. In the Brahmaputra's steady flow, one hears his echo still: a call for justice, unyielding and pure.

How to survive the holidays while unemployed

By: Maria Gracia Santillana Linares

Visiting family during the holiday season can be stressful for everyone. But for the 7.6 million unemployed Americans (as of September), it can be even harder.

It's not just about the difficulty in gathering funds for holiday travel or gifts—there's added stress about the inevitable awkward conversations that will arise. "So, you're still out of work?" "Why haven't you gotten a new job yet?" And a favorite among TikTok users: "Have you tried mailing your résumé to so-and-so?"

Never mind the reality many job seekers are well aware of: Over 23% of unemployed individuals have been out of work for over 27 weeks as of September, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and white collar workers are looking for jobs for more than 6 months on average. Increased AI use among both applicants and hiring managers to screen job descriptions and résumés means that simply hitting submit is not an effective way to get a new job.

So for those gearing up for potentially tough conversations during the holidays, contributor Julia Korn has some advice: Prepare your messaging ahead of time and know when to leave the party. While you might be annoyed by offers to connect with your uncle's best friend's son who works in a tangential industry, the reality is that networking is still the best way to find your new gig.

You've been CEO at the Ronald McDonald House Charities for about three years now, but you've had a long career in the nonprofit sector, from Make-A-Wish to Feed America. What made you want to do this type of work in the first place?

I'm a social worker by training and I've been in the nonprofit sector my entire professional career. I was very fortunate in the 1970s to grow up in a really diverse community and neighborhood, so I was able to have a lot of different friends and families that I interacted with that were from different socioeconomic levels, religions, races, sort of the gamut. What I noticed as a young adult was how different people's journeys started to look based on the opportunities they had. So I really wanted to be a part of impacting systems and opportunities for kids and families. That's what got me into social work.

Since then, that's really been where I've focused my work, which has been at the intersection of all kinds of issues that impact families. Coming to Ronald McDonald House was the culmination of those experiences. Here is a mission that's working with families again. They are diverse families across 60 countries, with all forms of religious faiths, cultural norms and wildly different healthcare systems, but we're all united in helping very vulnerable families through what, I would argue, is probably one of the most difficult times in their lives when their child's gravely ill. So we're providing those comprehensive services, from housing to mental health care, which is what good social work does.

Obviously it's a tough time for the sector. For those receiving federal grants, many of those have been cut across the board this year. And even those that rely on private donations are seeing a shift in donation sizes and amounts. What has kept you motivated to stay in this type of work?

I'm never lacking motivation. I think if you get into nonprofit work, and for those of us who've been doing it for a long time, it's not easy work. We take on some of humanity's most vexing problems, whether they're family dysfunction, healthcare crises, housing instability, substance abuse, poverty. These are problems that humanity has not been able to solve, and yet we choose to be a part of trying to create solutions. We do positively impact people's lives. So I think if you're in this work, you're kinda wired to not be easily defeated or unmotivated.

Now having said that, obviously it ebbs and flows, and it's a particularly challenging time in the nonprofit sector right now. But what keeps us all going is that every day that folks gain a new donor, or they impact a family, they help someone get to sobriety or permanent housing, that fills people's cups. It makes you just wanna do more of it and take on these challenges.

From your experience, what drives people to leave their job for one at a nonprofit?

You can come into this work from any kind of industry and apply your skills in a really mission-driven environment. We run sophisticated organizations, especially operating across 60 different countries. So we have entire finance, marketing, and communications teams. And I think it's really fulfilling for folks. I talk with people all the time who wanna come into the nonprofit sector because they're looking for that in their experience. They're fulfilled professionally, but they wanna translate those finance skills or those marketing skills or those technology skills into a mission-driven kind of work.

What advice, or pitch for the nonprofit sector, do you have for those kinds of people looking for more mission-driven work?

You know, people can achieve great heights in their professional career, but yet feel like they're not really making an impact. Oftentimes it's people who are further in their career and are reflecting on their life legacy that start wondering about the change. They're asking themselves: "How have I impacted the world?" or "What besides monetary and financial achievement has my life been about?" I think they're looking to come into the nonprofit sector to know that their life and work made a difference. It's less about just compensation or professional accomplishments, but to feel like they've been about something beyond themselves. But I also think there are a lot of people that just connect with the organization's purpose or might have a personal story or experience that drives them to the mission. It's hugely fulfilling for people. (Courtesy: Forbes)

BJP counters Congress, accuses Rahul of peddling falsehoods amid heated Parliament debates on national song and electoral reforms

Rahul Gandhi adamant on proving himself 'jhooth ki dukan': BJP

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: The BJP on Friday called Congress MP Rahul Gandhi "jhooth ki dukan" and said he along with others in the opposition benches was looking away when the Congress was exposed by the treasury benches under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah during debates on Vande Mataram and election reforms in Parliament.

This came after Gandhi, the Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha, hailed his party members' performance during the debates on the two topics in both Houses of Parliament, and claimed that the government was taken to the cleaners by the opposition.

Hitting back, BJP national spokesperson Prem Shukla said, "Rahul Gandhi says the opposition ripped the BJP members apart (dhajhiyan uda di). On the contrary, Rahul Gandhi and others in the opposition were looking away when the Congress was exposed with proof by the members of the treasury benches under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah during the debates on Vande Mataram and Election Reforms."

"The entire country saw it... Rahul Gandhi is adamant on proving himself to be a 'jhooth ki dukan' (shop of lies)," he told reporters at the BJP headquarters here.

The BJP spokesperson said the country also saw how the entire opposition "fled" from the Lok Sabha the moment Shah "reiterated" the Modi government's "resolve" to drive the 'ghuspathiyas' (infiltrators) out of the country.

"The entire country saw how Rahul Gandhi and the members of the other opposition parties were ripped apart on the issue of 'ghuspathiyas'," he added.

Shukla said that Shah told Parliament during debates on the two topics "with proof" as to how Jawaharlal Nehru, the country's first prime minister, "compromised" on the issue of Vande Mataram's stanzas in the original version of the national song.

Intervening in the discussion on Election reforms, the Union home minister also gave a "logical and evidence-based" rebuttal to the opposition's allegations against the Special Intensive Review (SIR) of the electoral rolls by the Election Commission, the BJP spokesperson said.

"The Congress is not in a position to counter his (Shah's) response," he added.

The BJP spokesperson also slammed the leader of the opposition over his remarks that Shah got "scared" by the opposition attack, and said, "Rahul Gandhi, you feel scared and you have accepted it."

"When Sonia Gandhi was named the Congress president post, both the son and the daughter were scared of what would happen if she was made president of the party," Shukla claimed in an apparent reference to Gandhi and his sister Priyanka Gandhi Vadra, who is now an MP from Kerala's Wayanad Lok Sabha constituency.

"Amit Shah was not scared even when the erstwhile UPA government remained busy day and night in conspiring to implicate him and Narendra Modi, then chief minister of Gujarat, in false cases," he added.

The BJP spokesperson also took a swipe at the Congress over the absence of its MP Shashi Tharoor in Gandhi's meeting with the party's Lok Sabha members in the Parliament House complex on Friday, saying, "All Congress leaders are preparing to leave the Congress' sinking ship."

Tharoor could not attend the meeting as he was travelling out of the station.

The BJP spokesperson alleged, "The Congress is a sinking ship with no visible possibility of its survival. All the Congress leaders keep talking about the party's fate," he said.

"But I don't know how Rahul Gandhi is living with such arrogance. He says, 'paksh ki dhajhiyan uda di (his party members ripped the government apart),' he added. (PTI)

BJP's strategy to pit Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay against Tagore backfired: Cong

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: With both Houses of Parliament wrapping up the debate on 150 years of "Vande Mataram" this week, the Congress on Friday said the BJP's "strategy to pit" Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay against Rabinradranath Tagore and insult the latter has "spectacularly backfired".

Union minister J P Nadda on Thursday asserted in the Rajya Sabha that "Vande Mataram" is linked to nationalism and the country should take a resolve to accord it a status equal to that of the national anthem and flag.

He also accused the Congress of appeasement and negating the importance of "Vande Mataram" during pre and post-independence, even though the national song was linked to the country's ancient cultural heritage.

After both Houses held a debate on 150 years of "Vande Mataram", the Congress on Thursday claimed that Prime Minister Narendra Modi and "his entire brigade" have been thoroughly "bruised and exposed for their lies".

On Monday, Modi tore into the Congress, alleging that Nehru betrayed "Vande Mataram" by bowing to Muhammad Ali Jinnah's opposition to the national song that led to it being fragmented and pandering to his communal concerns, putting India on the path of appeasement politics. (PTI)

Bill to set up single higher education regulator gets Cabinet nod

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: A bill to set up a higher education regulator which will replace bodies such as the UGC and AICTE was approved by the Union Cabinet on Friday, officials said.

The proposed legislation which was earlier christened the Higher Education Commission of India (HECI) Bill has now been named Viksit Bharat Shiksha Adhikshan Bill.

The single higher education regulator which was proposed in the new National Education Policy (NEP), looks to replace the University Grants Commission (UGC), the All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE) and the National Council for Teacher Education (NCTE).

"The bill to set up Viksit Bharat Shiksha Adhikshan has been approved by the Cabinet," an official said.

While the UGC oversees non-technical higher education, the AICTE oversees technical education and the NCTE is the regulatory body for teachers' education.

The Commission is proposed to be set up as a single higher education regulator, but medical and law colleges will not be brought under its ambit. It is proposed to have three major roles -- regulation, accreditation and setting professional standards.

Funding, which is seen as the fourth vertical, is not proposed to be under the regulator so far. The autonomy for funding is proposed to be with the administrative ministry.

Ex-Union minister Shivraj Patil passes away; funeral today

Patil, 90, passed away at his residence 'Devghar' after a brief illness, they said, adding that his funeral will be held on Saturday.

Patil is survived by his son Shailesh Patil, daughter-in-law Archana, who unsuccessfully contested the assembly polls last year on a BJP ticket against Congress' Amit Deshmukh from Latur city, and two granddaughters.

He then went on to win the Latur Lok Sabha seat seven times and was the 10th Speaker of the Lok Sabha from 1991 to 1996. He lost to BJP's Rupatai Patil Nilangekar in the 2004 Lok Sabha elections. He was also a Rajya Sabha member. (PTI)

Shivakumar will become CM after ongoing winter session of Karnataka legislature: Cong MLA

BELAGAVI (KARNATAKA), Dec 12: Karnataka Congress MLA Iqbal Hussain on Friday claimed that D K Shivakumar will become the chief minister after the ongoing winter session of the state legislature here.

The MLA from Ramanagara was among the ministers and legislators, who met for dinner, along with Shivakumar, late last night.

"MLAs from various constituencies have come for the session; it is a rare opportunity for all of us to meet. During the session, we meet each other. We had dinner together. What's there in that? Can having food together be called a show of strength?" Hussain told reporters here in response to a question about the dinner meeting.

Asked whether only those close to Shivakumar were invited for the dinner, he said, all are friends and close to each other.

To a question whether Shivakumar gave any good news during the dinner, the MLA, who is considered close to the Deputy CM said, "I'm giving the good news. He will become (CM) after the session, he will become. What's wrong with it?"

He said, "...Shivakumar will get a chance, he will become the chief minister now."

Replying to a question about statements that Shivakumar will become if it is written in his fate, Hussain said, "Everything will happen if the god has written in one's fate....We are all confident that Shivakumar has a chance for his efforts, struggle, and organising the party. We have told the same to the high command, the high command will decide."

According to Hussain 50-55 Congress legislators met for dinner late last night.

Though leaders term it a casual dinner meeting, speculation is rife as it had taken place amid a power tussle in the ruling party, over the CM post. (PTI)

SC seeks CBI's reply on ex-R&AW official's plea seeking documents in OSA case

NEW DELHI, May 31: The Supreme Court on Friday sought a response from the CBI on a former R&AW official's plea seeking documents relied upon by the probe agency in a trial against him under the Official Secrets Act.

A bench of Justices J K Maheshwari and Vijay Bishnoi issued the notice to the CBI seeking its reply on a plea by Major General V K Singh (retired).

Advocate Prashant Bhushan, appearing for Singh, submitted that the high court on September 19 modified an order of the trial court and stated that the documents relied upon by the CBI in the case can only be inspected by the counsel for petitioner and not supplied to him owing to their sensitive nature.

"It is normal procedure under Section 207 of the CrPc where the accused is supplied the document relied upon by the prosecution. The magistrate allowed supply of documents but the high court modified it," Bhushan said.

Singh has served in the Research and Analysis Wing (R&AW) and has written a book in which certain allegations of corruption in procurement of equipment were made but the CBI booked him under the Official Secrets Act (OSA), Bhushan said. The bench said it is seeking CBI's response on the plea and posted the matter for hearing after four weeks.

The CBI has registered a case against Singh on September 20, 2007, on a complaint that he allegedly revealed secret information by publication of his book titled 'India's External Intelligence - Secrets of Research and Analysis Wing'.

Search warrants were issued against Singh on September 20, 2007, and a compliance report was filed on September 24, 2007, in the court.

On April 7, 2008, the Centre authorised the filing of a complaint under Section 13(3) of the Official Secrets Act and a chargesheet was filed in the case under Sections 3 and 5 of the Official Secrets Act, 1923, and Sections 409 and 120B of the IPC on April 11, 2008, with request to keep the classified documents in sealed cover.

The trial court took cognisance of the chargesheet on January 31, 2009, for the offences under Sections 3 and 5 of the Official Secrets Act, 1923, and under Sections 409, 120B of the IPC. (PTI)

Cabinet nod for Census 2027

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: Union minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Friday said the government has approved Rs 11,718 crore for the conduct of the Census of India 2027.

The Union Cabinet, at a meeting chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, approved the proposal to conduct the Census which will be the first digital exercise of its kind, Information and Broadcasting Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw told reporters here.

The Census will be conducted in two phases -- house-listing and housing census from April to September, 2026; and population enumeration (PE) in February 2027. For Ladakh and snow-bound non-synchronous areas of the Union Territory of Jammu and Kashmir and states of Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand, the PE exercise shall be conducted in September, 2026, he said.

The Census 2027 will also capture caste data electronically in the PE phase, Vaishnaw said.

About 30 lakh field functionaries will complete this gigantic exercise of national importance. (PTI)

RTI findings point to regulatory inaction as key power plants near the capital remain unchecked for harmful emissions for years

No stack-emission checks at thermal power plants near Delhi-NCR in 10 years: RTI reply

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: The Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) has not conducted full stack-emission monitoring for any thermal power plant (TPP) within a 300-km radius of Delhi in the past 10 years, according to an RTI reply.

Stack-emission monitoring refers to the measurement and analysis of pollutants released from industrial chimneys to verify air pollution levels and compliance with environmental norms.

The government had introduced rules in 2015 mandating all TPPs to regularly check and report their emissions. This includes detailed stack-emission monitoring. However, the RTI reply has revealed that the CPCB has not conducted full stack monitoring for any coal-based thermal power plant within 300 km of the national capital in the last 10 years, even though these plants release significant amounts of sulphur dioxide (SO₂) and PM_{2.5}.

According to the RTI reply, only two plants -- Deenbandhu Chhoturam Thermal Power Station in Haryana and Guru Hargobind Thermal Power Plant in Punjab -- underwent partial monitoring. Even for these, the CPCB said complete monitoring, analysis and submission of emission results are pending.

The reply further states that under the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change's notification dated July 11, 2025, sulphur dioxide emission standards are mandatory only for Category-A thermal plants.

Of four such plants around Delhi -- NTPC Dadri, Mahatma Gandhi TPS (Jhajjar), Indira Gandhi STPS (Hisar) and Panipat TPS -- three have installed pollution-control systems, while the Panipat plant remains non-compliant. It has been given time until December 31, 2027 to meet the norms.

The RTI response also shows that neither monitoring, nor action has been initiated against any of these plants over non-compliance with pollution-checking regulations.

Amit Gupta, who filed the RTI, said the findings expose "serious enforcement failures" at a time when Delhi-NCR continues to endure hazardous air quality every winter.

Pointing to the regulatory gaps, he added that unchecked emissions from thermal power plants significantly contribute to Delhi's PM_{2.5} levels. "With Delhi breathing toxic air every winter, the absence of full-stack monitoring for nearly a decade is alarming. Enforcement has clearly failed," he said.

On Friday, the 24-hour average air quality index (AQI) was recorded at 349 at 4 pm, in the 'very poor' category. (PTI)

Arunachal records major leap in national education assessment, CM hails improvement

State moves up to 17th in Parakh 2024, showing significant gains in language learning

ITANAGAR, Dec 12: Chief Minister Pema Khandu on Friday said the state has recorded "remarkable improvement in learning outcomes", with the latest Parakh Rashtriya Sarvekshan 2024 report placing it at the 17th position among 36 states and Union territories.

Khandu described the improvement as a "clear sign that education reforms are delivering results" in the state.

"We have moved out of the bottom 10 with remarkable improvement in learning outcomes. Overall rank 17th out of 36. A clear sign that education reforms are delivering results!" he said in a post on X, expressing optimism over the state's education trajectory.

The CM highlighted that Arunachal's performance in language learning at the middle and secondary levels has shown significant progress.

"Our Parakh 2024 scores in Grade 6 and Grade 9 (language) have surpassed national averages and outperformed our own past records. A true milestone in our journey of educational transformation," he said.

Calling the achievement a collective success, Khandu extended his appreciation to the education community.

"Gratitude to all teachers, students, parents and education officials who are making this mission a reality," he added.

The Parakh 2024 assessment reflects improvements across multiple grades, with Arunachal ranking 12th in Grade 9, 14th in Grade 6, and 24th in Grade 3, indicating upward trends driven by ongoing education reforms under the state's vision of Shiksit Arunachal, Viksit Arunachal 2029.

Officials at the state education department said the latest rankings strengthen the momentum of the government's comprehensive reforms aimed at enhancing foundational learning, upgrading infrastructure and improving the quality of teaching and assessments across the state. (PTI)

Rescue operations continue in Anjaw gorge as authorities work to recover remaining victims

Six bodies recovered from Anjaw mini-truck accident

ITANAGAR, Dec 12: Six bodies were retrieved on Friday from the deep gorge in Arunachal Pradesh's Anjaw district, where a mini-truck on which 22 people from Assam were travelling fell, police said.

The operation was initiated by a joint team of the NDRF and Army at the first light of day, Anjaw SP Anurag Dwivedi informed.

"The retrieval process was extremely difficult because of the treacherous terrain. The gorge is very deep," he said.

Eighteen bodies have been spotted at the site and the search for the remaining three missing would continue after the retrieval of these bodies, he said.

The operation to retrieve the rest of the bodies will resume on Saturday morning, he added.

All those travelling in the vehicle were labourers from Assam's Tezpur district. The accident happened on the evening of December 8, around 40 km from Hayuliang towards Chaglagam.

On the evening of December 10, one survivor managed to climb out of the gorge and reach a nearby Border Roads Task Force (BRTF) labour camp. The officer commanding the BRTF subsequently alerted the district authorities, officials said.

State Disaster Management Secretary Dani Salu said that, considering the extremely treacherous terrain and unreliable weather, a rescue attempt on the night of December 10 was deemed unsafe.

He said the next day, the Army, BRTF, local police and district administration launched a full-scale operation to retrieve the bodies.

Salu said the identities of 18 bodies have been established so far.

He said the mini-truck was privately owned and the labourers were being transported by a private contractor.

"The private contractor has been taken to the police station for questioning," he said.

Mourning the loss of lives in the accident, Chief Minister Pema Khandu lauded the Army, BRO, the NDRF and the local administration for their swift response to the crisis in such a challenging terrain. (PTI)

Former Congress leader, 23 others join BJP in Anjaw

HT Correspondent

ITANAGAR, Dec 12: The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) on Thursday received a significant boost in Anjaw district with the induction of former Congress functionary Gungso Kri and 23 opposition members from Longling village.

Women and Child Development Minister Dasanglu Pui announced the development on social media, stating that Gungso Kri, a former vice president of the Congress Party's Anjaw unit, formally joined the BJP expressing confidence in the party's policies and its development agenda for Arunachal Pradesh. Pui welcomed Kri into the party fold and said his support would strengthen ongoing efforts toward welfare and progress in the region.

In a separate development, 23 opposition members from Longling also joined the BJP on Thursday. The group, led by Sobrab Longling and outgoing Gram Panchayat Member (Independent) Lobasha Longling, announced their decision in the presence of party leaders.

Pui said the induction of the group has "virtually brought the opposition in Longling to an end," adding that the people of the village have extended overwhelming support to the BJP. She said the mass joining further reinforces the party's commitment to development, stability and unity in the area.

"With renewed commitment and collective resolve, we look forward to taking Longling and Anjaw on the path of inclusive growth," she added.

The organisations have demanded action on alleged unauthorised religious structures, regulation of migrant entry, recognition of only two established Jama Masjid in the Capital Complex and a complete ban on weekly markets in areas such as Doimukh and Hollongi. They claimed that unregulated activities were affecting local security, cultural practices and economic stability.

Phasang urged the government to prioritise the matter. He said the organisations fear demographic and economic impacts if the issues remain unaddressed. He also expressed concern over recent reports of two individuals arrested in Jammu & Kashmir for alleged espionage, saying such incidents highlight the need for strong security measures in all states.

Reiterating their opposition to weekly markets, he appealed to residents to remain vigilant about newcomers in their localities and to follow proper verification processes while renting out property.

APIYO general secretary Tapor Maying raised concerns about door-to-door commercial activities and unregulated weekly markets, stating that these could pose challenges to local livelihoods and security. He said the recent bandh saw wide public support and thanked residents for their cooperation.

Maying urged the government to initiate discussions on the organisations' charter of demands, adding that their democratic movement would continue if concerns remain unaddressed. He also welcomed recent official action in some states on unapproved structures and said similar steps should be taken in Arunachal Pradesh, while emphasising that their concerns are focused on public safety and regulatory compliance.

The organisations appealed to the public to stay aware of security-related issues and to cooperate with authorities in maintaining peace and order in the Capital Region.

Child dies in hostel fire at Taktsang school

DC orders magisterial inquiry, district-wide safety audit

HT Correspondent

TAWANG, Dec 12: A tragic fire broke out around 12:20 AM on Thursday in the hostel of Netaji Subash Chandra Bose Awasiya Vidyalaya, Taktsang, reportedly caused by an electrical short circuit.

During the emergency, student Dorjee Tsomu (Class VIII) and hostel warden Nima Lhamu bravely rescued several children who were asleep when the fire erupted. Despite their courageous efforts, one student, Choine Tsomu (Class I), aged six, could not be saved due to the intensity of the blaze.

Personnel from a nearby Indian Army unit, along with villagers, school staff and hostel authorities, rushed to the spot. The fire spread rapidly, fuelled by dried wooden planks and furniture inside the hostel. Combined efforts using water and fire extinguishers eventually brought the flames under control.

The incident resulted in the heartbreaking loss of a young life and extensive damage to school property.

This morning, DC Tawang Nangyal Angmo (IAS), Superintendent of Police Dr DW Thongon, Additional Deputy Commissioner Lungla Tashi Dhondup, DDMO Genden Tsomu and DDSE Tawang Hridar Phuntsok visited the site to assess the damage and meet the family of the deceased student.

The body of the child, identified as Choine Tsomu, daughter of Tenzin Yeton and Yeshe Wange of Shocksan village under Jemeithang Circle has been sent for post-mortem and completion of other legal formalities. DC Tawang has ordered a magisterial inquiry to ascertain the facts and circumstances leading to the incident through the Circle Officer, Jemeithang. She has also issued instructions for a district-wide safety audit of all residential schools and hostels.

ITANAGAR, Dec 12: Governor Lt General KT Parnaik, PVSM, UYSM, YSM (Retd), along with the First Lady Anagha Parnaik, participated in the joint celebration of Nagaland and Assam State Foundation Day with the Naga and Assamese communities at Lok Bhavan, Itanagar on Thursday. The occasion celebrated India's unity in diversity and aligned with the Governor's vision of fostering intercultural understanding, especially among youth, as a foundation for an inclusive and harmonious society.

Governor Parnaik reflected on the shared histories of Assam and Nagaland, praising both States for preserving their natural environment, cultural heritage and traditional textiles and handlooms. He noted that the Assamese language once served as a connecting dialect in Arunachal Pradesh, symbolising the long-standing bonds among northeastern neighbours. He thanked the people of Assam and Nagaland for their contributions to the progress of Arunachal Pradesh and the collective vision of Viksit Bharat, highlighting how mutual trust has strengthened inter-State camaraderie.

The Governor emphasised that such celebrations embody the Prime Minister's vision of 'Ek Bharat Shreshtha Bharat', fostering awareness among youth about the lives, traditions and cultures of other States—an experience that will inspire them as future leaders.

As part of the programme, Naga students from NERIST performed 'Aoh', a gospel folk-fusion song from Nagaland originally composed by Jano Nyekha. Children of the Assamese community paid tribute to the Late Zubeen Garg through a dance performance, while women from the Assamese community presented the traditional Vaishnav devotional song Diha Nam. Bodo women performed the graceful Bagarumba dance. Children from Oju Mission, Naharlagun, attended as special guests of the Governor.

The Governor and the First Lady later hosted a High Tea for all participants, engaging with members of the Assamese and Naga communities and appreciating their efforts in preserving and promoting their cultural heritage in Arunachal Pradesh.

Record-breaking Suryavanshi powers India to big 234-run win over UAE in U19 Asia Cup opener

DUBAI, Dec 12: Vaibhav Suryavanshi was at his imperious best while smashing a 171 off 95 balls, powering India to a mammoth 234-run win over hosts UAE in the inaugural match of the U19 Asia Cup here on Friday.

The 14-year-old from Samastipur, Bihar, unleashed a stunning display of batting, hitting 14 sixes - the most by any batter in a single innings in the U19 level - en-route to his breathtaking innings.

Half-centuries from Vihaan Malhotra (69) and Aaron George (69) further bolstered India's charge as they piled up 433 for 6 in 50 overs. The 400-plus total is India's highest-ever in U19 ODIs and is the highest in the U-19 Asia Cup's history.

In reply, UAE were never in the contest despite fighting fifties from Prithvi Madhu (50) and Uddish Suri (78 not out), as they could only manage 199/7 in their allotted 50 overs. Suryavanshi's blistering knock, studded with nine boundaries, is now the second-highest score by an Indian in youth ODIs, behind Ambati Rayudu's unbeaten 177 against England in 2002 and the ninth-highest score by a batter in a men's U19 ODI.

Sent into bat, the young opener looked a class apart as he punnelled the UAE bowlers into submission, racing to his fifty off just 30 balls and bringing up his hundred in only 56 deliveries.

He then shared a 212-run stand with George to completely flatten the hosts' attack. His fiery innings finally came to an end in the 33rd over when he was bowled by spinner Suri.

After his dismissal, the middle-order maintained the tempo, with Vedant Trivedi (38), Abhigyan Kundu (32 not out) and Kanishk Chouhan (28) keeping the runs flowing to take India past the coveted 400-run mark.

Faced with a daunting target, UAE lost two wickets inside the first four overs, before the quick dismissals of Muhammad Rayan, Ayaan Misbah and Ahmed Khudadad in the space of nine balls left them tottering at 48 for 5, effectively ending the chase.

Suri and Madhu added 85 runs to arrest the slide, but the damage had long been done.

Brief Score: India 433 for 6 in 50 overs (Vaibhav Suryavanshi 171, Vihaan Malhotra 69, Aaron George 69; Yug Sharma 2/75. UAE 199 for 7 in 50 overs (Uddish Suri 78 not out, Prithvi Madhu 50; Deepesh Devdaran 2/21) (PTI)

India slip to sixth in WTC standings after New Zealand's big win against WI

DUBAI, Dec 12: India on Friday slipped a rung to sixth position in the World Test Championship standings after New Zealand's comprehensive nine-wicket victory against the West Indies in Wellington propelled them to the third place.

Runners-up in the first two WTC cycles, India were placed fifth after they were blanked 2-0 by South Africa at home last month with New Zealand occupying the sixth position. However, the table saw a major turnaround after the Kiwis' big win in the second Test at Basin Reserve on Friday.

Former champions Australia continue to hold the top position with 100 percentage points (win-loss percentage) with South Africa in second place with 75 percentage points.

Sri Lanka (66.67) and Pakistan (50) occupy the fourth and fifth position respectively.

New Zealand have so far accumulated 66.67 percentage points, while India have a win-loss percentage of 48.15.

India can drop further down to seventh if England stage a comeback against Australia in the Ashes. The Aussies lead the series 2-0 with three more matches to play.

India's next assignment is against Sri Lanka in August next year.

With the latest result, New Zealand have also boosted their prospects of a second appearance in the World Test Championship Final.

The Black Caps' bowlers did the damage on the third day at Basin Reserve, with Jacob Duffy's five-wicket haul helping the hosts dismiss the West Indies for just 128 in their second innings.

That left New Zealand requiring 56 for victory and a 1-0 series lead and Devon Conway (28 not out) and Kane Williamson (16 not out) guided them home after the early loss of skipper Tom Latham for nine.

The victory saw New Zealand earn 12 valuable WTC points and allowed the 2021 winners to jump in front of Pakistan and India and join Sri Lanka in third place on the standings.

The third Test between New Zealand and West Indies will commence in Mount Maunganui on December 18. (PTI)

Make in India: PT Usha calls on govt to promote manufacturing of anti-doping kits

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: Indian Olympic Association President (IOA) and Rajya Sabha member P T Usha on Friday urged the central government to promote production of indigenous anti-doping testing kits under the 'Make in India' initiative, saying it will not only reduce cost but also increase transparency.

Usha raised the issue in Rajya Sabha and said that having to import testing kits causes delayed results and dependency on "external agencies". Two Swiss companies, Berlinger and LockCon, are the major suppliers of these testing kits to India right now, according to a well-placed source.

"I want to draw the urgent attention of this house to a matter that affects the integrity of our athletes and the global image of our nation. The need to promote indigenous production of anti-doping kits under the Make in India initiative to work towards making India a dope-free sporting nation.

"...the menace of doping continues to threaten fairplay, athlete health and our country's reputation on the world stage. At present a significant portion of high quality dope testing kits is imported, resulting in high cost, delay in testing cycles and dependency on external agencies," she said.

India is bidding to become an Olympic host in 2036 and the International Olympic Committee (IOC) has made it clear that the country will have to considerably improve its current doping record. India ranks poorly in tackling the menace and regularly features in the global top five of dope offenders. Her statement comes a week after Sports Minister Mansukh Mandaviya, in response to a question in the Upper House, said that the government is committed to expanding the anti-doping measures.

The Minister said NADA has increased its testing capacity considerably and 7751 dope control tests are planned in the current year, a significant increase from the 7474 tests done in 2024 and 5794 tests in 2023.

Usha said having indigenous dope testing kits would be transformative as it would encourage research, manufacturing and technology development, including sample collection devices, and portable detection equipment.

"India can become self-reliant and even emerge as a global supplier of world-class anti-doping solutions. Such an initiative will not only reduce cost but also speed up testing, increase transparency and strengthen the deterrence mechanism across all levels of sports," she said.

"Indigenous kit production will also open new avenue of employment, innovation and scientific research in line with the vision of Aatmanirbhar Bharat," she added. Usha said along with this, efforts are also on to launch aggressive awareness campaigns among young athletes and ensure stronger monitoring at training centres.

She said the aim is to have "regular random testing and strict action against violators while ensuring that clean athletes receive full support and protection."

"Therefore I urge the government to establish a national programme of indigenous anti-doping kits development under Make in India and support Indian scientific institutions and startups in doping detection technology," she said.

"We should strengthen NADA (National Anti-Doping Agency) and Regional Testing Laboratories with modern equipment and man power and launch a nationwide movement to build a clean transparent and dope-free sporting culture.

"Protecting the purity of sport is not just a regulatory duty, it is a national responsibility. I request the government to take urgent and concrete step in this direction," she added.

A ministry source, well-versed with the functioning of anti-doping agencies, said while her suggestion is a welcome one, such manufacturing units have to deliver products of highest quality to be reliable suppliers.

"Anti-Doping kits and exceptionally sensitive where even a small wear and tear can cast aspersions on the test results. We should work towards the plan she is suggesting but ensure that we get absolutely the best to enter the market," he said. (PTI)

Liverpool coach Arne Slot to hold talks with Mohamed Salah and suggests a way back for the icon

MANCHESTER, Dec 12: Liverpool coach Arne Slot said he was having talks with Mohamed Salah on Friday after the forward's explosive outburst threw his Anfield future into doubt.

Salah said last week that his relationship with Slot had broken down after being dropped for three straight games, and that he felt like "someone doesn't want me in the club."

The Egypt forward was then left at home when Liverpool traveled to Inter Milan in the Champions League on Tuesday, with Slot saying he did not know if Salah would play again for the club.

Speaking ahead of Saturday's Premier League game against Brighton, Slot said he was having talks with Salah and suggested there could be a way back into the team for the club icon.

"I will have a conversation with Mo this morning and the outcome of that conversation determines how it (the team) will look tomorrow," Slot told a news conference. "What I need is a conversation with him and I think the next time I speak about Mo should be with him and not in here."

Salah was an unused substitute for the 3-3 draw with Leeds last week and then gave an impromptu interview to reporters outside the stadium.

"It seems like the club has thrown me under the bus. That is how I am feeling. I think it is very clear that someone wanted me to get all of the blame (for recent poor results)," he said.

Slot said those comments came after he already had discussions with the player.

"We've spoken a lot in the last week after the Sunderland game (on Dec. 3). I think there have been a lot of conversations between his representatives and ours, our representatives and him, between him and me after the Sunderland game and today I will speak to him again."

Salah, who has four league goals in 13 appearances this term, was first dropped for the game against West Ham last month. He was then on the bench for the match against Sunderland and again at Leeds.

He has won two league titles and the Champions League with Liverpool. He is also the club's record scorer in the Premier League.

Salah is due to head off to the Africa Cup of Nations next week and said last week he did not know what would happen while he was away. (AP)

Also in contention are Nirmaben Thakor, Indian elite winner at the 2025 Tata Mumbai Marathon. (PTI)

Messi visit set to fulfil dreams tea-stall owner and engineer superfan

KOLKATA, Dec 12: For Ichhapur tea-seller Shib Shankar Patra, Argentine superstar Lionel Messi's arrival in Kolkata on Saturday will be more than a dream fulfilled. It will be a moment he believes he "survived to see". Patra, 56, is one of two diehard fans handpicked for a special meet-and-greet with the Argentine superstar, a gesture the organisers planned after his story drew widespread media attention.

Once a club-level footballer, Patra built an entire life around his devotion to Argentina and Messi. Ahead of his visit to Kolkata with the national side to play a FIFA friendly against Venezuela in 2011, Patra painted his three-storied house in Nawabganj blue-and-white, turned his decades-old tea stall into an "Argentina fan club", and installed a life-size statue of Messi at the entrance. Inside, walls, doors, even wardrobes are covered in Argentine colours.

Locals drop in for tea and football 'adda', while visiting supporters pose with the giant 120x20 ft flag and posters lining the street.

The fandom runs in the family.

His daughter Neha themed her wedding in 2022 around Argentina colours, and the father-daughter duo also organise blood donation camps and distribute blankets to the needy.

But behind the celebrations is a difficult year for the Patras. Patra recently underwent heart surgery, had a pacemaker implanted and suffered multiple falls that badly affected his small business.

Even then, he refused to give up hope of seeing Messi again after first watching him live in 2011 at the Salt Lake Stadium, an experience he says kept him awake "for many days".

The family had initially bought two tickets worth Rs 7,000 each for Saturday's event -- a steep price for two -- before organiser Satadru Dutta personally called to invite them to the exclusive meet-and-greet at Messi's hotel.

"We are all ready to go and meet him. We dreamt of seeing him and finally the dream will come true for him. He's alive today to see him I will say," Patra's wife Sapna told PTI.

"He had heart surgery and was very ill. While making tea he had two-three falls and hit his head but managed to survive and then pacemaker was implanted last month.

"Guess he's survived to see Messi now, we are so excited. He's having sleepless nights to see his idol... We have been called for a meeting this afternoon perhaps to discuss how to go about it and all details. Then we will go to his hotel at 7am tomorrow," she said. Ichhapur won't be the only fan landmark represented.

Failed civil engineer builds Messi 'temple'

The owner of the Messi-themed Dum Dum Leo Cafe, Soumendra Ghosh -- a popular stop for supporters near Dum Dum Metro station -- has also been invited, completing what promises to be an emotional morning for Kolkata's most devoted Messi faithful. Ghosh, a civil engineer and a diehard admirer of Lionel Messi, has turned his cafe into what he proudly calls a "temple" dedicated to the Argentine icon.

The walls portray Messi's career, and Ghosh recalls how the football icon inspired him during one of the lowest phases of his life. (PTI)

New Zealand beats West Indies by 9 wickets in the 2nd test; leads the series 1-0

WELLINGTON, Dec 12: Jacob Duffy took 5-38 as New Zealand's weakened attack bowled out the West Indies for 128 on the third day to set up a nine-wicket win in the second test. New Zealand leads the three-match series 1-0 after the first test was drawn. The third test begins on Dec. 18.

Duffy claimed his second five-wicket bag of the series as the West Indies were left with an overall lead of only 55 after trailing by 73 runs on the first innings.

New Zealand reached 56-1 in only 10 overs, losing Tom Latham (9) along the way. Devon Conway was 28 not out at the end and Kane Williamson was 16, hitting a four off Anderson Phillip for the winning runs minutes before the schedule tea break.

Pacer Michael Rae and wicket-keeper-batter Mitch Hay also made major contributions to New Zealand's win after being called up to make their test debuts in an injury-hit team.

Hay scored a match-high 61 in as

New Zealand made 278 in its first innings in reply to the West Indies' 205. Rae took 3-66 in the first innings and 3-45 in the second, match figures of 6-106.

New Zealand's bowling attack, already depleted by injuries to Matt Henry, Will O'Rourke and Nathan Smith and the absences of Kyle Jamieson and Ben Sears was further weakened when Blair Tickner suffered a dislocated left shoulder in a fielding mishap after taking 4-32 in the first innings. He was playing his first test in two years.

Pressure again fell on Duffy, who bowled 19 overs in the West Indies first innings and 17.2 of the 46.2 overs bowled in the second innings. That came after he was called to bowl 43 overs in the second innings of the first test and 60 overs in that match after injuries to Henry and Smith left New Zealand with only two fit pacers.

"I guess to lose (Tickner) like that he bowled great in the first innings and I thought the way the guys bowled today was awesome," Duffy said. "I thought it was a great team performance and we got the job done. Day three, how good?"

The West Indies made 205 after being sent in Wednesday on a light green pitch at the Basin Reserve which provided pace, bounce and a little movement on all three days. Shai Hope top-scored with 47 and John Campbell made 44.

Hay's maiden half century and Devon Conway's 60 helped New Zealand establish a significant first innings lead.

The West Indies resumed at 32-2 Friday, still 41 runs behind after losing Campbell and nightwatchman Anderson Phillip late on the second day. New Zealand captured four wickets in the first session, including the wicket of Hope to take full command of the match. The West Indies' slump began when Brandon King (22) was run out in a mix-up with Kavem Hodge.

The West Indies were 98-6 at lunch, only 25 in front. (AP)

If we start judging Gill after two T20I games, then we have a problem: GT head coach Nehra

NEW DELHI, Dec 12: Gujarat Titans head coach Ashish Nehra is not amused by the snap judgements being passed on skipper Shubman Gill's form, cautioning that writing him off after a couple of outings in the volatile T20 format reflects the growing tendency of arriving at quick conclusions.

Gill, who made a comeback to the T20I set-up as vice-captain during the Asia Cup, has totalled 181 runs in the last 10 games at a 18.1 strike-rate.

Nehra, who has watched Gill from close quarters as the GT head coach for the past two seasons, was asked whether he is worried considering that IPL is three months away. "Forget three months, had IPL been three weeks away, I (still) wouldn't be worried. Because you are talking about a format like T20. And only two matches have been played against South Africa, if I am not wrong," Nehra, the former fast bowler known for straight shooting, replied to a query from PTI during an interaction with a select group.

Nehra feels that the fundamental problem with criticism in India is reaching a conclusion on the basis of numbers alone.

"This is our problem. In such a fast-paced tournament format, whether it's international cricket or IPL, if a player like Shubman Gill is judged after not coming good in two to three matches, then it will be difficult," Nehra said.

In his inimitable style laced with sarcasm, Nehra said if one reckons that change is needed, so many options are there to be tried.

"You have a lot of options if you want to see. You can remove Abhishek Sharma and Shubman Gill and you can open with Sai Sudharsan and Ruturaj Gaikwad," Nehra said and his dig at critics wasn't lost on anyone.

"If you want to remove them (Sai and Ruturaj), you can open with Washington Sundar and Ishan Kishan. So, you have a lot of options.

"Now, if you lose 1 or 2 matches, if the stats of the so-called batsmen or bowlers are not good and if you talk about changing them, then it will be difficult," Nehra batted with full force for Gill.

Washi is a batter who can play anywhere from 1 to 6

Washington Sundar played only six games for Titans last season because of a set combination but Nehra did drop hints that if fit, the Tamil Nadu man would be used way more this time.

Washington's role in the Indian team has created a lot of confusion as to whether he is more of a batting all-rounder or a specialist spinner who is also a capable bat.

Nehra has no such confusion as he feels that Washington's primary skill-set is being a top class batter and on conducive surfaces, he is a complete package with his off-breaks also coming into play.

"Washington Sundar, the kind of skill-set he has, number one, for me, Washington Sundar is a batsman who can bat at any slot between 1 to 6 or 7, whatever number you want him to bat. He has the ability to bat that much.

"And coming back to your question (batter or bowler), it depends on the conditions. As I said, if there is a little help on the pitch, then Washington Sundar has the full package with both batting and bowling.

"He has done very well in Powerplays, bowling with new ball when he started his career. It depends on how a team uses it. Washington Sundar is still not a finished product and sky is the limit. He will keep getting better from here," the head coach encouraged his ward.

"He is only 25-26 years old and has been in the system for so many years. So, now his experience is coming in front of you. Due to the combination of last year, he was not able to play that much (in IPL).

"But next year, I hope he stays in form, then you will see him playing more compared to last year," he assured.

Not much option at auction The mini-auctions in Abu Dhabi, slated for December 16, will be huge for teams like KKR (Rs 64.30 crore) and Chennai Super Kings (Rs 43.40 crore), who are rebuilding their core.

But Titans need only five players and are going in with a purse of Rs 12.90 crore, which is third lowest among 10 teams.

"Our core team is set and we have released only 4-5 players. So, we go into the auction with a very open mind. See, when you are making a team from scratch, like last year, it was a different kind of strategy.

"But right now, pretty much all the slots are filled. So, we'll see what we get, the kind of purse we have because other teams have so much purse. So, you have to go with the flow during the auction," Nehra said.

In fact, if one looks at Titans' line-up, when all players are fit, 10 slots -- Jos Buttler, Gill, Sudharsan, Rahul Tewatia, Shahrukh Khan, Rashid Khan, R Sai Kishore, Kagiso Rabada, Prasidh Krishna and Mohammed Siraj are filled.

In the one slot remaining, New Zealander Glenn Phillips, who was retained instead of Sherfane Rutherford, could be used as a big-hitting all-rounder, where Washington is the Indian option.

"Like I said earlier, we go with an open mind. Our team is set. Rahul Tewatia, Shah Rukh Khan, Washington Sundar, and so many middle order batsmen already. "If I'm not wrong, the highest purse, CSK has it. But they also need players. So, we are sitting in a very comfortable position," he added. (PTI)
